Upland woman, L.A. boy, 9, killed in city accidents

POMONA — A young Upland woman and a Los Angeles child were killed in separate traffic accidents here Wednesday night.

The Upland woman, Candice Scott Campbell, 23, 2424 Sierra Drive, was killed when the pickup truck she was in slammed into a street light standard at Towne Avenue and Phillips Boulevard shortly after 11 p.m.

Nine-year-old Felipe Valtierra was killed in a two-car collision on the Pomona Freeway at Dudley Street which also injured four other persons. That accident was shortly after 7.

Miss Campbell was a passenger in a pickup driven by Dennis Michael Sheehy, 25, Monrovia. Sheehy told police they were southbound on Towne Avenue when a station wagon ran a stop sign westbound in Phillips and he swerved to avoid it. His pickup went out of control and slammed broadside into the standard, Sheehy said.

A witness told officers that the other car, described as a Chevrolet Vega, either metallic blue or gray, sped away westbound after the driver turned off his lights. The witness said the station wagon appeared to contain two persons.

Sheehy said that after the truck crashed into the pole, he first checked Miss Campbell and found her bleeding heavily from a head injury. He said that when he looked for the station wagon, it had gone.

Miss Campbell was pronounced dead on arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The body was taken to Pollock Mortuary while authorities attempted to contact her parents in Northbrook, Ill. Sheehy was unhurt.

Police are seeking the driver of the station wagon.

In the Pomona Freeway accident, vehicles driven by Raul Robert Vela, 35, and Frank Valtierra, 41, both of Los Angeles, were eastbound.

Highway patrolmen are unsure if the Vela car swerved to the right, colliding with the right rear of the Valtierra camper, or if the Valtierra vehicle swerved to the left, colliding with the right-front of the Vela auto.

The collision resulted in Valtierra losing control, and all four of his passengers being ejected. Nine-year-old Felipe, son of the driver, was dead on arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The driver and his wife, Josephina, 37, were both admitted to the hospital. He suffered facial cuts and bruises and she a back injury, officials said. Their other child, Rafael, 3, was treated at the hospital and released.

Vela and his son, Richard, 9, were also treated at the hospital for minor injuries and later released.

The accident is still under investigation, officers said.

Three ailing sextuplets improving

DENVER (UPI) —Three of the five surviving Stanek sextuplets today showed signs of overcoming the lung disease that killed their infant sister. Doctors however, said, the children were still endangered.

"We can't put any percentage on it because their condition can change from hour to hour," said a spokesman for the University of Colorado Medical Center. "We're all hoping at the moment there's no reason for any grave concern. The prognosis has to be guarded. But the longer they survive, the better off they are."

The father of the sextuplets, a junior accountant, talked with pediatricians keeping watch over the 4-day-old infants and said two of the children in poor condition had rallied.

"They improved somewhat over the night," he said. "They're aren't any specifics on their conditions available as of yet, however."

The hospital said two of the infants born by Caesarian section Sunday night within a four-minute interval to the 34-year-old mother were fair. The fifth child, John, the first one born, was in good condition.

Guards were stationed outside the obstetrics ward nursery to keep out the curious. They turned away one impersonator who claimed to be the childrens' father.

House promises top priority to Senate's pension measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate has passed a bill to assure 38 million working people that the pensions they anticipate will be available when they retire.

The measure would also give tax advantages to induce millions more—the self-employed and workers whose companies do not offer pensions —to provide for their retirement years.

The bill was approved by a 93-0 vote Wednesday night despite some criticism that it promised too much and didn't do enough. It was sent to the House, where Speaker Carl Albert has promised to give the matter top priority this year.

The bill's chief provision would require that anyone who works more than five years under a pension plan will receive, upon reaching retirement age, at least a fraction of a full pension.

Senate studies showed that only a minority of the 38 million workers enrolled under 20,000 differing pension plans would actually receive payments. Many of the plans pay nothing unless the worker stays on until age 60 or 65.

But nothing in the bill compels an employer to establish a pension plan or fixes the amount of pensions. Those matters are left to labor-management bargaining. The average pension paid today amounts to $141 a month.

Other provisions insure pension funds so workers would collect even if their companies fail and require employers to set aside, over 31 years, enough money to meet their pension obligations.

The $2,500 which existing law permits the self-employed to deduct from taxes and invest toward retirement would be tripled, to $7,500, as President Nixon proposed. The retiree would have to pay taxes on the money when he starts collecting.

Another tax provision would permit workers not covered by pension plans to set aside for retirement and deduct from current taxes up to $1,500 a year. This will reduce the government's revenues by an estimated $350 million a year. Nixon had proposed a $2,500 deduction.

Led by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., liberals succeeded in voting to impose for the first time a limit on the size of corporate tax deductions for executive pensions.

The Senate formula would limit firms, including the "professional corporations" set up by doctors and lawyers who incorporate themselves for tax savings, to tax deductions large enough to provide pensions of up to $75,000 a year. That is considerably less than the $200,000-range pensions many corporations now award top people out of tax-deductible funds.

Under the bill, workers are assured partial vesting—a guaranteed payment in retirement —after five years at a job in a firm which offers a pension plan.

Specifically, the bill requires 25 per cent vesting after five years employment, 50 per cent after 10 years and 100 per cent after 15 years.

LUCKY OR UNLUCKY DAY?

This three-story garage in downtown New York collapsed with a roar Wednesday, toppling autos like toys atop one another and spilling some into the street. Three persons, known to be working in the garage, escaped after a warning rumble. Depressed car owners, however, counted blessings in being alive.

100 rooms damaged

Hundreds evacuated in Las Vegas hotel blaze

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Several hundred persons were evacuated from the multimillion dollar Caesars Palace Hotel early today when fire broke out on the seventh floor of a high-rise tower.

Some 100 rooms were damaged by smoke as guests were evacuated from three floors. Smoke damage to the rooms and the hallway on the seventh floor was extensive.

Some of those evacuated were given oxygen at the scene after being led down smokefilled stairways. There were no serious injuries.

The Osmond Brothers were staying in the north wing of the hotel where the fire broke out and were among those evacuated.

The 905-room gambling spa was filled with numerous convention delegates, some of whom were attending the National Insurance Agents Association Conference.

A dozen Clark County fire units responded to the blaze and backup units from the city of Las Vegas stood by as crews administered oxygen to smoke inhalation victims.

When the fire first broke out shortly after 3 a.m., flames were visible on the north side of the hotel. The fire was controlled within 20 minutes.

A spokesman for the fire department said the evacuation was orderly and there was no panic. Many were led from the hotel in their nightclothes.

Firemen said a grill decoration on the outside of the rooms kept some people from jumping. The cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

A hotel spokesman said 66 rooms were evacuated and 100 rooms would be out of use because of the smoke damage.

Aides say Nixon feels Watergate days behind him

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon feels that the "difficult days" of the Watergate scandal are behind him, White House aides said today.

Outwardly, the chief executive appears more relaxed and smiling than he did during the months following the first Watergate disclosure. His doctors say that he has made a "excellent recovery" from his bout with viral pneumonia last July.

"He feels the difficult days of last May and June are passed, and the country is putting Watergate in perspective," one aide said.

He said that Nixon's attitude comes from his belief that in the country as a whole "people want to get on with other matters" such as dealing with inflation and the fuel shortage.

Nixon has been concentrating almost exclusively on his domestic program, aides said, and will continue to do so as long as Congress is in session.

The concentration on the domestic affairs left up in the air whether Nixon will make his projected journey to Europe this fall. Aides said that he will not decide this finally until he has a better idea what the "substantive results" of the trip might be. They do not expect a decision until after more soundings are taken with European leaders.

Exchange students to be feted at fair

POMONA — American Field Service chapters throughout the Southland will be honoring their exchange students during a special day at the 46th Los Angeles County Fair Friday.

Besides being taken on a tour of the huge fair, the students will be hosted at a reception on Picnic Hill at 5 p.m.

Thousands of exhibits are on display throughout the fair, including the entrancing "Polynesian Village," a hillside of landscape and patio ideas, a huge fern and shade garden and hundreds of individual floral displays at the Flower and Garden Show.

Elegant, yet casual, entertaining where guests and hosts share the fun is illustrated in "Designs for Dining and Entertaining," displayed in the Interior Design Showcase.

Also on display are the blue ribbon-winning community and county exhibits from throughout the state.

Attendance Wednesday, the sixth day of the 1973 exposition, totaled 40,768, a little less than the 42,282 on a comparable Wednesday in 1972, the fair's record-setting year when 1,268,466 went through the turnstiles during the 14-day run of the exposition.

Among visitors to the fair Wednesday were State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, and members of the Board of Supervisors, including board chairman Peter Schabarum.

The fair has attracted 368,429 visitors during its first six days, compared to 369,613 last year.

Among the many free attractions at the fair is the nightly Polack Bros. Circus in the grandstand at 8 p.m.

Jet returns to L.A. as bomb threat reported

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A United Airlines 747 bound for Honolulu with 85 persons aboard returned to Los Angeles Wednesday night after a telephoned bomb threat was received, authorities reported.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said Flight 111 with 71 passengers and a crew of 14 returned to Los Angeles International Airport 27 minutes after takeoff so police bomb squad members could search for the reported bomb.

A United spokesman said the telephoned threat came shortly after the plane departed. He said a United operations officer received a call from somebody who sounded like a child saying the next flight would have a bomb aboard.

The United official asked which flight, and the caller said the one bound for Hawaii.

The pilot was radioed the information and he elected to return to Los Angeles, the spokesman said.

Nixon 'supremacy' attitude rapped

EAST VINELAND, N.J. (UPI) —Former White House aide Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. said Wednesday night President Nixon has plunged the nation into a constitutional crisis with attitudes of "supremacy."

Schlesinger, who spoke at a $50-per-plate Democratic fundraiser, said Nixon has violated the constitution by permitting bombing in Cambodia, impounding congressional funds and refusing to release Watergate-related tapes.

"The President has habits and attitudes of presidential supremacy that have created that disease," he said.

Deadline at hand

Still no compromise on tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Working right up to a court-imposed deadline, the White House and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox tried today to find a compromise to their dispute over President Nixon's Watergate tapes.

A few hours before lawyers for the two sides were to go before a federal appeals court to report on their efforts a source close to the situation said "we're still working on it" and it was learned a third meeting to try to resolve the dilemma was held Wednesday.

Cox insists that a federal grand jury considering further Watergate indictments must hear the tape recordings of nine presidential conversations about the scandal before taking action.

Nixon contends that surrendering the tapes would violate essential confidentiality in the Oval Office and destroy the presidency.

Indications were the two sides were still far apart, although administration sources indicated that the President was willing to compromise by offering Cox edited transcripts of the tapes, deleted of material that he feels must remain secret in the public interest.

The tapes are of conversations between the President and his aides, concerning the Watergate affair, and were made at a time when Nixon's office conversations were routinely recorded. Both Cox and the Senate Watergate committee want them. Cox petitioned to have them turned over to a grand jury. District Court Judge John J. Sirica ruled that he should hear them first.

Both the White House and Cox then went to the appeals court—the White House seeking to have Sirica's ruling vacated; Cox seeking to have it strengthened.

It was learned that one proposal advanced by the White House was to provide Cox with "excerpted transcripts" of the recordings after the White House reviewed them.

Poll puts Cranston on top in 1974 race

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Poll reported recently that Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston currently holds large leads over Gov. Ronald Reagan and two others who have been mentioned as possible GOP opponents against him in the 1974 election.

Pollster Mervin D. Field found that Cranston led Reagan by a 53 per cent to 39 per cent margin with 8 per cent undecided.

Agnew controversy spreads to Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The controversy surrounding Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's future has spread to Capitol Hill.

A group of House Democrats, led by Rep. John Conyers of Michigan, met Wednesday to discuss the Agnew situation but refused to reveal the substance of the closed door talks. Earlier this year, the same group explored the possibility of impeachment proceedings against President Nixon.

Following the meeting in Conyers' office, Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said "Something will come out of this (meeting). We're going to do something and you'll know about it when the times comes."

Earlier Wednesday, a spokesman for the House Judiciary Committee said some panel members had discussed the Agnew case among themselves, but denied a report that Justice Department officials were present during the discussions. The committee has jurisdiction over impeachment investigations.

In other developments:

—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a strong supporter and close Agnew friend, said in New York he believed the vice president "would seriously consider resignation if he were indicted." Later, Agnew aides said Goldwater's remark was "one man's opinion."

—A federal grand jury in Baltimore was scheduled to meet today under tight security to begin investigating alleged corruption in Maryland politics. Agnew was told by U.S. Attorney George Beall Aug. 1 that he was under investigation as part of this inquiry into alleged kickbacks from contractors.

There has been no official confirmation of reports that Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has given a go-ahead for any presentation to the grand jury of information from the Agnew investigation.

Rep. Edward Mezvinsky of Iowa, one of about 20 Democrats who met in Conyers' office, said "all the issues coming out of Watergate as well as the controversy over Agnew were explored in a general way. There was no consensus of what action, if any, should be taken. And none was sought, it was just a general discussion of all the issues."

Gordon Liddy plea

'I'm not guilty'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —G. Gordon Liddy, already convicted in the Watergate break-in, pleaded "not guilty" in a loud, clear voice today to the burglary of the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Liddy was brought to Superior Court before Judge James G. Kolts after being flown here from Washington, D. C., for arraignment in the case which also involves John Ehrlichman, Egil "Bud" Krogh and David Young.

Looking natty in a light blue suit and standing erect before the judge, Liddy said that he was attempting to arrange free attorney services through the American Civil Liberties Union but asked the court to appoint an attorney for him in the meantime "since I am indigent."

Judge Kolts asked Liddy whether he had no funds at all to pay an attorney.

"Not unless he would be willing to accept the $34 I have with me at the county jail," Liddy said.

Kolts ordered a public defender to act at least temporarily on Liddy's behalf.

His not guilty plea followed similar pleas of innocent by Ehrlichman, former top aide to President Nixon, and two other former White House aides.

Ehrlichman, Young and Krogh were not in court today but were represented by their lawyers for setting of a trial date in the case which involves the break-in at the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding on Labor Day weekend 1971.

Kolts called the attorneys into his chambers for a discussion of "housekeeping" matters in setting a trial date and possibly hearing motions for severance by the defendants so that they would not be tried as a block.

Aborigine girl, 7, plucked from home to marry

SYDNEY (UPI) —The Australian government said today a seven-year-old aboriginal girl, who has lived most of her life in a comfortable foster home, has been sent back to her ancestral tribe against her will to marry a middle-aged man.

A cabinet minister told Parliament authorities took Nola Brown from her middle class home in a Darwin suburb because of a marriage contract made at her birth by her natural father and her husband-to-be.

"We told them we considered this to be too short a time to allow Nola to get used to the idea," Athold Brown, her white foster father, said. "She screamed and cried and said she wanted to stay with us."

Aboriginal Affairs Minister Gordon Bryant told Parliament Nola would have to spend the rest of her life living in a rustic shack on the banks of a river in Australia's hinterlands.

Nola had lived with Brown and his wife in a suburb of Darwin since a few months after being born prematurely in a welfare settlement and placed in a hospital.

"I understand in this particular tribal situation the promising has taken place in the past and that at some time in the future, say at 10 or 12, the actual promise will or is likely to be consumated," he said.

Bryant said the government has no legal power to intervene. "We can only hope that the child is happily placed with her natural parents," Bryant said.

Colson now silent,

WASHINGTON (UPI) —After losing his bid for immunity, former White House aide Charles W. Colson turned silent before the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., told reporters after the 2-½ hour closed session that because of Colson's refusal to talk about the bugging scandal he had been eliminated as a witness when the committee resumes public hearings next Monday.

Networks to resume Watergate coverage

NEW YORK (UPI) —The three commercial television networks will continue their rotating live coverage of the Senate Watergate hearings for next week's sessions, spokesmen announced Wednesday.

The agreement, however, covers only the Watergate sessions next week, expected to conclude "phase 1" of the Senate committee's investigation into the circumstances surrounding the burglary last year at the Democratic National Committee.

Spokesmen for the networks said they will be meeting in the future to discuss possible coverage of the committee's "phase 2" investigation of national campaign financing and acti-

3 killed, 5 hurt in mysterious pool hall blast

PASO ROBLES, Calif. (UPI) —Three persons were killed and five others were injured Wednesday when a mysterious explosion ripped apart a pool hall in the downtown area.

Authorities said Harold Zernes, 53, Florencio Chaides, 63, both of Paso Robles, and Mullis Baxter. 77, of Atascadero were killed when the blast ripped the small structure, causing the roof to collapse on the victims.

Fire department officials were investigating the cause of the blast, and investigators believed gas leaking under the floor of the one-story structure could have ignited.

"It didn't look as though anybody in there had a chance," said George Tharlden, whose drugstore is located 60 feet from the pool hall. "We thought our place had exploded."

At least one victim was blown out of the building and on to the sidewalk by the force of the blast, authorities said.

Police said five persons were injured, of whom four have been identified. Listed in critical condition at Paso Robles War Memorial Hospital was Martha Martinez, 25, the pool hall bartender, while Edgar Hanson, 72, of Shandon, was listed as serious.

Thomas J. Nalley, 24, and Jim Beecham, 58, both of Paso Robles, were also injured in the blast but their condition was unknown.

"All that's left are three walls and the floor," said officer Gary Dibble of the Paso Robles police department. In addition to the destruction of the pool hall, a number of windows in the business district and in nearby parked cars were shattered by the force of the explosion.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House says the interior of President Nixon's Air Force jet is undergoing a $285,000 remodeling, mostly along lines suggested by Mrs. Nixon.

Nixon housing program hit as 'too little'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Housing experts and congressional leaders say President Nixon's new housing program will do little to ease problems of the poor or prospective home owners in many credit starved states.

"On first reaction it would seem that the proposals, many of which are not yet worked out, do not fully respond to either the current emergency or the long-range housing problems," said George C. Martin, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said he was dissappointed that Nixon did not release more impounded funds for housing programs frozen since Jan. 5. Sparkman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, also said the President's cash allowance proposal might be no more effective in curing housing ills for the poor than the frozen programs.

Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, ranking Republican on the committee, said the plan "has merit."

Nixon gave an outline of his program, based on a six month $1.2 million study, in a message to Congress Wednesday. Administration officials said details will be sent to Capitol Hill next week in the form of proposed legislation.

"After nine months of extensive study and a nine month freeze on housing programs for low-income families, the nation's cities deserve a more comprehensive, unified housing proposals than was presented today," the League and the Conference said in a joint statement.

Officials of the savings and loan industry, which finances about 55 per cent of all home mortgages yearly, said Nixon's actions to provide $5.5 billion in new construction funds fails to meet the problem. "The issue is not a scarcity of money, but the high price of credit," one said.

Acupuncture cited as arthritis aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) —More than two-thirds of 36 patients treated with acupuncture for rheumatoid arthritis experienced pain relief, reduced swelling of joints and less tenderness, a study presented this week to a National Institutes of Health workshop showed.

The study was conducted by Drs. Arnold Benson, medical director, and Ralph Coan, staff physician, at the Acupuncture Center of Washington, which has been in operation since December of 1972.

The figures were presented at a meeting at which NIH participation in scientific studies of acupuncture, the ancient Chinese practice of healing with needles, was discussed.

Gas station operators to end protest

By United Press International

Gas station operators in Massachusetts said today they would end their protest shutdown, but they vowed they would do it again if the Nixon administration refuses to change its mind on price controls.

"We've proven our point and we don't want the public to suffer any more," said John Bell, a Mobil station operator in the Boston suburb of Lexington.

Hundreds of stations across the state remained closed Wednesday for a second day despite a court order to stay open. The gasoline dealers were protesting a Cost of Living Council ruling that bars stations from passing on to their customers a penny-a-gallon increase charged by the oil companies.

In Washington, Charles Binsted, president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, said he believed some relief was in sight legislatively or through the Cost of Living Council.

"It's gotta come, or there will be shutdowns all over, for whatever reason," he said.

"It is impossible to tell the effect, in exact numbers, of Phase IV price controls," Binsted said. "We have a goodly number go out of business each year. Some do not necessarily go broke, but the business does not give them the income they need to get by.... And, I tell you, we do not need government euthanasia to help us along."

Child drowning in swim pool saved

MONTCLAIR — The quick action of a 4-year-old boy's stepfather saved the life of the boy after he accidentally fell into the deep end of a swimming pool at the Royal Palms Motel, 4780 Mission Blvd., Wednesday afternoon, according to Montclair Fire Department officials.

The boy, Ronald Floyd Jr., according to Capt. Joseph Shonert, was discovered at the bottom of swimming pool of the motel about 3:10 p.m. Wednesday. A resident at the motel, fearing the boy had drowned, phoned the fire department for assistance.

Shonert reported that on their arrival the boy had been pulled from the deep end of the swimming pool by his stepfather, Dennis Tennant. Tennant administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and partially revived the boy, who had stopped breathing. Firemen on the scene administered oxygen to the youth and an ambulance transported him to the Doctors Hospital in Montclair. The boy was later released to his stepfather in good condition.

Capt. Shonert said that the youth had been warned not to go near the pool shortly before 3 p.m. He said it appeared the boy fell in and was discovered missing 10 minutes later.

Capt. Shonert credited Tennant, whose quick action probably saved the young boy's life.

Ontario bicyclist hurt in collision with car

ONTARIO — A 10-year-old Ontario girl was injured Wednesday afternoon when her bicycle was struck by a car on Mission Boulevard near Vine Street, police reported.

Mary Lou Gonzales of 623 W. Maitland St. was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital after the 3:50 p.m. accident for bruises and abrasions and later was released.

Police said that the girl was riding her bicycle south on Vine Street, crossing Mission Boulevard. The girl's bicycle was struck by a car driven west on Mission Boulevard by Paul Conriquez Ramirez, 19, of 150 E. Alvarado St., Pomona.

The impact knocked the bicycle from under the girl and she fell to the pavement in front of a second car driven by Robert Vera Garcia, 32, of 1155 E. State St., Ontario. Police said Garcia swerved his car to the left to avoid hitting the girl and struck the side of Ramirez vehicle.

A witness to the accident said it appeared the girl did not stop for the red light on Mission Boulevard.

Guard dies at his job

POMONA — A security guard at Teledyne Casting, 4200 Valley Blvd., collapsed and died at work early Wednesday, apparently of a heart attack.

Seth Benjamin Pratt, 57, 855 N. Towne Ave., was found on the ground inside the employes' gate on the north side of the building. Police gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external heart massage but he failed to respond and was pronounced dead at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police said Pratt's wife told them he had had heart trouble in the past and she had wanted him to take time off and rest, but he refused.

The body was taken to Pollock Mortuary.

Young king takes office in Sweden

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Sweden's young new king, Carl XVI Gustaf, officially assumed his high office Wednesday with a call for "mutual understanding" and cooperation with the international community.

Sitting on the gilded throne for the first time, the 27-year-old bachelor king, who succeeded to the monarchy on the death of 90-year-old King Gustav VI Adolf last Saturday, told his eight million subjects:

"It is my wish that my royal motto "For Sweden—With the Times' shall be understood as an appeal for mutual understanding and development for the good of Sweden. At the same time it is a personal commitment."

The king also declared, "A favorable development in our country also increases our ability to work for the international community."

At the end of installation ceremonies, the king came out on the palace balcony and joined at least 20,000 of his subjects in singing the national anthem. The Swedes shouted "long live the king."

At a special cabinet meeting in the royal palace, the new king, dressed in admiral's uniform, announced that his royal name would be Carl XVI Gustaf, King of Sweden.

Carl Gustaf dropped the reference to also being king of "the Goths and the Vandals"— a reference to once powerful barbarian tribes.

The king had been promoted from lieutenant to admiral prior to the cabinet session, which began with Premier Olof Palme reading the death certificate for Gustaf VI Adolf, who died of pneumonia four months after undergoing stomach surgery.

The king, preceeded by a platoon of guards in 18th century uniforms, then walked to the hall of state where he took his place on the gilded throne.

Sitting on the purple and ermine mantle covering the throne King Carl XVI Gustaf eulogized the late monarch.

"My esteemed and beloved grandfather became a symbol for the modern monarchy," he said. "I am firmly resolved to follow his good example."

Members of the government, the Riksdag (parliament) and high officials from the armed forces and government agencies sang the "King's Song."

Miss America choice draws complaints

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J (UPI) —Miss America Pageant headquarters has received at least 200 letters complaining about this year's beauty queen choice and at least one suggested the Senate Watergate Committee take a look at the judging system.

"I would like to suggest that Sen. Sam Ervin forget about Watergate and investigate the Miss America Pageant," said Donna Garrett of Easley, S.C., who wrote a one-sentence letter.

A New York girl, who considered entering next year's pageant, said, "After this year's results it seems that the system of judging is quite unfair."

She quoted the New York Daily News as saying of Miss Colorado, Rebecca Ann King, "Her legs are a bit too skinny and she has a suggestion of a double chin," and ended the letter with a request to change the system by which 10 celebrities pick the winner on the basis of talent, evening gown and swim suit competitions.

Pageant director Albert A. Marks Jr. said after reading the letters, "I'll bet these will be the first people to tune in to the pageant this year," adding that records had been set for television viewers this year.

The mail was sprinkled with a few favorable letters. One said Miss King was "beautiful, talented and sensational, and the pageant was like no other production."

U.N.--a weak sister with strong rivalry

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Like a man old before his time, the 28th general assembly of the United Nations is being asked to answer questions usually reserved for middle age or beyond...who am I?...what am I doing here?

No longer young, nor yet living up to earlier expectations in maturity, the body intended to turn the one-world concept into dynamic reality has in the eyes of many turned flabby, its actions confined to fruitless debate and its interests devoted to nationalism and rival blocks.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim is a diplomat and as such inclined to go around an obstacle rather than through it.

But toward this 28th general assembly he took the hard line.

He said the U.N. suffered from public disillusionment and he posed two tough questions:

"Do the majority of the member states really want an organization which is more than a conference machinery and a forum for the pursuit of national policies?

"Do they want an organization which can play a useful and active role?"

When the United Nations was founded in 1945 it had a membership of 51. At the opening of the 28th general assembly its membership had grown to 132 and quickly increased to 135 with the addition of the two Germanys and Bermuda.

In the early days, the major nations, especially the United States, paid the bills and dictated the policies.

Today, the major nations still pay most of the bills but nations paying less than five percent of the budget dictate the policies, including spending.

Not until 1970 did the United States exercise its first veto in the Security Council. Altogether, as its influence and its interest in the U.N. has waned, the United States has used its veto five times.

In the current session the item of chief interest to the United States will be the question of Korea, and it illustrates the point.

Should North and South Korea be admitted to the U.N. separately or should action be delayed until after unification? Should U.N. forces made up mostly of U.S. troops be permitted to remain on guard along the cease-fire line or should they be expelled?

Debate will continue to the point of total exhaustion and finally will be decided in the Security Council by use or lack of it of the U.S. veto.

The obvious weakness of the U.N. is that the big powers will act as they please, and the smaller nations will pass resolutions they cannot enforce.

But Waldheim also has a point.

It is in the use of preventive diplomacy.

The U.N., he says, cannot cure all the ailments of the international society, but it can and has prevented them from getting worse. As an example he cites the conflict between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus.

And to U.N. critics he says:

"If there were a will to use the United Nations as an instrument of peace, it would work very well.

As to the future of the U.N., it also is obvious that if the world didn't have it, it would have to invent it.

Son, daughter shot by mother accidentally

SAN MATEO (UPI) —A mother accidentally shot her son and daughter Tuesday night with a single bullet, police said.

Officers said the youngsters, aged 14 and 13, thought they heard a prowler while doing the dishes, and went to their mother's bedroom to alert her.

According to police, the mother removed a .25 caliber pistol from under her bed, and as she pulled it from the holster, it accidentally discharged.

New minimum wage effort promised

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee said today he is ready to start work "as soon as possible" on a new bill to increase the present $1.60 minimum wage.

Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., said he will talk with fellow Democrats on his panel and with Speaker Carl Albert on the prospects of a new bill. Perkins announcement came after House Wednesday failed to override President Nixon's veto of a Democratic measure to raise the minimum to $2.20 by July 1, 1974.

The House voted 259-164 to override, but this fell 23 votes short of the needed two thirds majority of those voting to beat the veto. It was the sixth consecutive veto victory for Nixon this year.

Nixon opposed the 60-cent increase in less than a year as inflationary. He had proposed earlier raising the minimum to $1.90 immediately and go to $2.30 over a three year period.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., senior GOP member on Perkins' panel, said his party colleagues were ready to sit down immediately and start drafting a new bill that Nixon would accept.

"I personally feel that we got to get a bill one of these days. I'd like to vote on one tomorrow," Perkins told UPI. "I think we should get together as soon as possible and start out all over again."

Perkins' chief lieutenant on the committee as far as minimum wage legislation is concerned, is Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., who managed the vetoed bill. He said earlier no new bill would clear the committee if he had anything to do with it.

After the vote to sustain the veto Dent said: "Sure I'm willing to get out a new bill but only if its more generous than the one that was vetoed."

'Forefathers saw him coming'

Nixon power-hungry—Anderson

LAS VEGAS (UPI) —Columnist Jack Anderson suggests that President Nixon deserves to be impeached for reasons other than Watergate.

"He deserves to be impeached not for the Watergate breakin, but for advocating that the laws should and could be violated. He deserved impeachment when he said he called upon (the late J. Edgar) Hoover to violate the laws ... to tap telephones, to open mail," Anderson told a news conference Wednesday.

"Impeachment is a drastic step. It would divide the country. I am not too sure I would advocate impeachment, but I would say the President deserves to be impeached."

Anderson was in this gambling resort to open the lecture series at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

The Pulitzer Prize winning reporter said he did not expect Vice President Spiro Agnew to resign but said "it ought not to be necessary to convict a man before you remove him, before he has the decency to leave."

"He (Agnew) is under criminal investigation by a Republican U.S. attorney."

Anderson said Nixon was "power oriented and ambitious for power."

"I have never known him to be motivated by conviction. He keeps changing them. He has spent his political career in a revolving door. You never know where he is going to pop out next. One thing he has been consistent about is a craving for power.

"When he moved into the White House he immediately began forming foreign policy without the Senate, (and) fiscal policy without the House ... He ran his campaign in 1972 without the Republican Party. He tried to weaken the courts by choosing the worst possible mediocre candidates he could find. He tried to stack the Supreme Court to do his bidding and trampled on the rights of Congress."

Anderson said the Founding Fathers "created a ship of state like a battle ship with water tight compartments. So one compartment can be damaged without sinking the ship."

"Our Founding Fathers didn't know his name, but they saw Richard Nixon coming, and because they saw him coming they appointed the press as a watchdog."

Anderson said he did not believe Nixon knew in advance about the Watergate breakin. But he said Nixon issued the orders to cover up the breakin, reminding that the breakin occurred in the heat of a political campaign.

Anderson was asked for an opinion on Martha Mitchell. He said:

"For four years when she was lambasting the Democrats she was perfectly sane. I recall on one occasion President Nixon himself said 'go get 'em Martha'. And then suddenly she began lambasting Republicans and now (they say) she is crazy."

Housing boom murdered by interest rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The three-year housing boom has died, the victim of record interest rates, according to government figures.

At the same time President Nixon was announcing a revamped program Wednesday designed to breathe new life into the nation's housing picture, the Census Bureau was reporting that the volume of homebuilding in August had slumped to its lowest level since October 1971.

Starts of privately owned home and apartment units dropped to a 2.05 million seasonally adjusted annual rate last month compared to 2.18 million in July and 2.42 million in August 1972, the figures showed.

Even more ominous was the continuing decline in building permits, an indicator of how much construction activity lies ahead. Permits dropped to 1.71 million rate last month compared to 1.78 million in July and are now 29 per cent below their January peak.

For the past three years, builders have turned out homes and apartments at a record pace. Last year housing starts hit 2.4 million, an alltime high. In large part, this was due to a big demand from young people born during the post-World War II baby boom who now have reached home-buying age.

Economists knew that the current surge couldn't last. But the record increase in interest rates has hastened the turnaround. Mortage interest rates on new homes have soared from 7.75 to 9.5 per cent in the past two months alone.

In another economic development Wednesday, the Commerce Department said a key measure of the U.S. balance of payments position with foreign nations narrowed between April and June to the smallest deficit since late 1970.

The basic balance on current account and long-term capital was in deficit by $782 million in the second quarter, a $165 million improvement over the year's first quarter, Commerce officials said.

Defense Dept. official:

'Women should be drafted with men'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Constance J. Downey, head of a new women's program at the Department of Defense, says that if the United States ever resumes the draft women should be called,too.

"From the time I was in high school," she said in a news conference Wednesday, "I have been convinced that any kind of conscription program ought to be universal." The draft was abandoned in January.

Ms. Downey, 39, of Middleway, W.Va., said she prefers the title "Ms." to "Miss," but that she isn't a militant women's liberation activist. She said the only job discrimination she has personally encountered because of sex has been her pay, "which doesn't matter to me."

H. Minton Francis, deputy assistant secretary of defense for equal opportunity, backed up her position on the draft, but he said her main job will deal with equal opportunity for women who work for the Defense Deprtment or its contractors and wives of military personnel.

"Twenty million American women have official relationships to the Department of Defense either as civilian employes, as members of the military establishment, as members of military families or as workers in any of the industries which make possible this country's vast and successful defense effort," he said.

Ms. Downey said she has found out that women hold 80 per cent of the support jobs in the Defense Department but less than 1 per cent of the top administrative positions.

Montclair mayor bristles

Mikesell mum on blast by Hayes

San Bernardino County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell has refused comment on Montclair Mayor Harold Hayes' criticism of the supervisor on Monday.

Mikesell said that he had "no comment at this time" concerning Hayes' critical remarks made in a public letter to the supervisor.

Hayes' action, as explained in the tersely worded two-page letter, was prompted by Mikesell's recent criticism of West End mayors and West End fire departments.

The mayors from the West End met recently to discuss the transportation problems faced in the area. Mikesell later criticized the holding of the meeting.

Hayes wrote Monday, "I was not aware that we needed approval from the members of the Board of Supervisors to hold a meeting of the West End Mayors. Had you been at the last SANBAG (San Bernardino Association of Governments) General Assembly meeting, you would have been aware of our concern regarding transportation."

Hayes criticized Mikesell's absenteeism from such meetings and characterized Mikesell's attack on "honest efforts of local public officials" as "unwarranted."

Hayes also charged that the supervisor had unfairly critized the fire departments of Upland, Ontario and Montclair.

Involved was a June 27 residential fire in the College Heights area east of Upland. Mikesell claimed that the fire departments in Upland, Ontario and Montclair failed to respond promptly to the location, causing additional damage to be done.

The Upland Fire Department has contended, however, that it responded to the location within minutes of notification and had the fire extinguished by the time units from the California Division of Forestry arrived.

In his letter, Hayes told the supervisor that he did not have his facts straight and that his statements were "unfair."

Hitchhiker pulls gun, shot dead by officer

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A California Highway Patrol officer shot and killed a Utah hitchhiker Wednesday night when the man pulled a gun while being cited for illegally thumbing on the freeway, authorities said.

The dead man was identified as Glen I. Johnson, 29, believed to be from Salt Lake City.

Another man, at first thought to be Johnson's companion, was taken into custody and later released after the sheriff's department determined he was an "innocent bystander." He was identified as Arnold G. Jett, 22, of Auburn, N.Y.

Authorities said Officer Earl Doyle was citing the pair for illegal hitchhiking and had offered them a ride of fhe freeway when he noticed a bulge in Johnson's pocket. A highway patrol spokesman said Doyle began to search the suspect, found ammunition and then the man pulled a gun.

Doyle was said to have whirled around and fired twice from behind his squad car as Johnson cocked the automatic pistol and took aim. Under Johnson's body was found the pistol with a live bullet in the chamber and the hammer pulled back.

Jett fled into the bushes during the shooting but surrendered without a struggle. "He just happened to be hitchhiking in the same place," the sheriff's spokesman said.

The spokesman said homicide detectives were continuing an investigation. The shooting occurred at 7 p.m. on California highway 99 near the Florin Road offramp in the southern section of the city.

No room for youth at top of China leadership

By CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI) Four old men, whose average age is 82, occupy the top positions in the Chinese Communist Party and government structure.

Despite some youthful window dressing in the new leadership group installed at the recent party congress, the old guard still dominats.

This is not lost on some ambitious youthful elements. And some complaints already are being heard in the party newspaper, the People's Daily.

These plaintive voices, which probably represent the more radical wing of the party, call for more accent on collective leadership. They also could be interpreted as a warning to the old guard.

"The new party constitution adopted at the party's 10th National Congress (Aug. 24-28) stipulates that leading organs at all levels should carry out the three-in-one principle created by the masses during the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution of having the old, middle-aged and young in leadership."

"One of the important current questions is to pay attention to training, promoting and using outstanding young cadres," the article added.

"Using" is the operative word here.

The article paid tribute to the "old revolutionary cadres" and "veteran cadres" and said they were "the treasure of four party and state and the backbone of the leading bodies at all levels," but it also said:

"It is necessary to give young cadres more opportunities to be tempered and allow them (to) shoulder heavy responsibilities so that they can gain experience and ability."

The most startling development of the party Congress was the elevation of a young Shanghai ex-textile worker, who came to the fore during the Red Guard era, to what appears to be the number three position in the party. The newest, and youngest, of the few new faces elevated to the top of the party heirarchy is that of Wang Hung-wen, who is in his mid 30's.

Peking's propaganda machinery appears to be engaged in an image-building program to make Wang better known among the masses and show that youth is being served.

His report on the revision of the party constitution, delivered at the Congress, still is being broadcast to the nation by Peking radio several times a day. According to monitors here, it has been repeated far more than Premier Chou En-lai's political report, which is a more important document.

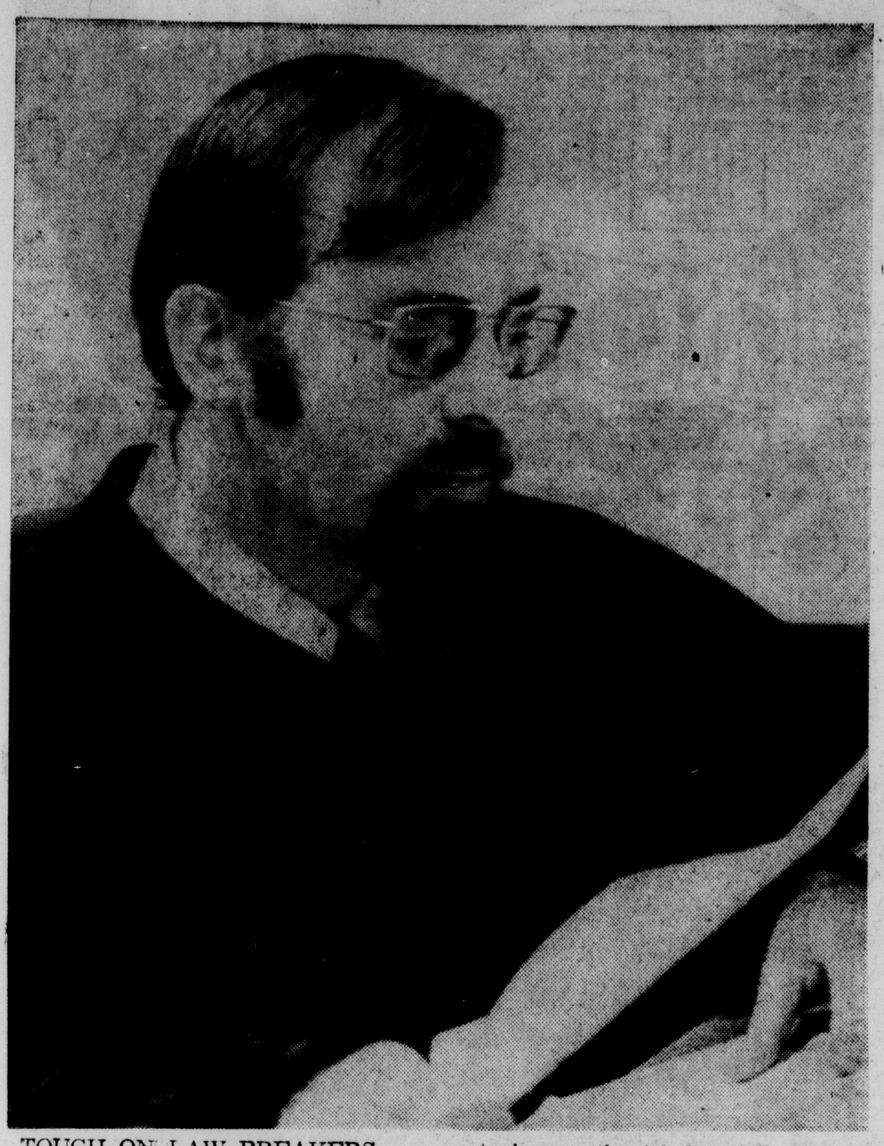
While he may prove to be a powerful and important new addition to the top, Wang still is a relatively unknown quantity. And there is plenty of lingering suspicion that his great leap up the leadership ladder was more of a sop to youth than an honest attempt to establish a more representative collective leadership.

This suspicion comes through in a between-the-lines reading of the People's Daily article.

"Democratic centralism is our party's organizational principle and a fundamental party and state institution. A leading body must be highly centralized and highly democratic, and must combine collective leadership and a division of responsibilities. It must unite people from all corners of the country and must not practice mountain-stronghold sectarianism. It must 'let all people have their say' and not 'let one person alone have all the say'. This will facilitate the training of cadres and help a 'three-in-one' leading body play its role."

Doubts about whether this principle is being followed must have entered the minds of many when they noted the four leaders who signed a message of greetings sent to North Korea last weekend.

Mao Tse-tung, who signed as party chairman, will be 80 in December. Tung pi-wu, the Acting Chairman (President) of the Republic, is 87. Chu Teh, Chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, also is 87. Premier Chou En-lai, the youngest of the four, is 74.



TOUGH ON LAW BREAKERS — Orlando, Fla., Municipal Court Judge Robert L. Hamilton has been criticized as a "hanging judge" since he took over the job last fall. "I don't care what they call me, I'm just doing my job" he said.

Pistol-packin' judge earns reputation for stiff sentences

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) —The young pistol-packing judge, wearing a Van Dyke goatee and cowboy boots, was glaring through amber-tinted glasses at the youth slouched before the bench with a toothpick stuck in a corner of his mouth.

"The next time I see you you're going to be the recipient of my toothbrush policy," Municipal Court Judge Robert L. Hamilton told the youth, who was up for his ninth traffic offense in two years. "That means bring your toothbrush because you're going straight to jail. And if that doesn't impress you, come back again and I'll put you under the jail."

It was a typical day in traffic court for Hamilton, a 31-year-old Vietnam veteran who put on the black robes of a judge last fall and quickly built a reputation for stiff sentences delivered with caustic wit.

Last month Hamilton sent a furniture salesman to jail for 20 days because he wasn't in the courtroom when his name was called on a traffic violation. The salesman had gone down the hall to the restroom.

"But that was his second bench warrant," Hamilton said. "How many times is a judge supposed to put up with that?"

A motorcyclist fined $150 for riding his bike without a license went before the Orlando City Council recently to protest that Hamilton was "giving crazy fines for minor offenses," and to ask the council to "slow down his pistol-toting tactics."

The judge, who won a Bronze Star as an Army sergeant stationed in Long Binh, Vietnam in 1970, said his life had been threatened several times and once he had to take his two children out of school under a police guard because of a bomb threat.

Before going into the courtroom each morning, he straps a stainless steel .25 caliber pistol underneath his robes.

"I'm not easily frightened but one thing I learned in Vietnam was to be prepared," he said. "Last week a defendant climbed over the bench and threatened to blow my head off."

On Wednesdays, when normally about 250 persons are packed into the courtroom to await justice for traffic offenses, Hamilton keeps an eye out for tell-tale bulges in clothing.

"I have learned to see and hear everything that goes on in that courtroom," he said. "There are all kinds of weapons out there. I've even caught a man with a machete in his boot."

One day Hamilton had his bailiffs search a man with a bulging coat. There was a gun all right. He was an FBI agent.

"What have they got to lose?" Hamilton asks. "I know some are mentally unstable or under the influence of drugs. That doesn't help me if they decide to blow my head off."

A native son of Orlando, Hamilton graduated from Stetson University, then in 1971 got a masters degree in law at the University of Miami on the GI Bill.

He was in private practice only briefly before becoming assistant city attorney in Orlando in 1971. He later became city prosecutor and was a police legal adviser last November when he was named the city's first full-time municipal judge at a salary of $23,358 a year.

Among the mementos in his office are an oversized chess set, a bullwhip coiled on a sofa cushion, a rapier across his desk and a ball and chain in a corner. "They are all gifts," he said.

A placard on a cabinet reads, "It isn't whether you win or lose, but how you place the blame."

Despite the controversy he has stirred, Hamilton said he has not been pressured by City Hall to change his style.

"I don't tell the mayor how to run City Hall and he doesn't tell me how to run the court," he said.

Watergate to play havoc with incumbents in 1974?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Common Cause Chairman John W. Gardner said Wednesday shockwaves from Watergate in the 1974 elections could trigger the biggest turnover in incumbent politicians in 40 years.

In testimony prepared for a senate hearing, Gardner said "the issue of political corruption will loom large in the elections of 1974."

Gardner said the question will not be which Watergate conspirators committed misdeeds but rather "Which of our elected representatives moved forcefully to prevent recurrence of the shocking episode?"

Gardner added that "if politicians fail to understand that, we may see in 1974 the greatest overturn of incumbents in 40 years."

Testifying in support of public financing of federal elections, Gardner said "a very substantial portion of the American people are disgusted over what they have seen of Watergate, and indeed disgusted by the whole display of corruption in politics."

Gardner urged support for a system of public financing combining public funds with a limited number of additional, small private contributions. The system would apply to primaries and general elections for President, Senate and House.

"It is vital that the amount be sufficient to allow non-incumbents to present their point of view as against better known opponents," Gardner said.

Documents submitted by Common Cause, which calls itself a citizens' lobby, showed that 25 incumbent senators last year outspent challengers by $12,386,000 to $6,103,000.

"The tremendous financial imbalance of incumbents over challengers, regardless of party, raises grave doubts as to whether we presently have a competitive system of representation," Gardner said.

Beef prices in L.A. are steady

LOSANGELES (UPI) —Beef prices in Southern California chain stores have remained relatively steady since the government-imposed ceilings were lifted at midnight Sept. 9.

Spokesmen at Lucky Stores and Von's Grocery Co. said that the beef market appeared to be weakening and lower prices could result.

Ralph's, however, said it might be necessary to raise some beef prices later this week.

Safeway announced its beef prices were up an average of eight to 10 cents a pound.

BART to be in red $100 million in 5 years

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The newest and most modern of the nation's rapid transit systems faces a $100 million deficit in five years.

That was the report given this week by William Goelz, finance director for the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) district.

Goelz said the deficit was calculated as a result of BART's recently negotiated union contract and delays in providing service from Oakland to San Francisco via a tube under the bay.

Delays have plagued completion of the 75-mile long system, along with mechanical problems such as doors flying open at 80 miles per hour and malfunctions in an automatic train warning system to prevent collisions.

Last April, the five year deficit was estimated at $48 million.

Service to San Francisco was expected to begin from the East Bay this month, but the system's difficulties have postponed that opening until next year, which will cause a loss estimated at $13 million, Goelz said.

Labor costs will go up by at least $17.1 million more than originally planned because of the one-month strike by BART employes and resulting three-year contract, the director said.

Chile secretary nervous, calls for patrolmen

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The police department sent three patrolmen to the Chilean Consulate Tuesday after receiving a call for special protection in the wake of the military coup in Santiago.

But when the pollice arrived, Consul-General Alberto, Yoacham wanted to know what the excitement was all about. "I didn't ask for protection," he said.

The officers said they learned a nervous secretary acted on her own initiative

Says it's directed at environmentalists

EPA chief accuses industry of fear campaign

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In his strongest statement on the subject since he took over as head of the Environmental Protection Agency, Russell E. Train has accused industry of waging a well-organized fear campaign to discredit environmentalists and weaken antipollution laws.

"The public should be alert to this campaign and recognize it for what it is—simply an effort to slow down or avoid getting on with the job of cleaning up pollution," Train said.

During a speech at the National Press Club, Train said certain unspecified advertisements had given him the "very strong impression that there is a well-organized campaign afoot to propagandize the public into believing that our environmental concerns have been overstated and oversold and are the cause of major economic and energy problems."

He did not give examples, but it was learned that at least two ads in particular raised Train's ire, and he ripped them from the magazines he was reading.

One was from an engineering firm. It depicted a man prepared to watch a televised football game interrupted by a power blackout. The man's wife is in the room with a candle reminding the disappointed fan that the whole thing wouldn't have happened if environmentalists hadn't blocked construction of a nearby power plant.

The second, from a steel company, states that coal is the most dependable power resource, that strip mining is the best way to get at it, and that state laws offer adequate controls while new federal regulations in the area are unnecessary.

Congress is nearing completion of work on a strip mining bill.

Train said he did not believe environmentalists were a major factor in preventing power plants from being built. He renewed the administration's request for passage of legislation to control power plant citing.

Train predicted there will be a "major assault" on the Clean Air Act of 1970—the legislation under which transportation controls and gas rationing have been proposed to improve air quality in the nation's big cities.

He said legislative action may be needed to give his agency "greater flexibility" to modify these transportation controls where they would cause "unacceptable economic and social disruptions."

Friend of ours is looking forward to Thanksgiving and a one-horse open — local golf tourney, that is.

Amendment is key should Agnew resign

WASHINGTON UPI) —The report that Spiro T. Agnew is considering resigning as vice president has stirred new interest in the 25th and last amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Ratified in 1967, the amendment would be invoked for the first time should Agnew step down.

The section that would apply says "whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who will take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both Houses of Congress."

The thinking behind the amendment had nothing to do with the possibility that at some future time a vice president would voluntarily leave his office.

Instead, it was prompted by the assassination of President John F. Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, and designed to make certain the office would not be left vacant as it was from Kennedy's death until Jan. 20, 1965, while President Lyndon B. Johnson served the rest of Kennedy's term.

A second part of the amendment, which was partly triggered by President Dwight D. Eisenhower's heart attack and other illnesses, set up procedures for the vice president to take over as acting president should the president become unable to carry out his duties.

However, the amendment doesn't say how quickly a vice pesidential vacancy should be filled or whether congressional hearings should be held.

Should the congressional leadership decide that the writers of the amendment intended hearings, they would be held by the Judiciary Committee in the House and by either the Judiciary or Rules Committee in the Senate.

The question of jurisdiction in the Senate arises decause the Judiciary Committee deals with constitutional issues and the Rules Committee with the question of succession.

If Agnew resigns, Speaker Carl Albert would be next in line of succession should something happen to President Nixon in the period before Congress confirms a new vice president.

Milk subsidy cuts are not illegal--Butz

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz Wednesday denied his department has broken the law by cutting off special milk subsidies in schools which operate government-subsidized breakfast and lunch programs.

The program last year was available to all schools, and $97 million was spent to subsidize sales of 2.5 billion half pints of milk to children. Current plans for this school year call for spending $25 million to subsidize sales of 812 million half pints, with the program limited to schools which have no regular lunch or breakfast service.

In schools which have regular food service, Butz pointed out, a half pint of milk is served as an integral part of each meal. The "special" milk subsidy program underwrites cut-rate sales of extra milk—a second or third serving for a child who has already had one half-pint with lunch, or a low-cost recess drink or supplement to a bag lunch.

Butz, in a letter to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who raised the charge of unlawful action, said the regulation governing the special program requires the Agriculture Department to administer it in the same way it was run in 1969 "to the maximum extent practicable."

Restricting the program to schools without regular lunch service complies with the wording of the law because "conditions have changed since 1969 and the actions we are taking are practical," Butz added.

Peron poll gives him 2/3 vote

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan Peron's own opinion poll predicts the former Agentine leader will get nearly two thirds of the vote next Sunday in special elections for the presidency.

The poll published Tuesday said voters would give Peron 64.5 per cent of the vote and 33 per cent would go to three other candidates. It said 2.5 per cent of those asked had not made up their mind.

The poll was conducted by the Justicialist Doctrine Institute, a branch of Peron's political movement, and was based on interviews with 427,789 people.

One of Peron's presidential opponents, however, said Monday he expected the election to end without a decisive majority, forcing a runoff.

"I believe there is a notable cross-over of voters which will mean the need for a second round," said Ricardo Balbin, head of the Radical party.

Peron's poll, however, reinforced predictions of most political observers, who viewed Peron's return to power as a near certainty.

Peron, 77, who served as president from 1946 until being ousted in a 1955 military coup, ended 18 years of exile in Spain last July and returned to Argentina.

From his home in exile outside Madrid, Peron engineered Hector J. Campora's victorious presidential race last March against the same opponents running in Sunday's special vote.

Campora resigned during the summer, saying he wanted Peron to run the government, and interim President Raul Lastiri called the new election.

Peron has not left his villa for the campaign trail, saying, "What are we going to campaign for if everything is going so well?"

Sparing rod no spoiler, suit charges

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Spanking schoolchildren is unconstitutional, a federal suit charges.

The suit, filed by the Ohio American Civil Liberties Union Foundation in U.S. DIstrict Court charged that the infliction of physical punishment on students by school teachers, including spanking in the lower grades, is unconstitutional except in self-defense.

The foundation, affiliated with but separate from, the Ohio American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), filed suit on behalf of 13-year-old Linda Gail Sims of Springfield, charging the girl was "manhandled" by two junior high school officials last May.

Named as defendants were William Waln, principal, and Max Landers, assistant principal, at Schaeffer Junior High in Springfield.

The suit charges Waln and Landers with subjecting Linda "to physical and mental abuse by manhandling her in an effort to inflict corporal punishment upon her."

Onio ACLU Executive Director Benson A. Wolman said the suit alleges that the infliction of physical punishment by school officials on students is a "cruel and unusual punishment" and a denial of due process, both in violation of the Constitution.

In the Sims case, Wolman said, "there has also been a denial of equal protection of the laws ... by an intentional practice of discriminatory use of corporal punishment against black students solely on the basis of their race."

The suit alleges violations of federal civil rights statutes and seeks $20,000 in "actual damages and such punitive damages the court deems just and proper."

The ACLU foundation asked for a court order against "the use of physical force on school children by school teachers, principals or administrators, other than as a bona fide method of self-defense or defense of others or property."

Chinoan wins butter battle first time out

POMONA — The leader of demonstrations for the Chino Busy Farmers 4-H Club thumped her way to victory and a large blue ribbon Wednesday in the annual butter-churning contest at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Mrs. Judy Abarcherli, mother of six, was one of the first to churn her half-gallon of cream to the right consistency from which she could form a winning pound and a half of quality butter.

The contest was the first at the fair for Mrs. Abacherli who said, "My husband Louie told me not to enter unless I was going to win."

"He'll be pleased and my daughters will bake homemade bread and spread it with butter, and we'll celebrate," she commented.

Mrs. Abacherli was happy to tell about other blue ribbon wearers in the family. Daughter Lucy, 17, saw her goat named grand champion in the 4-H fair this week. The goat that came in second belonged to sister Linda, 14.

Linda raises dairy cattle as well as goats. Her dairy goat was named grand champion at the Victorville fair this year.

Lisa, 13, also raises dairy cattle and goats.

Leon, 11, raises chickens and goats, and Frances, 9, follows in the footsteps of her older brother.

The only member of the Abacherli not a member of the Chino Busy Farmers is Joe, 16, a 180-pound tackle at Chino High. Leon wants to play football like his big brother.

Twelve churners from as far away as Long Beach and Rosemead entered the contest, and judges Paul Virgin, Harold Jackson, John McCredy, Tim Todd, and Dick Foellmer rated the entrants on how long it took to finish churning, and the finished butter as to body, texture and appearance.

Larry Bentley, in charge of quality control for Altadena Dairy, coordinated the contest and was assisted by his wife. Bentley interviewed each contestant as they huffed and puffed to the thump-thump-thump of the poles.

Bentley pointed out different techniques used by the contestants, such as perennial entrant Joe Mangrich, 3072 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, who was the first to complete his churning, and was awarded second place.

Mangrich, wearing a farmer outfit, with a long straw in his mouth, kneels and sometimes lies down while he churns.

Third spot went to Manuel Contreras, a draftsman from Monterrey Park, who wanted to show his wife Lynn how it was done. Mrs. Contreras finished third three years ago.

Others in order of points awarded were Lena Briano, 7687 Chino Ave., Ontario; Darle Brodie, 18002 Los Oakacuis Road, Rowland Heights; Ruth Lucas, 2486 Leebee St., Pomona; Erika Von Euw, 6745 Schaffer St., Chino; Helen Anton, Huntington Park; Carolee Hiles, Glendale; Micheline Rissler, Covina; Bernadette Huffing, Rosemead; and Harry Ruffridge, 83, of Long Beach.

HOW TO MAKE BUTTER

Mrs. Judy Abacherli of Chino entered her first Los Angeles County Fair butter-churning competition Wednesday and judges awarded her a big blue ribbon, emblematic of the champion. Showing off individual techniques in churning are, from left, Mrs. Abacherli; Mrs. Lena Briano of Ontario who took fourth; and a nonchalant Joe Mangrich of Pomona, who was runner-up. The annual contest in Judging Ring No. 2 attracted more than 400 persons who enjoyed the program.

More than 300 sets of twins competed for division honors.

WINS STATE AWARD

Robert C. Speakman, left, industrial arts teacher at Simons Junior High School, Pomona, admires Danish modern mahogany coffee table made by student Ted Kahn, 14, which won a superior award and $50 in state competition and now is on display at the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona. Kahn, a ninth grader this year, made the table last year as a family gift. He spent a month hand-rubbing the finish. Speakman said Kahn completed in 12 weeks what most students complete in 24 in woodshop.

Kahn's award came through the Southern California Regional Industrial Arts program, conducted by the California State Department of Education and the Los Angeles County Fair. Fair closes Sept. 30.

UCLA Law School

Pomona lawyer, ecology suit winner, named No. 1 alumnus

POMONA — Pomona attorney John C. McCarthy, who has gained prominence for his fight for land conservation, has been named 1973 Alumnus of the Year by the UCLA Law School.

The award was made at the recent convention of the California State Bar meeting at the Disneyland Hotel, at which McCarthy spoke.

He lauded the increasing participation of the people in land use decisions in their communites and recreation areas.

"The citizens who are actively responding to the challenge to do something about their environment represent the only hope that something, in fact, will be done to preserve it," he declared.

"They are becoming the necessary watchdogs to see that government and its countless agenices follow the new surge of environmental laws."

McCarthy, who was graduated from the UCLA Law School 21 years ago, attained national prominence last year when he successfully represented the Friends of Mammoth against the Mono County Board of Supervisors before the California Supreme Court.

As a result of that high court decision, public environemental impact reports are now required on private as well as public land use proposals which could significantly effect the environment.

McCarthy told the convention that impact reports must be thorough and objective. He also cautioned against the use of such reports for the wrong purposes, such as discrimination against low income or minority housing in a community.

McCarthy is a partner in the law firm of Young, Henrie and McCarthy. He resides in Claremont with his wife, Lori, and their three children.

Nixon tapes, what could they prove

There is something slightly unreal about this whole Watergate tapes business.

Seven judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia have proposed that President Nixon, "in the national interest" and to avoid a constitutional showdown over the issue, voluntarily submit portions of nine tape recordings of conversations between himself and key White House aides to Archibald Cox, the Justice Department's special Watergate investigator, and Prof. Charles Alan Wright, the President's lawyer.

This compromise would leave to the discretion of the President the deletion from the tapes of any material involving national security or dealing with the exercise of his constitutional duties as Chief Executive.

But if President Nixon were to release such edited tapes, how in the world would he be able to convince skeptical Americans that he had not also edited out Watergate-related portions that were damaging to him or his closest advisers — any more than he has been able to convince any great number of people that no such damaging evidence exists in the first place?

Even if he were to submit wholly unedited tapes, how would he prove they were unedited? The suspicion that he had edited them to his own advantage would still remain, despite the fact that he was always aware that his words were being recorded and certainly would not have implicated himself — again in the first place?

Only if President Nixon produced recordings which proved, the very worst about him would the skepticsbe satisfied, and that eventuality is scarcely conceivable.

It just seems as if the Watergate investigators in trying to unravel the truth about the dismal affair, have entangled themselves in a bunch of tapes which, under any circumstances, are unlikely to be of much value one way or the other.

Hating requires a scorecard

It was an amusing little news item about the Jewish talent agent in New York who posed as an Arab for a recent cover of Newsweek magazine for a story about the "Arab oil squeeze" because he couldn't find a real Arab.

It was amusing, and not a little poignant. You can't tell a Jew From an Arab just by looking. You can't tell whom to hate without a scorecard.

Both Jews and Arabs are members of the Semitic race, whatever "race" means — though it seems to mean a great deal to many people. Many Arabs are Israeli citizens, many Jews are citizens of Arab countries. Abraham is a revered figure in the Islamic religion as well as the Hebrew. Jerusalem is a holy city to both.

Then what is all the hatred about? Well, of course, it is about a great many things. The Newsweek cover merely illustrates the well-proved fact of history that some of the world's most bitter rivalries have been between peoples who have the most in common, whether it is race or religion or anything else.

Traffic safer, but not safer

The National Safety Council reports that the U.S. traffic death rate reached the lowest point in the nation's history during May, June and July.

NSC figures projected to the end of 1973 show a rate of 4.4 traffic deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles traveled. By comparison, the 1947 rate was 8.82 and the 1938 rate was 12.02 deaths per 100 million miles.

Yet here's the paradox: Because of the increase in the number of motor vehicles on the highways and the number of miles they are driven, even as the death rate goes down the absolute number of deaths continues to go up.

Traffic fatalities for the first six months of 1973 totaled 26,500 — the highest number ever recorded for the first half of any year in the history of the United States, says the council.

There's some bright news, however. During July, the last month for which figures are available, traffic deaths were 4 per cent below the July, 1972 figure.

Thoughts for today

Arms race not slowed down at all

WASHINGTON — Just before midnight on May 26, 1972, Richard Nixon and Leonid Brezhenev met in St. Vladimir Hall in the Kremlin to sign an agreement limiting offensive weapons. It was hailed around the world as the end of the cold war.

A year later, the two leaders signed another nuclear agreement in the White House. With their faces wreathed in smiles, they swore "to limit strategic offensive arms permanently" and they renounced any effort to "obtain unilateral advantage."

But behind the benign smiles, both sides have been building strategic weapons feverishly. The 1972 agreement froze the number of offensive strategic missiles to those in operation and under construction.

This would limit the Soviet Union to 1,618 intercontinental missiles and 950 submarine-launched missiles by 1977. The U.S. allotment would be 1,054 intercontinental missiles, 710 underseas missiles.

Catching up

Intelligence reports claim that the Soviet Union has already installed 1,527 intercontinental missiles and is rapidly catching up with the United States in missile-carrying submarines. But the United States even more rapidly is fitting its missiles with multiple warheads. While the President boasts about the Soviet-American arms accord, the United States is building an average of two strategic weapons a day through 1977.

The stark truth is that the celebrated SALT pact hasn't even slowed down the arms race. The full meaning of this has been lost upon the American people, perhaps because the concept of arms limitation is so complex. The President has added to the public bewilderment with his claim that the arms accord has ushered in an era of peace.

In simplest terms, more arms mean less money in the taxpayers' pockets and more danger of nuclear extinction. They are entitled to know, therefore, what the true nuclear figures are. These figures, known only to the top brass, show that in 1971 the United States had 4,600 nuclear warheads, the U.S.R. only 2,100. In 1972, the comparative figures were 5,888 and 2,200. In 1973, the year after the SALT agreement, the U.S. total leaped to 7,100 and the Soviet total stayed about 2,200.

By 1977, when the first five-year SALT accord ends, the United States will have 9,690 strategic weapons, enough destructive force to make the Soviet Union uninhabitable. The Soviets may have as many as 4,900 warheads if they are successful in developing operational multiple warheads. This would be quite enough to devastate the United States.

Just talk

These figures show clearly that both nations — the U.S.S.R., with 50 per cent more missiles but fewer warheads, and the United States, with triple the warheads but fewer missiles — have been building like crazy even as they have been talking together about peace.

The Center for Defense Information, run by retired Rear Adm. Gene LaRocque, gave us this chilling estimate: "If Congress provides the $1.7 billion for the Navy's Trident sub, $474 million for the Air Force's B-1 bomber and $765 million for the Air Force's Minuteman III MIRV missile, the United States could have 18,572 nuclear weapons by 1987."

Explained the bouncy little admiral: "There are numbers beyond which greater numbers become meaningless. After all, both sides have agreed not to build up real defenses against nuclear missiles. So since there are only a limited number of targets, deterrence requires only several hundred weapons, not several thousand."

Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, the Navy chief, who generally makes good sense, insists that to get fewer weapons, we must build more. The United States needs more nuclear arms as "bargaining chips," he explains, to force the Russians to agree to an arms reduction.

Same in Kremlin

Intelligence reports indicate that the Soviet military leaders are using similar arguments inside the Kremlin.

Our Pentagon sources say that the U.S. buildup has less to do with "bargaining chips" than with interservice rivalry. Both the Navy and Air Force want their own strategic nuclear weapons. A careful analysis of the Russian newspapers "Izvestia" and "Pravda" has convinced the Center for Defense Information that the same myopic rivalry exists in the Soviet military establishment.

Meanwhile, even a child with building blocks can see that stacking up blocks does not reduce them. The more nuclear "bargaining chips" that accumulate, the more difficult it will be to cut back.

Not long ago, President Nixon put it strongly when he said: "If there is a war between the Soviet Union and the United States, there will be no winners. There will be only losers. The Soviet Union knows that and we know that."

PAUL HARVEY

Next expose--labor leader's riches

According to Opinion Research, Inc., union members are becoming increasingly suspicious of their leaders. Of labor's rank and file, 69 per cent are dissatisfied with their own leadership, the research organization reports.

Much of that dissatisfaction has to be resentment of those union leaders known to be getting very fat. The next Watergate-type expose will reveal some union bosses have several incomes.

If you no longer hear labor's leaders accusing industry's leaders of making too much money, it's because some of labor's leaders are themselves now in the $200,000-a-year bracket — and "then some."

It's news when our nation's top labor leader, President George Meany of the AFL-CIO, gets his union salary increased to $75,000 a year — though several lesser officials of those unions are making three or four times that much!

Recently, The Wall Street Journal revealed that Bernard Rubin receives more than $1,000 a week as president of a labor union local in Miami Beach. He also receives about $22,000 a year as business manager of another local. As president of a district labor council he gets another $1,000 a week. And as a "special representative" of the parent union, he picks up another $100 a week.

His wife is executive secretary of one of his unions and secretary of his district council. His and her salaries bring the Rubin family income from labor's treasuries to about $130,000 a year.

I don't think I mentioned that from the dues of laborers he also gets a separate tax-free expense account of $1,000 a week! And Mr. Rubin says, "You'll find I'm not at all unusual in the labor movement."

My files indicate he's right. William Presser, Teamsters Union boss in Ohio, holds three union jobs. His son Jackie collects five paychecks from three different unions. Together, they take in $250,000 a year. In addition, they receive plush expense accounts and multiple retirement benefits.

The International Production Service and Sales Employees is a 20,000-member union in Brooklyn. Last year it took in $263,000 in dues. Of that, $211,000 went to officers' salaries. The president of that union, Irving Horowitz, taking income from the parent union and each of its five locals, got the baron's share.

Outsiders might wonder why union insiders, whose dues are thus diverted, don't raise a ruckus. How? To whom? Only when Opinion Research conducted its secret survey were union members willing to express their resentment. When the ratio of resentful rank and file reaches 69 per cent, the logical next reaction is bitterness and revolt.

Prisoners in South Vietnam

The Peace Committee of Claremont Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) opposes spending American tax dollars to support and increase the power of the South Vietnamese police forces.

The stories of torture, tiger cages, political repression are terribly true. Political prisoners are being reclassified as "common criminals" in order to keep them in jail. The Saigon government collects between 10 and 15 million dollars per year to maintain, train and strengthen their police. Recently, they have begun to install and operate a computer system designed to report on South Vietnamese citizens. We are paying for the police and that computer.

Last month the Pacific Yearly Meeting of Friends said: "The members of Pacific Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends are deeply concerned that many thousands of Vietnamese people remain imprisoned in South Vietnam because of their political beliefs.

We know that these people, imprisoned in violation of the terms of the 1973 Paris Peace Treaty are being starved, tortured and murdered, with the knowledge and support of the United States government. We believe that the United States government's concern that the terms of the peace agreement be upheld must involve it in actively seeking the release of these people. We strongly believe that the status of the prisoners must immediately be made a primary concern of the 4-Nation Supervisory Commission currently observing the ceasefire. We will ask our fellow citizens to work with us in urging our government to see that these people are set free."

We concur with this statement and ask that persons send letters to their Congressperson and to Sen. Alan Cranston in support of his stand against the spending of taxpayers money on such an inhumane and costly project. We also ask the people be aware that this week (16th to the 23rd) attention is being directed to the plight of the prisoners in South Vietnam. — James W. Weck, Clerk, Peace Committee of Claremont Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends.

Gossip for today

Robert Browning once wrote: "Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be."

"And you just better believe it! says a 98-year-old gal in Seattle, Washington. "That old poet really said a mouthful."

So now she plans to go all out in order to prove that Robert B. was right even if she has to go to court to do it. You see, she is a divorcee: "And what better way," she asked herself, "could there be for one to grow old gracefully and continue to enjoy the best things of life than to have one's alimony boosted from $166 to $750 a month?"

After hearing that bad news, her former spouse sadly shook his head and cackled: "Conniving old broads never die, they just live on and on and on in order to collect alimony and make certain that their ex-husband will go through Hell here on Earth as well as in the Hereafter. Phooey on Browning and all his crud about the beauties of old age. He never had a woman pursuing him for back alimony payments."

INSIDE REPORT

Cap's blooper with Soviets

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — An unwelcome incursion into foreign policy by Caspar W. (Cap) Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), ended up astounding White House and State Department officials and infuriating conservative Republicans in Congress.

Weinberger returned from a 16-day tour of health facilities in the Soviet Union and Poland just as Dr. Philip Handler, president of the National Academy of Sciences, was warning the Soviet Academy about harassment of physicist Andrei Sakharov. Government persecution, Handler warned, might lead American scientists to boycott joint U.S.-Soviet projects.

At a press conference the day after Handler's statement, Weinberger attacked — not the Russians but Handler, without checking either the White House or the State Department. "It is better to have dialogue than simply standing off firing brickbats through the daily press," the outspoken HEW chief said.

White House telephones started jangling angrily with complaints from Republican conservatives that the administration was condoning Soviet repression. White House and State Department officials were amazed by Weinberger. The Nixon administration line is to encourage U.S.-Soviet scientific cooperation but officially ignore criticism of Soviet repression that Handler and other private U.S. citizens are making rather than attack it as Weinberger did.

Nevertheless, both Republican and Democratic critics of President Nixon's detente believe Weinberger's blooper, while deviating from the administration line, underscored the administration's policy: tolerate anything inside Soviet borders in return for friendly U.S.-Soviet relations.

"Secretary Weinberger's statement is an example of just how low this administration will sink to produce a deal at any price with Moscow," Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, the leading Democratic critic of detente, told us.

The Percy phenomenon

Our scouting trips interviewing rank-and-file voters continue to show Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, whose chances for the Republican presidential nomination are regarded as close to zero by party regulars, running better than anybody else against Democratic Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

In two middle-class precincts of the San Fernando Valley in Los Angeles which President Nixon carried by over 60 per cent in 1972, there was not only anti-Nixon disaffection but an inclination to vote Democratic for President next time.

Out of 93 voters (who said they voted 3 to 2 for Mr. Nixon last year), Kennedy had a clear edge against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, John B. Connally and even California Gov. Ronald Reagan. The results: Agnew, 30; Kennedy, 51; undecided, 12. Reagan, 39; Kennedy, 47; undecided, 7. Connally, 36; Kennedy, 46; undecided, 11.

Only Percy, lesser known than the other three Republicans, ran better than Kennedy: Percy, 42; Kennedy, 36; undecided, 15.

This parallels results we obtained in a scouting trip six weeks ago in Jersy City, N.J. Apparently, hard-shell Republican voters are so anti-Kennedy they prefer any Republican—even liberal Chuck Percy. On the other hand, liberal Democrats with misgivings about Kennedy because of Chappaquiddick could never bring themselves to back Agnew, Connally or Reagan but find Percy entirely acceptable.

Mankiewicz out West

Frank Mankiewicz, a senior lieutenant in Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign, may end up working for the fastest anti-McGovern tongue in the West: Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco.

Alioto, running 20 percentage points behind California secretary of state Edmund G. Brown, Jr., for the 1974 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, wants Mankiewicz for a top staff job in his campaign. Surprisingly, Mankiewicz is expressing interest — once he finishes a book on Watergate — even though Alioto led the assault on McGovern in the 1972 California presidential primary. If Mankiewicz says yes, he will join Alioto in November.

La Verne general plan is coming under fire

By BOB NAGEY
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE — Objections are beginning to develop to two aspects of the proposed new general plan as recommended by the planning commission for approval by the City Council.

Property owners are lining up against a proposal that would lock their undeveloped lands into current agricultural zones north of Base Line Road.

And residents south of Arrow Highway are voicing disapproval of the plan that would place their area in an industrial zone. They prefer the more flexible present commercial-manufacturing zone.

These and other problems came to light this week when the council held its first public hearing on the 1973 amended general plan which has been the project of the commission and the planning department for nine months.

The hearings are expected to continue Oct. 1.

An open space proposal recommended by the Commission on Environmental Quality, providing that the council freeze about 200 acres of citrus land in the La Verne Heights area came under fire by builder Richard Lewis who said his company, Lewis Homes, now has 40 acres of such land in escrow at Base Line and Emerald Avenue, just outside the city.

He said that "to arbitrarily pick one area and say this is going to be open space seems very unjust to the property owner. It seems a shame to force someone to farm when it is no longer profitable."

But Robert Neher, chairman of the CEQ, contended that the choice was not arbitrary. It is quite essential that we intersperse green open space throughout the city and not just around the periphery, even though in some cases it might be considered a hardship," he declared.

However, Lewis won quick support from councilmen Frank Johnson and Dan Lopez who said they generally apposed interference by governmental agencies with an individual's right to develop his property.

"I just feel that any time a government agency restricts an owner from developing his property," Johnson said, "that agency should purchase that property."

As for the property below Arrow Highway, several residents and property owners said they preferred a commercial-manufacturing designation over the proposed industrial zone, because the former was more flexible.

Mayor Mike Morales deferred any action this week, saying that he wanted only to listen.

"Now, after hearing some of this stuff," he explained, "I'm going to spend the next two weeks looking at the properties in question. Then I'll be ready to do some talking."

L.V. display wins third in L.A. fair competition

LA VERNE — The La Verne display at the Los Angeles County Fair earned a third place ribbon in its category.

Featuring a 1915 Ford touring car it is surrounded by a wide variety of vegetables and fruits, all gathered from gardens and trees of local residents. An old orange box bearing a La Verne label holds oranges and rests on the back seat of the car. It was discovered by the designers of the exhibit, Eugene Allen and Fred Miller, by chance. Such boxes are collectors items today.

The car is one of the collection of R. J. Harris, owner of Liberty Ford in La Verne and president of the La Verne Chamber of Commerce. It and others of his collection have appeared in parades in La Verne and other cities. At the Fair, according to hosts at the exhibits, the Model T has drawn considerable interest.

La Verne has the longest record for exhibiting at the fair continuously. For many years the emphasis was on the citrus industry which encompassed nearly all of the business life in La Verne up until after World War II. Pictures taken of the displays of earlier days at the fair also show the great number of prizes won by packing houses for their individual racks of fruit.

In contrast now, those preparing displays for the fair must search throughout the community for fruits and vegetables to give the exhibit that "County Fair" flavor which fairgoers and officials expect.

Vegetables and fruits in the display were donated by residents from their gardens.

Those grown by Jon Milhon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Milhon, are displayed together in a unit. Bill Forbes was also a youthful contributor.

Other families included Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mattox, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Rabenau, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hollinger, Mr. and Mrs. La Vere Flora, Mr. and Mrs. David Wheeler, Dr. and Mrs. Lowell Brubaker, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Russi, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. Gwen Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Florentino Planta and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mueller.

Retired educator fair's Mr. Nimble Fingers

By GEORGE MACLAREN
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE — "Here is our answer to Women's Lib," quipped master of ceremonies Phil Arden Tuesday as he introduced Don G. Laughlin of La Verne, the first man ever to enter Nimble Fingers crocheting or knitting contest in the history of the Los Angtles County Fair at Pomona.

The 100 or so person seated in front of the entrants, laughed and applauded vigorously when Laughlin, needles in hand, rose and modestly accepted the plaudits.

Laughlin stood out conspiciously as he sat in the midst of the 11 women, most of them perennial contestants in the fair's fun affairs.

The former teacher and principal worked industriously in both contests, but he was no match for the most experienced needle wielders.

The same pattern is used each year in the crocheting and knitting events, and the women can hit a certain rhythm each year as they compete.

Laughlin finished ninth in the crocheting contest and was credited with six scallops. He took eighth in the knitting contest and came up with 4½ puffs.

Laughlin, 72, who lives at the Fountains Mobile Home Park with his wife, Matilda, explained that he learned tatting as a child, and that when he retired seven years ago he resumed the hobby.

Tatting still is popular with Laughlin, who took second both this year and last year at the fair with tatted lace doilies.

"I hate to sit around with nothing to do," he explained, and so he took up knitting and crocheting. "We don't watch television very much, but I can knit while I watch," he said.

Last year he knitted a two-piece woman's dress for his wife, entered in the home arts competition, and was rewarded with a blue ribbon.

He's also received a fifth place for his hairpin lace baby outfit, and fourth for a hairpin lace Afghan.

Laughlin taught school in Colorado, Idaho and the Hudson School District at La Puente. In Idaho, he taught arts and crafts for 10 years.

He said that Matilda was on hand at the fair when he competed and offered suggestions he might use when he gives it another try in the 1974 fair.

"I knew I wouldn't go far in the contest," he said, "but I considered it part of life's many adventures."

He said he didn't consider a contest of 15 minutes very long. "I learned a lot from watching the winners, and will try them next year when I enter. It's a lot of fun," he concluded.

Merely shifts burden

Demos call Reagan tax initiative cruel hoax

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California's leading Democrats attacked the Nov. 6 special tax initiative election today as a $20 million down payment" by taxpayers on Gov. Ronald Reagan's campaign for the presidency.

In a teelphone hookup among San Francisco, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., the Democrats said the tax initiative was "a cruel hoax" which would shift the burden of state government to local taxpayers, Republican and Democrat alike."

"The measure won't limit taxes," party chairman John L. Burton said. "It will shift them to the shoulders of the homeowner, the renter, the small businessman, the aged and the poor who can least afford them.'

He promised that the Democrats would "rally every county central committee, every volunteer organization and every precinct worker in the state' to defeat the tax measure.

Burton was joined in the telephone conference in Los Angeles by Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti and State Sen. George R. Moscone.

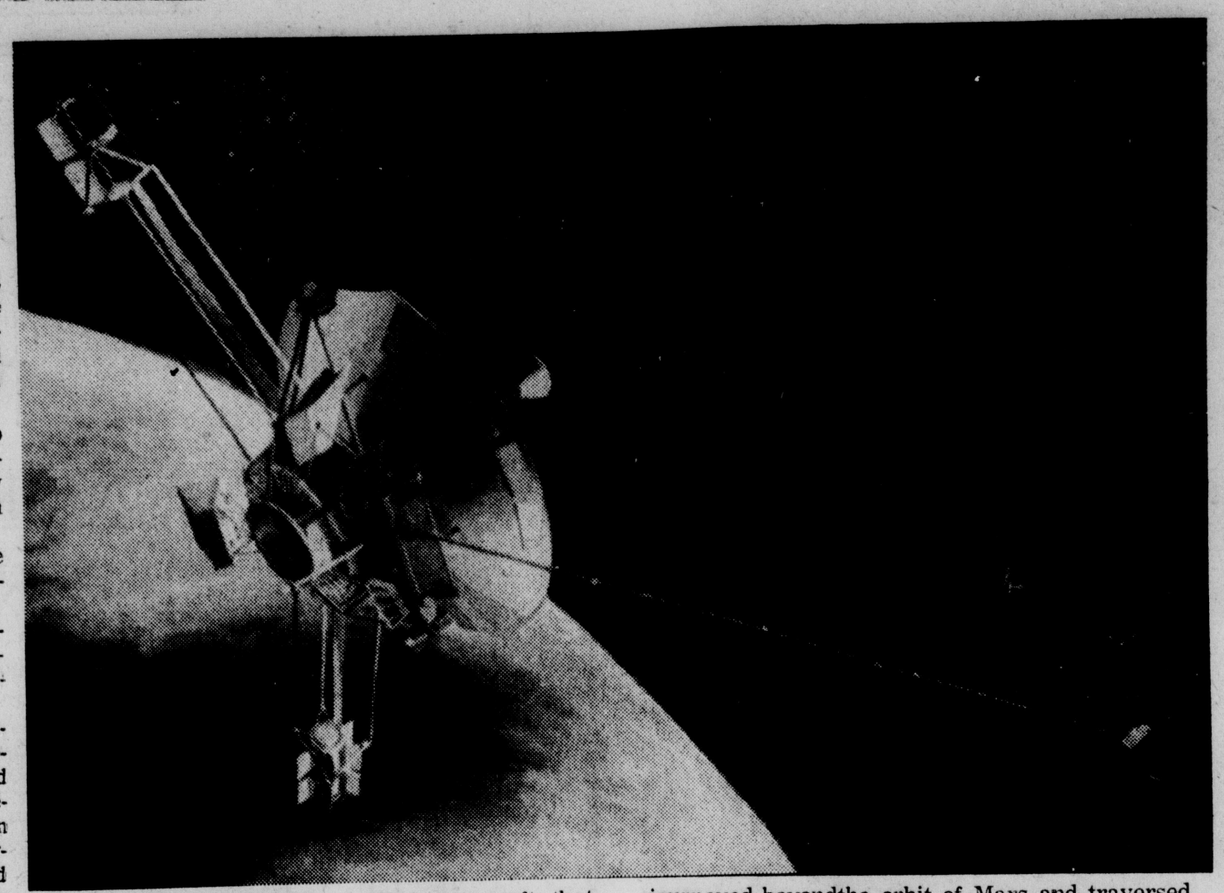
Speaking in San Francisco were that city's Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and University of California regent William Matson Roth.

Rep. Jerome L. Waldie joined the telephone conference from Washington, D. C.

All but Burton are contenders for California's Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year.

In a prepared statement issued in behalf of the Democratic Party, Burton said "The cost of the Nov. 6 special election is a $20 million down payment by all California taxpayers on Gov. Ronald Reagan's campaign for the U.S. presidency.

"If the state controller would take his partisan hat off," he said, "he'd bill the cost of that election to the treasurer of the Reagan for President Committee."



SPACE RECORDS DUE — The spacecraft that will give man his first closeup look at the planet Jupiter is breaking a lot of out-of-the-world records. When Pioneer 10 (shown in artists concept) swings by Jupiter Dec. 3, it will set a speed record of 82,000 m.p.h., will have traveled farther into space than any man-made object, will have journeyed beyondthe orbit of Mars and traversed the asteroid belt. Jupiter's gravityand orbital motion will hurl Pioneer 10 beyond the solar system toward the red star Aldebaran in the constellation Taurus. The craft will cross the orbit of Pluto, outermost of the Sun's 9 planets.

Rats eat you out of house and home

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Rudolph is constantly eating his way out of house and home. He has consumed, in the following order, his cardboard house, his aluminum house, his plastic cage. He is now in a steel cage which, so far at least, he seems reluctant to eat. I've been told his gnawing was because rats have to have something to chew on. This couldn't be the answer because he not only had things like carrots and hard biscuits but he also had pieces of wood and other hard things constantly available, too. Of course he has always been well fed. Can you think of any other reason why a rat would be so perverse? —I.G.

DEAR I.G: First, consider that a rat is an experimental eater. In other words, he will gnaw experimentally at anything available regardless of its food value. If there are no drastic consequences, say a stomach ache, the same material is likely to be gnawed again. This behavior is not as ridiculous as it at first appears. A rat, for example, might often starve if he were selective in his food habits, but by trying anything at hand (or tooth), he might just find something with enough food values to keep him goinng. This is one of the keys to the survival of this extremely rugged species. Second, Rudolph may be primarily interested in trying to chew his way out of his cage to freedom.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've had dogs since I was a girl but they were always females. Jimbo, here, is my first male dog. He does something which worries me. Every time I take him out for a walk he urinates all the time. I know when a human does this it is a sign of diabetes. Do you think I should have Jimbo's urine tested? —C G.

DEAR C.G.: Why not? If the doctor should find anything suspicious in the urine I'm sure he would want to run a blood test, too. I'm not suggesting Jimbo does have diabetes, however. The more male dogs you observe, the less unusual Jimbo's habit will seem. Male dogs utilize urine as a "marker" and the more markers they leave behind, the more successful they consider the trip. (The total amount of urine expended on such a tour may be surprisingly small.)

Chaffey grad wins Santa Monica chess

By EUGENE CABALO

Bill Richards, an 18-year-old graduate of Chaffey High in Ontario, won the "C" section of the recent Santa Monica tournament. For his performance of four wins and one draw, he received the first prize trophy and $125. The event was attended by over 2000 players from Southern California. One of his games is published below for the serious students of the game.

The Ontario Chess Club recently organized formally and adopted the official name, California Chess Foundation. Don Cotton of Ontario is the newly elected president, Gene Cabalo of Chino, vice-president, and Dane Hinrichsen of Cucamonga, secretary-treasurer. The club meets every Friday night at 7 p.m. at the Ontario Parks and Recreation Building at 217 S. Lemon St. For those who find it impossible to attend the Friday night meetings, The Pomona Valley Chess Club meets on Thursday nights at 7 at the Central Park on the corner of Third and Parcells in Pomona. Both clubs conduct continous tournaments with trophies and cash prizes.

The Ontario Club is currently having its first round robin tournament. In its major upset game, Phil Gatlin of Chino, a "D" player, at 1,336, defeated Dane Hinrichsen, a "B" player at 1635.

The club will start its new tournament Friday. It will be a Swiss system with six rounds and cash prizes will be awarded in different rating categories. All are invited to participate.

Senate moves toward pension reform

By Samuel Hastings-Black

WASHINGTON (NEA) — After several years of indecision and petty squabbling, Congress is finally on the verge of passing a major pension reform bill. This time the winner should be the American worker.

Despite enthusiasm for pension improvement last year, congressional action was scuttled by a judicial dispute between the Senate's Finance and Labor committees. Now that dispute has been settled, and from the full Senate debate which began Sept. 18, the outlines of the bill seem very promising.

Since half the workers in the United States are covered by congressionally regulated pension plans, the new bill — which is expected to get final approval from President Nixon — is likely to affect you or someone in your family.

WHO WILL BE ELIGIBLE?

At present, if your company has a tax-free pension plan, you may have to work many years before you can join. Under the proposed bill, you would be eligible at age 30, or after one year's work — whichever is later. (If your union has opted out of the company's plan, you will probably be joining your union's plan instead.)

HOW SECURE IS YOUR PENSION?

A major flaw in the pension system has been that some people have worked for years under a plan, only to learn that they have lost their benefits along the way. The new bill will change all that. In the future, if you're covered by a plan for five years, your employer's contributions will be "vested" in you. The new ruling is expected to ensure that 25 per cent of your employer's contributions will be nonforfeitable after five years, and 100 per cent after 10 years of work.

In other words, when you retire, you will not suddenly learn that your employer has spent your promised pension money on something else. If he has, he will be liable to criminal prosecution.

WHAT IF THE COMPANY GOES BANKRUPT?

If this happens, you might lose your job, which is bad enough. But it is worse to lose your savings, which is what pension contributions really are. This happens a lot nowadays. The new law will require employers to "fund" pension plans which means that your pension plans which means that your pension money will be deposited in an account which cannot be raided by management. This "funding" process will take many years. Meanwhile, the pension plans will be guaranteed by the federal government.

SUPPOSE YOU CHANGE JOBS?

Presently, if you work for a company and move to another, you could lose the pension you accumulated with your previous employer and start again from scratch at your new job. Many unions have solved this problem for their members by having only one plan, no matter where they work.

But for the non-union workers, or people who change unions, the new law provides the protection of "portability." When you leave a company, your rights in that company's plan are transported to a new government corporation. When you begin work for the new company, your accumulated pension rights go to the new company's plan and you pick up where you left off. This "portability" provision is one of the most radical improvements under the proposed bill.

THE LAWYERS' LOBBY

Law firms now often become "professional corporations" so that lawyers can get bigger pension benefits. In many cases, tax-free pension contributions can be $45,000 for one lawyer for one year. The Senate wanted to cut this figure to $7,500. Attorneys all over the country raised a war chest to lobby to keep the "lawyers' loophole," which raises everybody else's taxes by $125 million every year. Just before the debate began, the lawyers succeeded in forcing an exception to the loophole-closing proposal. But the House may try to put it back in.

Most of these proworker pension changes are not extremely radical. But they do build on aspects of the current law to substantially increase the security of a promised pension. And they make many more people eligible for this security.

Historic Culver City lot to be sold by MGM studio

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced plans Monday to sell its historic lot in Culver City, once the center of the largest empire in filmmaking.

MGM president James B. Aubrey said sale of the property would be part of the liquidation of some $50 million of the company's assets, including buildings and offices across the nation and overseas and company-owned theaters.

"Our new plan of operation is based on the realistic recognition that the motion picture industry has changed radically from the days when it was economically practical for every major movie company to maintain a large studio complex and a costly distribution ad marketing network throughout the world," Aubrey said.

Aubrey said MGM will now concentrate on making fewer but better and potentially more profitable feature films, on television series production and syndication, and on its diversification into other leisure and entertainment fields.

MGM's Grand Hotel is scheduled to open in Las Vegas this fall.

A company spokesman said MGM plans to intermittently release some films from its library of 1,400 feature-length movies, including "Gone With The Wind, for theater distribution and will sell exhibition rights of others for television.

MGM will also continue to operate its record subsidiary.

Aubrey said MGM will place increased emphasis on television production. The company currently has four television series on the air and 28 pilot programs in the developmental stage.

Closing of the Culver City lot by MGM will leave only four major studios in operation in metropolitan Los Angeles: Universal, Paramount, 20th Century Fox and the Burbank studios, operated jointly by Warner Brothers and Columbia.

Measure to support arts in state makes progress

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation increasing state support of the arts by $778,000 has advanced in the Assembly after receiving strong endorsement from Hollywood personalities Charlton Heston and Edie Adams.

The measure (SB121) by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, was approved by the Governmental Organization Committee Wednesday on an 8-0 vote and was sent to the Ways and Means Committee. There was no opposition.

The bill would provide the funds to the California Arts Commission for use in grants to local artists and art groups. The grants would made on a 2 for $1 match with funds put up by local arts organizations.

Gregorio said his measure would increase the state allocation to the commission from $250,000 a year to more than 1 million.

Heston, the actor who is a board member of the Screen Actors Guild, told the committee the bill would provide "solid state support behind the arts which has heretofore been lacking." He said California is "low ranking among the 50 states" in public financial support of the arts.

The Lighter Side

Grid ducats now losing their luster

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It turns out the pessimists who were lamenting that most of the steam had gone out of the drive for social reform in this country couldn't have been more wrong.

Last Sunday, in this and certain other cities, we saw dramatic proof that the American system can still respond with corrective action when injustices appear.

We saw the kindly hand of Uncle Sam reaching out and lifting the yoke of television blackouts from the necks of oppressed fans unable to get tickets to National Football League home games.

Cause for rejoicing

Enactment of the antiblackout legislation was more than a signal victory for the downtrodden masses of ticketless rooters. It was a cause for rejoicing for citizens everywhere who cherish civil rights.

To appreciate its significance one must understand that season tickets in cities where NFL games were sellouts had become symbolic of the class struggle in America.

You could see the poor devils on any given Sunday when the Washington Redskins were playing at home —miserable wretches huddled outside the gates of RFK Stadium, begging to buy extra tickets.

They were a pitiable sigh for they had noting to offer for the tickets except huge sums of devalued American currency. It was pathetic.

Pathetic and also disturbing to anyone willing to consider the broader implications. As Lincoln warned in another context, no nation can long endure half with tickets and half without.

Ignores threat

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle refused to recognize that revolt was fermenting. Told that some of the people were unable to buy tickets, Rozelle replied: "Well, let them watch volleyball."

Congress, fortunately, was more compassionate and lifted the blackout before the mobs began forming.

Rozelle claimed that telecasting home games would cause stadium attendance to drop, his explanation being that many fans prefer to watch football on the tube.

It is more likely, however, that attendance will drop for another reason, namely the loss of the aura of exclusiveness that comes with belonging to the ticketed elite.

By enabling the ticketless rabble to see home games on television, Congress has stripped pro football of much of its status symbolism and snob appeal.

"The biggest thrill in going to the games was the realization that you were part of a privileged few who could get seats," one ticket-holder told me.

"Now that just anyone can see a Redskin home game by merely turning on the TV, football isn't fun any longer."

I guess you can't blame season ticket-holders for being ticketed off about the sudden depreciation of their possessions. But in class warfare, someone always gets hurt.

NOW YOU CAN ESTIMATE HOW MANY MILES PER GALLON YOU CAN EXPECT. BEFORE YOU BUY.

You have a right to know. You know how much a car costs before you buy it.

Now you can get an idea of its fuel economy before you buy it, too. That's because we're going to post gas mileage figures for 1974 models.

The next best thing to guaranteed gas mileage. We can't guarantee how much gas mileage a car will get. No one can. Not even the government.

That's because the actual fuel economy depends on a lot of factors. Factors we have no control over. Factors like individual driving habits. Or maintenance condition of the car. Or how much optional equipment is on the car.

But we can do something almost as good.

U.S. Government figures. Figures by the Environmental Protection Agency. Figures that show the average fuel economy of cars as classified according to their weight category. Figures that show the range of difference between cars in each category. The highest mileage. And the lowest.

See the 1974 Toyotas next month. A car's fuel economy is as important as its price. We feel that you have a right to know both. Before you buy.

That's why, starting with our 1974 models, we're going to post both.

TOYOTA WILL POST GAS MILEAGE FIGURES FOR 1974.

Ex-POW gets

Golden Needle award

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —Lt. Col. John A. Dramesi has more awards than he can count. A little flag he secretly made from a blanket and towel threads, strips of red underwear and a piece of sweater hangs in a frame outside President Nixon's office in the White House.

The officer made the flag while a prisoner at the "Hanoi Hilton" in North Vietnam. He stitched it with a needle secretly made from a piece of copper wire.

The officer who made two escape attempts and was, he said in an interview, tortured until the brink of death, received another award Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Home Sewing Council in New York. You wonder why is he standing still for this one —the Golden Needle Award for public service? From a sewing council?

In an interview, Dramesi said he accepts selected awards of this sort for a threefold reason. He enumerated:

1. "When I came back quite a few people didn't know what happened."

2. "Everyone has a right to know how the officers reacted under the very difficult conditions in prison in North Vietnam."

3. "It is an opportunity to lift the prestige of the military in general in the eyes of the public."

Dramesi, who comes from Blackwood, N.J., now is attending the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, D.C. He was divorced while a prisoner and he may be the most famous prisoner. Because of the flag. Because of his two escape attempts.

The "Golden Needle" award honors Dramesi for "rare courage and ingenuity as exemplified by the secret sewing of the flag while a prisoner at the Hanoi Hilton."

The goldplate on the frame holding the flag reads:

"This flag was made by Lt. Col. John A. Dramesi while a prisoner of war 2 April 1967—4 March 1973 in North Vietnam. It was presented to President Richard M. Nixon on 25 May 1973 as a symbol of the honor and gratitude with which the prisoners of war returned to the United States of America."

Dramesi wears American flag cufflinks given him by the President.

The flag, as such, was a kind of light at the end of a tunnel while he was a prisoner. The flag in the frame is the second one he made. The first he fashioned on brown paper while in solitary confinement for a year after his second escape attempt. He made red paint out of brick dust and water. He used a disinfectant for the blue and chalk for the white. He was found out and tortured.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Social value in ritual

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband is a brave man in many ways, but when it comes to visiting anyone in a hospital or even anyone who's sick, he's a terrible coward. Many of our friends have been hurt because he ignores them when they are in real need. His favorite uncle died a short time ago and he refused to go to the funeral, because he says he doesn't believe in any of this kind of formal thing. I'm sure if I died tomorrow, he wouldn't go to my funeral.—R.F.

Dear R.F.: Only a most unusual person would actually enjoy going to a funeral. Most people go to show their sympathy for those who are in mourning. Fear of funerals is rally a fear of one's own death, for funerals remind us of the temporary quality of life.

Your husband's refusal to visit friends who are ill is, no doubt, the result of the same inability to separate himself from the person who is ill. He sees others ill when he visits a hospital and it frightens him and makes him feel insecure about his own state of health.

Although we all feel this to a certain degree, your husband's attitude shows that he has been unable to maturely come to terms with life and death. Many people never gain maturity in this area because they cannot lose their childhood feelings of omnipotence. They need to feel that they are in total control of their destiny and when they are reminded by death or illness that they are not, they become severely shaken and actually suffer a kind of ego damage.

Actually, though funerals may seem barbaric to some, they have a very deep psychological function. They help people to work through their feelings of grief in the company of others who reassure the grieving individuals and give them support. Funerals serve as a relief from tension and stress. Like other rituals that are celebrated, they help bring people into contact with a group who are sharing the same experince. Most rituals are uniting forces that reassure the individual and give sense of belonging by joining

Some of the feeling of alienation that is so current today results from a lack of ritual in the lives of many Americans. Some young people are trying to gain a ner fear. If he does not atreligious movements or communes.

It might be well to suggest to your husband that some of his failure to cope with the ill, and to cope with death itself, comes from his own inner fear. If he does not attempt to solve these problems and overcome some of his fears, he may find that they cause him needless pain and anxiety in later years. He is definitely overreacting and it is important for him to get at the real source of his feelings.

LET'S ASK THE COOK
by Nan Wiley

Unless you had a better and earlier growing season than we did in the midwest you haven't had zucchinis in the garden until about now so I know I am in time with Susann Johnston's zucchini relish.

It is very different from any relish I have tasted. She gave me some from last year's batch and we found it truly delightful, not too tart, not too sweet, not hot at all. It is wonderful with any kind of meat and for sandwiches.

She and her next door neighbor, Emma Johnston (no relation) made a double batch together, they had to mix it in a wash tub so, even for a single batch, you'd better use a sizable kettle. Often I use my largest roaster for something like that or possibly my biggest pressure canner without the lid.

You will need 12 cups sliced zucchini, ground; 4 cups sliced onion, ground; 5 tablespoons salt; 2½ cups vinegar; 6 cups sugar; 1 tablespoon dry mustard; ¾ teaspoon nutmeg; ¾ tablespoon cornstarch; ¾ teaspoon tumeric; 1½ teaspoon celery seed; ½ teaspoon black pepper; 1 red bell pepper, and 1 green bell pepper, chopped or ground.

Put zucchini and onion slices through food grinder. Mix well with 5 tablespoons salt. Let stand overnight. Rinse with cold water, drain well in colander or sieve. In a large kettle mix vinegar, sugar, dry mustard, nutmeg, cornstarch, turmeric, celery seed and black pepper.

Cook until it starts to thicken. Then add ground vegetables, mix well. Cook slowly for 30 minutes. Can in hot sterilized jars at once.

If you had the foresight to plant lots of tomatoes this year pat yourself on the back, lose no time canning as much tomatoes, ketchup, etc. as you will need this winter. The word I get from all sources is that tomatoes will be in short supply unless commercial growers come through with a much larger crop than anticipated. This has not been the best of growing seasons anywhere. For that matter, can any produce you have grown or can buy reasonably at roadside stands or the pick-it-yourself places.

Earlier I enjoyed baby beets, purple beans and the first tomatoes from a patio bush just 18 inches high which knocked itself out with production. It scooped the neighborhood.

A garden is all toil and sweat, especially when it's 90 before noon, but a great satisfaction. Oops, I have to take back my first statement. My postman just brought me a sack full of beautiful zucchini squash. He's an early bird with his. Medium size turnips may also be used in place of the zucchini if they are not strong flavored.

Bread and butter zucchini pickles is just one of the recipes in Nan's booklet "Can Your Own Gourmet Winners." For your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Nan Wiley in care of Progress-Bulletin, Register and Tribune Syndicate, 715 Locust St., Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Paulin and Stromberg vows said

William Lee Paulin, son of Mrs. Eleanor Lee Paulin of Ontario and W. E. Paulin of Alta Loma, exchanged marriage vows with Sandra Lee Stromberg of Seattle at a ceremony in Seattle Magnolia Congregational Church recently.

The bride graduated from Sumner, Wash., High School and the University of Washington. She is employed in the executive offices of a Seattle department store.

Mrs. Paulin graduated from Chaffey High School in 1960 and from Chaffey College in 1962. He received a degree in engineering from the University of California, Berkeley. He is a professor in business education at the University of Washington while working on his doctorate in that field.

The bridegroom's mother attended the wedding as did his sister, Miss Carolyn Paulin of Springfield, Ohio, who was a bridesmaid.

An open house reception was held last week for the couple in the home of the bridegroom's mother in Ontario.

The couple honeymooned in Hawaii and are now living at 2032 Eastlake Ave., E., Seattle.

Some special gift

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I need some suggestions for suitable gifts for the following: a black boy of 8; a young man who will enter law school in the fall; a couple, both of whom are retiring at the age of 65 from busy professional lives.—Mrs. T. R., Fort Lauderdale, Fla."

For all three I suggest publications. For the little boy, the newly published Ebony, Jr!, an extension of the enormously successful Johnson Publishing Co.'s Ebony. This new magazine for children is black-oriented and valuable in training in comprehension, vocabulary building and preceptual exercises. It is an attractive fun-and-learning package. Subscription price for one year (10 issues) is $6. It is monthly through May and bi-monthly June through September. The address is 820 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605.

For the lawyer-to-be I suggest Juris Doctor, a magazine for the new lawyer. It is published monthly from October through May and bi-monthly June through September by MBA Communications, Inc., 555 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. Subscriptions are $8 per year ($5 per year for law students).

For the couple I suggest a membership in the American Assn. of Retired Persons, which includes a subscription of their magazine, Modern Maturity. The annual membership fee is $2 from AARP, Dept. A, 1225 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. People 55 or older are eligible, whether or not they are retired. Only one in the family needs to be a dues-paying member of the association. The benefits are very wide—insurance, travel and so on.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: You say patients should be 'restrained' in the matter of giving gifts to their doctors, that most doctors would prefer prompt payment of the bill and no gift.

"As the wife of a doctor, may I point out that nobody actually pays his doctor any more. The insurance companies do, especially in the case of a 'serious' operation. Therefore, your writer who wanted to give her doctor a gift is expressing a need to do something just a little bit more, even though she has no doubt paid handsomely to her insurance company over the years.

"If kept very, very simple, the doctor does appreciate a small gift (at least my husband does)—delectable Christmas cookies or home-cured pork chops are two we have received. One very dear lady tatted the edging around a handkerchief for me.

"Probably, since these gifts are oriented to our family or, in some case, to me, I am very appreciative. In our case, gifts are not too often given, but when they are we are delighted.—Mrs. N.A., Portland, Ore."

I know many doctors and their families, and this fact dictated the reply I gave. Many patients feel they must give gifts to their doctors. They have very little idea sometimes as to what is appropriate, and doctors are deluged with ties they can't wear, all kinds of decorative objects which don't fit in with their office or home decor and all manner of office furnishings, not always appropriate. I stand by my statement that the best thing is to pay the bill promptly. By no means are all doctors' bills paid by insurance of various kinds.

It is a great temptation for a patient, particularly a woman, to wish to give a gift to a doctor who cares for her and who has perhaps become a figure of parental authority. Of course, a good patient-doctor relationship should be more than a mere business transaction, but then a good doctor does usually give more where needed than is actually required of him, thus satisfying his own professional pride and human instincts. Patients respond to this emotionally, but they should not feel obligated to give gifts.

Certainly, the kind of small token gift you describe can cheer a busy doctor's life and often the life of the doctor's frequently lonely wife when the gift is sharable.

I would like to hear from other doctors' wives—and doctors of both sexes—on this subject.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: My little boy is pestering me to let a friend give him a baby skunk. Will our friends be chary of calling on us if we have such a pet?—Mrs. W.M., Farmington, Conn."

First and foremost, there are laws against the domestication of such wild animals. If you decide to have a pet skunk, the procedure is to get it from a skunk farm, usually via a pet shop.

Skunks evidently make charming pets, and for this purpose they are usually descented. The danger is that they might escape to the wild without this protection, which would be sad indeed.

I recently read a delightful and amusing book you should get for your son called "A Skunk in the House" by Constance Taber Colby (Lippincott, $4.95). After reading it, perhaps you and he will both decide that a pet skunk, charming or not is more trouble than he is worth.

I have come to know a baby raccoon, and he is a fastidious little fellow, very friendly and funny.

Public visits to Alcatraz

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — (NEA) — The Rock is beautiful.

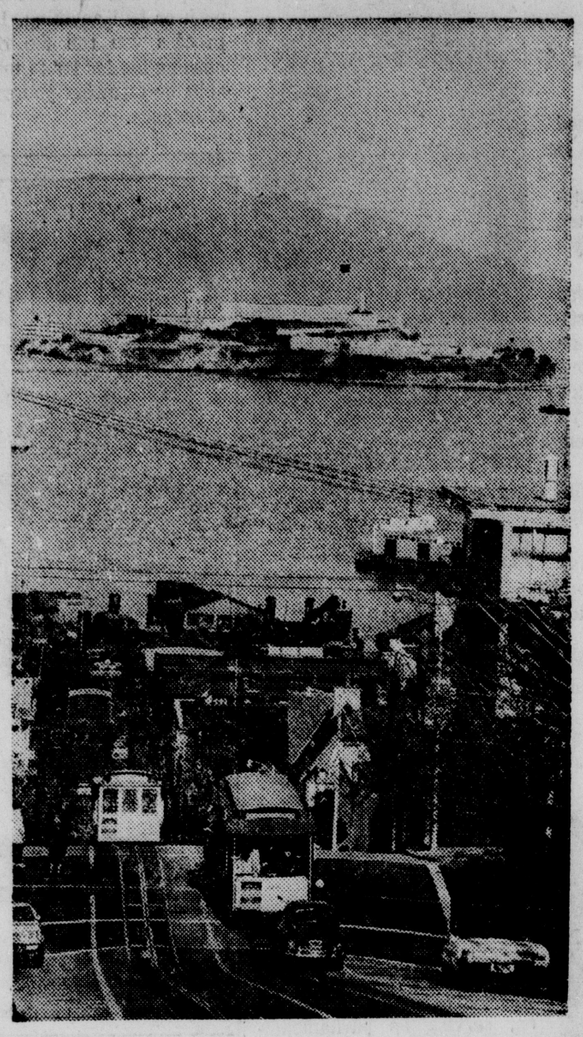
Maybe to Al (Scarface) Capone in his cramped stell cubicle, it wasn't. Or to Robert Stroud, the Birdman of Alcatraz, who alternated his life between tender ornithology and maniacal violence and had to be isolated from the rest of mankind. Or to Machine Gun Kelly, a murderous hoodlum.

To them, The Rock was despairing limbo.

But sitting in the middle of pristine San Francisco Bay, with its 360-degree sweep of the city, the Golden Gate straits, the rolling headlands of Marin and mountain backdrop of the East Bay, the island of Alcatraz offers superb and serene vista.

Yet it also enotes an eerie history of man's efforts to exact retribution from those who traduced the laws of society. Alcatraz has come to mean a barren, forsaken, impregnable spit of rock—the maximum security prison — though it served for only 29 years as the most isolated outpost of desperate criminals. (It had been a military prison for almost three-quarters of a century before that.)

The main cell block, which looms pastel-like on the escarpment like an Italian loggia, was built on the founation of an old Army fortress, and the old foundation is holding up better than the reinforced concrete walls whose iron rods are rusting from within.



Only One

On a summer day, when the fog has lifted off the bay and the shimmering white of the city stands in bold relief to the south, the 22-acre island is the target for a boat across the tide-ripped waters which made escape virtually impossible for the prisoners in their vast iron and concrete straitjacket. Only one man ever definitely made it, so exhausted he stumbled right back into the arms of the law.

The boat is an advance sortie for park and press people, since Alcatraz is still off limits for the curious.

This November, the general public will be able to visit the island for the first time since it was ceded by Mexico to the United States in 1848. It is now part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, and a quarter of a million visitors are expected annually from the San Francisco waterfront one-and-a-quarter miles away. The trip will cost about two dollars.

What they'll see is an anomalous mixture of decaying rubble and pastoral scenery, of desecration and destruction mingling with wild floral displays of lavender lippa, red fuchsia and orange nasturtium.

"At first," says Jerry Swofford, one of the National Park people leading the trek, "you couldn't walk through the place."

Morbid Place

There is a permeating morbidity to Alcatraz. And most of its focuses on the main cellbock where, down one long corridor, some of the most vicious lawbreakers in criminal history did time in their metal-jacketed 9' by 5' stalls with a cot, a lavatory and a toilet. Pink paint is flecking off the walls. Nicks can still be seen from the bullets which ricocheted in the Battle of '46, when three prisoners and two guards were slain in an attempted breakout. Somberness pervades the corridors, one of which leads to The Hole, where men in solitary were shuttered in complete darkness. And down below, in a big open shower room that looks like the gas chambers of Buchenwald, a guide says, "Two guys were murdered here."

Alcatraz was small. It never had more than 302 inmates at any one time. On March 21, 1963, the last of them, bound in waist chains, walked out forever—and maybe an era of unenlightened penology went with them.

Then six years later, in trapped the American Indians to claim the island for themselves, just as the Spanish had done two centuries ago when Juan Manuel de Ayala sailed into the Golden Gate in 1775 and called it Isla de los Alcatraces (Isle of the Pelicans). The Indians hung on grimly for 18 months and left their imprint. Gutted warden's quarters. Debris. Scattered shoes. Rags. Rooms full of old clothes. It was a hard place to live without heat or water (all fresh water must be transported from the mainland). On a corroding water tank they painted graffiti.

"Home of the Free . . . Welcome, Indian Land . . .'

Part of History

The graffiti will stay. "It's a part of history," says Swofford. The debris and decay will stay as is. It would cost $5 million to restore Alcatraz to a semblance of what it was. And they then would have just an outmoded prison.

Through the tangle of barbed wire, broken glass and crumbled concrete there is compensating beauty in magnificent views. From the shell where the warden once sat in his living room, a wide-angle bayscape. Through the slits of a peephole where Scarface once faced Mama Capone and communicated in Italian on a two-way telephone, the jagged teeth of the lilting San Francisco downtown skyline. Through the wavy glass block of the Birdman's cell, the Golden Gate bridge.

It's a measure of history that after more than a century of service as a place of entombment, the site can be enjoyed. The men who did time had an entirely different perspective.

Texas, Massachusetts races most costly in '72

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The $2.9 million Texas Senate race and a $514,112 House contest in Massachusetts were the most expensive congressional campaigns of 1972, according to official figures compiled by Common Cause.

Campaign finance reports brought together by the reformist citizens' lobby Thursday showed:

—Sen. John Tower spent $2.3 million and his Democratic opponent, Barefoot Sanders, spent $629,008 in the Texas campaign. Tower's winning effort was the largest outlay for any Senate candidate.

—Democrat John Kerry, former head of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, spent $279,746; winning Republican Paul Cronin spent $171,414, and Independent Rogers Durkin paid out $62,952, for a total of $514,112 in the 5th District of Massachusetts.

But Kerry's individual outlay was exceeded by Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., who spent $321,558 in a three-way race that was second highest in the country, with total spending of $506,946.

The Common Cause figures on primary and general election campaign spending by 106 Senate and 1,010 House candidates showed an average cost of slightly less than $1 million for Senate races where there was no incumbent and about $750,000 for those where a Senator was seeking re-election.

In the House, the 52 races in which no incumbent congressman was running cost about $175,000 on the average, while those in which a member of the House was opposed for reelection cost about $83,000.

Common Cause also cited figures showing that incombents raised nearly twice as much money as challengers. It said this advantage of incumbency showed the need for legislation, for which it is lobbying, to provide public funds for campaigns.

In the House the average Democratic incumbent raised $56,364, compared to $32,709 for his Republican challenger. The average GOP congressman seeking a new term took in $60,842 compared to $29,656 collected by his Democratic challenger In House districts without incumbents, Republicans and Democrats each were able to raise about $90,000.

In the Senate, the average incumbent of either party raised $525,809, while challengers took in $243,070. But in Senate races where there was no incumbent, the average Democrat collected $496,297 and the average Republican raised $465,264.

Museum to be built at La Brea tar pits

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The dreams of one of the original owners of the land surrounding the La Brea tar pits came true recently when the county Board of Supervisors approved a plan to build an archaeological museum on the site.

The board voted to accept the proposal by businessman George C. Page, who agreed to provide the nearly $2 million necessary to finance the museum through a foundation.

The 23-acre La Brea pits, known as the "world's most notorious death traps," have yielded the skeletal remains of a number of prehistoric animals such as saber-tooth cats and giant ground sloths.

The land was originally part of a 4,439-acre estate owned by Capt. G. Allan Hancock, which was sold to his father, Maj. Henry Hancock, for about $2.80 an acre in 1860. The acerage now comprises the center of the Wilshire District and remaining parcels go for $2,500 a front foot.

The younger Hancock built his home on what is now Wilshire Blvd. and shipped asphalt from the tar pits to San Francisco for use in street paving.

He amassed a fortune when he began selling parcels of the estate to developers. But he and his mother held on to the tar pits area, especially after a tooth from a saber-tooth cat was pulled from the pits in 1902.

Scientists began flocking to the area and Hancock and his mother dreamed of a museum to house the prehistoric remains. They donated the park to the county in 1916 with the stipulation that the major repository of remains from the tar pits be located in California.

Ed N. Harrison, chairman of the board of governors of the county's Natural History Museum, said an estimated "5,000 children per day will go through the new museum."

The principle of the rotary engine, now being used in some automobiles, was patented in 1769 by James Watt, the inventor of the steam engine.

HENRY KISSINGER

Kissinger's views on foreign policy

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry Kissinger is aware that what he calls "triangle diplomacy" involving the United States, the Soviet Union and mainland China is complex and certain to have its ups and downs in a hazardous world.

But he made it clear during three days of public testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he plans to continue, as secretary of state, essentially the same approach to Moscow and Peking which he has carried out as President Nixon's foreign policy adviser during the past four years.

The hearings were largely dominated by controversy over wiretaps, access to information, and the right of Congress to be consulted in advance of major foreign policy decisions.

A re-reading of his testimony, nevertheless, offers a broad if not detailed outline of his thinking on most foreign policy issues facing the United States today.

Asked whether he believed continued U.S. relations with the Republic of China on Taiwan was responsible for postponement of a trip he has scheduled to make to Peking, Kissinger replied:

"It is to be expected in a very complex situation with governments such as the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China, that are enormously suspicious of each other — where every time we make an agreement with one it raises doubts in the mind of the other, and where there is what has been described as triangle diplomacy which is a very complex matter —that there will be some ups and downs, all the more so since the internal dynamics of their systems are substantially out of our control.

"I do not believe that differences which may have existed with the People's Republic have much to do —or anything to do —with our policy toward Taiwan ... I do not believe that this (Taiwan) is a fundamental obstacle at this time to normalization of our relations."

While noting that "the United States stands always for human liberty, for individual rights, for freedom of movement and for freedom of the person," Kissinger argued against legal strictures which would make normalized U.S. trade a quid pro quo for a change in the Soviet Union's policy on civil rights and emigration of Jews and dissidents.

"The U.S. has to conduct foreign policy with many nations,' he said. " ... I do believe it is dangerous for us to make the domestic policy of countries around the world a direct objective of American foreign policy because then we would be stuck with protecting the consequences of what we have brought about ... We would tend to follow the consensus of humanity on these issues."

In answer to related question, he said: "Despite the inevitable sympathies produced by my origin for the plight of minority groups that are denied the right of full emigration, I cannot in good conscience recommend as a principle of American foreign policy that our entire foreign policy should be made dependent on that particular aspect of the domestic structure of the Soviet Union.

Arms limitation

Kissinger pledged himself to pursue a new arms limitation agreement "extremely actively."

"If the arms race is not checked ... the greater throw weight of the Soviet missiles can be translated either into more warheads or into warheads of greater yield, and then by the end of the 1970s or into the 1980s the Soviet Union could wind up with both more warheads and more destructive warheads ... If we don't stop the arms race now we are going to get into a whole new realm of technology in which it will be very difficult to put the genie back into the bottle."

Questioned on other matters, he had these observations:

United Nations —Kissinger said he believes it has an important role in providing the basis for a human society, in helping to solve or prevent disputes between small nations and in providing the international framework for needed worldwide environmental and food production programs. But he said the U.N. should not be expected to play much of a role in disputes between the great powers.

Indochina —"Our interest in Indochina is to see that the countries have a right to determine their own future." Asked if the United States intends to retain a residual force in Southeast Asia, he replied: "To the degree that the danger is reduced either through foreign policy or through the growth of indigenous strength, the presence of American forces becomes unnecessary. We do not have forces there for any abstract purposes of constituting a bridge into Asia."

Highest priority

Europe —"The so-called Year of Europe has remained the concentration and the very high priority —indeed the highest priority —of the administration." He also said, "There is change in economic relationships as between Europe and the United States from a position of American dominance to one where the Europeans are becoming more cohesive and more assertive." On American troops in Europe, he said: "We hope that substantial progress can be made during the course of the next year which will then produce some reduction of U. S. forces. We would be opposed to the unilateral reduction of U. S. forces in the absence of such an agreement."

Middle East —"The position of the United States with respect to the Middle East conflict has been that we cannot substitute for some form of negotiations between the parties; that we, on the other hand, would be prepared to be helpful in the two parties began some movement toward toward accommodation.

Latin America —"One of our first moves will be to try to strengthen our relationships with Latin America, and we would like to have this exchange of views with Latin America progress to a certain point before we can judge the views of other countries with respect to Cuba and also the attitude of Cuba toward its relationships in the hemisphere."

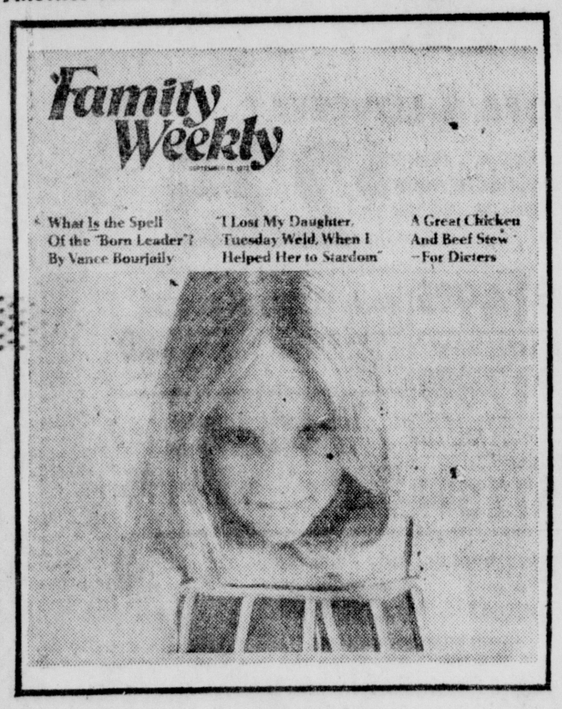
Another FAMILY WEEKLY Exclusive—September 23



Child Crises:

Which Ones Are Normal—Which Are Not?

"The child who puts on a cowboy suit for Halloween and can't stop being a cowboy for three weeks after Halloween is over may need help."

Thumb-sucking, bed-wetting, temper-tantrums . . . Is the child just going through a stage, or is there real cause for concern? In an essay written especially for Family Weekly, Grace W. Weinstein quotes valuable advice and suggests tested guidelines for parents who are anxious about some common childhood problems. In reporting the results of her in-depth investigations and interviews with child-development specialists, she offers some barometers of children's emotional needs and suggests means for recognizing abnormal patterns of behavior.

Art thievery increases as value of articles goes up

NEW YORK — NEA) — When Interpol's Robert Sojet sits down in his suburban Paris office and looks over his "most wanted" list, he is not studying a bunch of suspicious faces.

Instead he is going over the current listing of the 12 most wanted stolen works of art. It is part of his job as head of Interpol's Group C, which specializes in combatting art thievery.

"I think that there is no burglar specially trained for thefts of works of art," Sojet says. "It is only the fact that the value of those items has increased that pushes people to act in that way."

Whether they are motivated by appreciation of art or of its value, the world's art criminals are operating a multi-billion dollar underworld business.

Some recent examples:

In Italy, six painted panels by Venetian artist Lorenzo Lotto are stolen from a small country church by thieves who apparently hid in the church before it closed for the night, then worked undisturbed.

In India, a respected Indian newspaper charges that 80 tons of antique sculptures have been illegally exported to the United States under shipping labels that read "agricultural equipment." The Indian minister for education and culture says customs officials have been unable to trace the shipment.

In Egypt, the government wants to rebuild a small village on the Nile but finds the inhabitants refuse to move. They are puzzled until they discover that the village was built on top of ancient Egyptian tombs, which the villagers were profitably looting through shafts sunk from their own houses. (Grave robbing in Egypt is as old as the pyramids themselves. In many cases when a paricularly fine piece is found, the robbers keep it and use ancient materials to make skillful copies, which they sell to eager foreign collectors or museums.)

In Thailand, a collector finds it easy to get around a law prohibiting the export of prehistoric pottery from the North; he simply uses a few dollars to bribe a local government cultural representative and walks off with a fabulous assortment of prehistoric urns and vases.

Some art works and antiquities are too well known to be sold but that doesn't seem to inhibit the thieves.

"A thief, of course, can't expect to sell a Velasquez like he would sell a piece of cheese," Sojet says, "But the value of things which have not the renown of a Velasquez has been increasing too."

The focal point for all this artistic light fingering appears to be Italy, where more than 5,000 major art works disappeared in 1972 and where a Roman Catholic priest, a retired general and two high school teachers were among those arrested recently for trafficking in contraband art works.

A small proportion of the stolen objects are recovered by Italian police but most of them are believed to be shipped across the Atlantic to the United States via Switzerland, which has no inconvenient export laws governing antiques and works of art.

The Boston Museum last year returned to Italy a Raphael painting after learning it had been smuggled out but that kind of thing is the exception, as the controversy over the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art's Greek vase shows. Rodolpho Siviero, head of the Italian government commission that seeks to recover art works that have left the country illegally, describes the situation as "catastrophic."

Things are bad enough that the Vatican has given orders for tightened security — including electronic burglar alarms — around its most valuable works. But stopping the thefts and smuggling is complicated by Italy's multi-level police system and the fact that honest citizens who turn in archaeological finds usually are paid less than five per cent of what they could get on the open market.

Other countries have had mixed success trying to stop illicit art exporting.

Israel, for instance, allows foreigners to obtain licenses to export ancient artifacts but if someone shows up at the government antiquities department with an object that makes the curator's eyes light up, he simply offers to buy it for a competitive price. (Israel still has a law prohibiting Israelis from giving archaeological finds to foreigners as gifts, however.)

India has passed a new Antiquities and Art Treasures Act aimed primarily at foreign and Indian diplomats who have been carting artifacts off to profitable parts unknown.

Egypt, with more historic treasures than it knows what to do with, has been trying to sell some of its duplicates, though political considerations have kept this from working as well as it might.

Two countries that have nearly solved the art smuggling problem are China and Greece.

The Chinese government assembled everything it wanted from private collectors and dealers, who had no choice but to sell to Peking, which started rounding up its national collection soon after it took power in 1949. Tight controls remain.

The military dictatorship in Greece has instituted strict enforcement of laws against smuggling of antiquities and while some archaeologists are not convinced that the smuggling has been completely stopped, Athens art dealer Constantine Harikiakis, whose clients include Aristotle Onassis, says it is now almost impossible for art criminals to slip anything past the border.

It is just as well, he adds: "Otherwise by this time the Parthenon would have been transported elsewhere, piece by piece."

(This report was compiled from dispatches filed by the foreign correspondents of the Group W Westinghouse Broadcasting Company radio stations.)

Correctional officers back tax initiative

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Correctional Officers Association has formally endorsed Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax initiative which limits state spending.

"We believe those in the legislature who talk of wanting to increase wages and benefits for workers, but who at the same time create need for increased taxes, talk out of both sides of their mouths," declared Ken Brown, an association spokesman.

Reagan last year campaigned actively in the association's successful initiative campaign to reinstate the death penalty.

Opponents argue the Nov. 6 ballot initiative will hurt the incomes of state employes, including correctional officers, by placing a limit on state spending.

But Brown said, "It doesn't make much sense to, on one hand, work for increased wages to keep up with the soaring cost of living, while on the other hand have state government take the money back in the form of increased taxes."

Four bandits make one big mistake

[illegible] (UPI) — Four bandits held up two bank clerks at gunpoint recently and took the bags they were loading on an armored car, police said.

COPPER TUBES — Rows of copper tubing are being moved into position before being placed into refrigerators at the Westinghouse major appliance plant at Columbus, O. The copper tubing serves as a heat exchanger by transferring freon from the compressor to the evaporator.

U.S. balance of payments are narrowed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A key measure of the U. S. balance of payments position with foreign nations narrowed between April and June to the smallest deficit since late 1970, the Commerce Department reported.

The basic balance on current account and long-term capital was in deficit by $782 million in the second quarter, a $165 million improvement over the year's first quarter. The basic balance was closer to a surplus than in any quarter since the third quarter of 1970 when the deficit stood at $356 million.

Short-term capital flows, which often reflect turmoil in international money markets and the activities of currency specultors, are excluded from the basic balance. Thus, this account is considered the best measure of the United States' trade and financial dealings with its commercial allies.

The department said the improvement was due chiefly to a $900 million net slowdown in investment by American companies overseas, a $320 million advance payment by Japan for enriched uranium and a favorable shift in the merchandise trade balance reported previously.

These factors more than offset a $1.2 billion reduction in foreign purchases of U. S. equity securities.

Decline of Spanish empire evident at new incosol

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

Marbella, Spain—Seriously challenged only by Spain three centuries ago, for almost nine hundred years, until 1914, England ran the world.

British historian, George Bilainkin, five years ago wrote a book, "Why France Fell—Four Guilty Britons" holding them responsible for the 1940 fall of France and final destruction of the British Empire. He blames the Duke of Windsor while he was King Edward VIII of England); Neville Chamberlain, Britain's Prime Minister at the outbreak of World War Two; Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary at the time and Lord Butler, undersecretary at the foreign office. Supposedly the British government decided in 1971 not to release state papers dealing with the story after the normal 30 years restriction, but to keep them secret for 100 years. Only time will tell.

The decline of the Spanish world empire cannot be quite so neatly cataloged. And while it is always presumptuous to indict a whole people based on the actions of a few, it becomes apparent that if the ancestors of today's operating technicians carried on under King Phillip as their descendants are in 1973, its small wonder that the Spanish empire is memorialized only by the language spoken in Latin America and the Carribean.

A charming people, courteous, friendly, helpful and hard working, but completely incompetent to operate the fantastic creation on the sun coast known as the Instituto Medico del Sol-Incosol, for quick identification.

The Marques de Villaverde is president of the institute, Spanish banker Alfonso Furro with his private bank in Madrid and financier Ifracio Coca are among the principals in this medical vacation clinic. Unlike in the United States, no government money has been used to provide Marbella with the only hospital for miles around.

With less than 50 of the 400 beds occupied obvious financial problems are apparent. Equipment for every type of bath and water therapy has been installed, and staffed by experts brought from Helsinki. Everything was technically ready for the Easter opening—except there was no hot water.

Dental chairs and equipment occupy one wing of the clinic—but there is no dentist. Complete beauty and barber equipment facilities are also available—but no barber.

There have been three changes in administrative heads in as many months. Obviously somebody is trying desperately to make a success of the $12 million investment that at the moment can deliver only the climate and view, a very small portion of the marvels promised in a colorful twenty page brochure.

Dr. Auguste C. Gianoli has been billed as one of the esoteric drawing cards of the new complex Fiftyish, he maintains a residence in Berne, Switzerland, and calls his specialty "geriatrics." Gianoli's field is cell revitalization. The treatment is accomplished through a one-week cell injection program. The cells from unborn lambs are frozen and dried in a process called "lyophilzation" to preserve them. The cost of the one week revitalization treatment, including the necessary pre-treatment physical examinations together with room and meals runs in excess of $2,000. Hardly a popularly priced boone to the old folks.

Results are apparent only after a delayed period of time—and the doctor recommends they be repeated annually.

"When she came to me a few years ago" the doctor said, describing one of his patients." Sre apparently had no energy and spent most of her days in bed. Now she's a new person because of the cell therapy treatments."

The dining room—with the staff out numbering the quiet diners two to one—has the right spooky sort of atmosphere one associates with a witch doctor.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A situation you'll find yourself in today looks profitable, provided you exclude another who has nothing to contribute.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before you put too much time and energy into today's projects, be sure they're feasible and necessary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Now that you've managed to get a little money ahead, be careful. Don't fritter it away on something useless.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will spend more time today than you should on outside interests. Something to be done at home will be neglected.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) in the back of your mind you think you have a solution to a problem. When your ideas are tested, however, they won't work.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A friend has something she wants you to get involved in. You'll find it will cost money as well as time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will deprive yourself of achieving something today because you will change you mind at the last minute. Be steadfast.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone will pretend they are in accord with your ideas today. Then they will quietly do things differently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be disappointed because something expected from another will not come through. Give him more time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you need advice today don't go to too many people. It will only make your decision more difficult.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Instead of doing what you should be doing, you're likely to be thinking more of tomorrow's needs. Both will suffer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be on guard today. Don't read more into a relationship than exists. If you do, frustration is likely, as well as jealousy.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
September 20

Many new interests will capture your imagination this year. Some offer splendid opportunities. Others must be analyzed very objectively.

The doctor comments

What happens when thyroid is enlarged?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you please tell me what "toxic goiter" means? I am not sure that this is what I have, but I am going in for tests soon. I don't know anything about the thyroid. Does this condition always require an operation? I have heard of so many women who are taking thyroid pills and they take them regularly. They tell me that I can't stay on my pills indefinitely. I am taking Tapazole.

Dear Reader — The term goiter means a growth of, or increased size of, the thyroid. It can be caused in many different ways. Commonly it is caused by an accumulation within the gland of the material that the thyroid produces. The goiter may not cause any disturbance in the function of the thyroid in many individuals. It may gradually increase in size in time, and eventually become so large that for various reasons the patient may wish to have it removed. These goiters can result from iodine deficiency, a problem that's less likely to occur in our modern society. society.

Some goiters are associated with overactivity of the thyroid gland, producing an excess amount of thyroid hormone. You can have an overactive thyroid without a goiter. The result is the same. Too much thyroid hormone stimulates the cells to burn food more rapidly than usual. This requires more oxygen to metabolize the food. The heart has to work harder to deliver the oxygen, which results in a fast heart rate.

Since the food is burned rapidly, such individuals commonly eat lots of food without getting fat. The hair is fine, there may be a moist, sweaty skin and excess nervousness. Often these individuals have overactive bowels, and, in general, all of their functions are speeded up. It can also be associated with excessive emotion lability, and, in it's extreme form, can be associated with severe mental problems. These problems are usually corrected as soon as the thyroid condition is normalized.

An overactive thyroid does not always require an operation. The medicine you are taking is meant to slow down your overactive thyroid This protects you against some of the problems I just mentioned. It has some side effects, and, for this reason, doctors like to determine just how much a person should take. Often, if there is an overactive thyroid with the goiter, doctors feel that surgery is indicated. This removes part of the overactive tissue and helps to relieve the condition. Each case has to be reviewed on its own merits to decide what's to be done in this regard.

The kind of thyroid that most people take is replacement of the thyroid gland's normal hormone, presumably for an underactive thyroid or hypothyroidism. I suspect that many people taking thyroid don't need it. This is a natural outcome of two human traits. People who have a variety of vague symptoms like to feel that something is being done about their problem.

Quite humanly, doctors like to feel that they are doing something for their patients and feel an urge to do something, even if nothing is required. This means that some doctors are prone to prescribe pills because of the compulsion to do something for their patients (none of these remarks apply to your case which is entirely different).

Fortunately small doses of thyroid tablet are not usually harmful in people with normal thyroid function. The thyroid gland just quits putting out as much hormone as it ordinarily does and everything pretty well equalizes itself.

Preference often tough

North should probably have passed when his partner bid three no-trump. If he had, South would have made exactly three no-trump against a spade opening and either five or six no-trump against any other lead depending on whether or not East got to cash his ace of spades.

West opened his singleton diamond. East didn't have much hope of defeating five clubs but he did note one chance. If West held ace and another club and would lead a spade then West would get to ruff a diamond. Therefore, East played his 10 under dummy's jack.

Things worked out just as East had hoped. West did win the first trump trick; did lead a spade in response to the suit preference signal and did ruff the second diamond.

This hand illustrates something we have pointed out in the last couple of articles. It is easy to recognize a suit preference signal when the signal is given with a high card to call for a lead of the higher off suit. It is downright difficult to be sure that a low card calls for the play of a low side suit.

Court experiments in videotaped testimony

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A civil trial went on television Monday in the form of videotaped testimony taken earlier from witnesses in an experiment aimed at speeding up the court process.

Attorneys for the plaintiff and defense reviewed each tape before the trial and decided which parts should be seen by the jury, eliminating the sometimes lengthy arguments during a trial about admissability of evidence.

The testimony of five witnesses was taped over a two-day period in July in a law college courtroom with a deputy county clerk swearing in the witnesses and neither judge or [illegible]

The case involved a $50,000 damage suit filed by Lillian Liggons, 34, of Novato, against George Hanisko, 50, San Francisco, because of a 1971 auto accident in which she broke both legs.

A jury of eight women and four men was hearing the case in Superior Court before Appellate Justice Robert F. Kane, who said he was named to preside "because of the special circumstances."

Four television monitors were placed in the courtroom, [illegible] judge's bench, two in front of the jury and one for spectators.

The experimental trial was being conducted by the National Center for State Courts under sponsorship of the federal Law Enforcement Administration.

"The objective is to speed trials. By videotaping, witnesses do not have to wait to testify or return to court due to trial delays or appeals. The jury and judicial system similarly save time," the center said in a statement.

It was [illegible] second time in California history that videotape was used in a trial. A witness at a Hell's Angel murder trial in March videotaped his [illegible] because he was dying of throat cancer. The tape was played at the trial three days after his death.

Dziewit was unable to tell police how many persons [illegible] the other car he described as a 1959 to 1964 [illegible] Toilet.

British liberals eyeing comeback after 50 years

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) —The tiny British Liberal party once the country's dominant political force but in eclipse as a significant factor for the past 50 years—suddenly is making big headlines again.

It will hold its annual "Assembly" or convention at Southport on Sept. 18 in a blaze of publicity it has not known for decades.

"This time it's for real. This time they must take us seriously," asserts Liberal partyleader Jeremy Thorpe.

"Liberal comeback," "Liberal landslide" proclaim British newspaper headlines.

But the Liberals also have a problem. Few Britons, including probably many who have voted for it recently, have a clear idea what they stand for.

"Undoubtedly we have benefited from a lot of protest votes against the Conservatives and the Labor party," says Thorpe.

"We are receiving almost non-stop requests for a substantial and up to date digest of party policy," says Liberal party press secretary Stephen Bonarjee.

The political events that created this sudden problem for the Liberals have been little short of sensational.

In the past 12 months the Liberals have won four parliamentary by-elections (special elections) and increased their House of Commons total from a paltry six to a group of 10.

This still is insignificant compared with the Conservatives' 325 and Labor's 286. But the Liberals rolled up big successes in local government elections last spring. Now they have their sights on a couple more upcoming parliamentary by-elections in which they hope once again to smear the two big parties.

They hope to grab off anything from 20 to 50 parliamentary seats in the next general election which is generally expected to be held in about a year.

This might even give them a balance of power if the Conservatives and Labor end up in a tightly fought finish.

In a bid to overcome the "Who are the Liberals?" problem, Thorpe assigned Desmond Banks, director of the party's Policy Promotion department, to rush out a "quickie" summary of Liberal party policies.

He has done so to the tune of 8,000 words, released shortly before the annual party convention.

"The basic principle of Liberalism is a concern for the individual," says Banks. "We do not think primarily in terms of bosses, masses and classes. We start with the individual men and women who make up these vast conglomerations of people."

Here are some of the main items of Liberal policy listed by him:

—Controlled economic expansion and a new "social contract," including "co-responsibility' of management and workers in industry and a statutory minimum wage.

—A "credit income tax" system under which all income would be taxed on a progressive scale but everyone would be entitled to various credits "depending on circumstances."

—Government curbs on house prices and rents.

—Support for continued membership of the Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Car strikes dirt bank; driver hurt

WALNUT — A Walnut man suffered facial injuries Monday when his car hit a dirt bank along Walnut Drive east of Fairway Drive.

Antonio Lucero of 1115 S. Clorinda Drive was admitted to Pomona Valley Community Hospital. He is reported in satisfactory condition.

He was driving west on Walnut and failed to negotiate a curve, highway patrolmen said. His car hit a dirt shoulder, causing the driver to lose control. The vehicle then slid across the road and hit the dirt bank, officers added.

Should she wed father of child?

By JEAN ADAMS

DIFFERENT: Q: My boy friend and I have a problem, but we are not the same as most girls and guys when the girl gets into trouble. He loves me and I love him. He says if I want to he will marry me.

So it's not a question of love—or of keeping the baby, either. And I don't believe in adoption or abortion either.

Our parents insist we marry. But I am only 15. He is 17 and has a job paying $125 a week. The question is, should we marry?—Pregnant in Pennsylvania.

A: You say no to adoption and abortion. That means your baby will be born either with or without a legal father—with or without a full family.

Because of this, and because of the attitude of your boy friend and your parents, I agree that marriage is logical.

Before you make a final decision, however, discuss seriously with your boy friend and parents, and possibly your minister, the pros and cons of letting your baby be adopted.

Such a course would free you for what possibly could be a fuller, better life in the future. That is why I normally advocate adoption in crises like yours.

THREE GIRLS: Q: I have struck out three times. The first girl I wanted to take out was my old girl friend, but she said no. The second was beautiful. She said yes and I was happy. We had one date and she dropped me.

The third girl I had two dates with and then asked her to go steady. She said yes. I was really happy. But next day she called me and said she was going back to her old boy friend.

I know another girl but I am afraid to ask her. What is the matter with me?—0 for Three in New York

A: Nothing. You did not strike out three times—you had three dates with two girls. Many boys try more than three girls before they get their FIRST date.

Be positive, not negative. Call Girl 4. If she says yes, do not hurry to ask her to go steady. Be sure you like each other a lot first. If she says no, pick out Girl 5 and ask her for a date.

Cars collide; youth injured

CHINO — A 16-year-old Chino High School student was injured Tuesday afternoon when two cars collided at Central Avenue and D Street.

Mark Horn of 15271 Pine Ave. was taken to Chino General Hospital with minor injuries. He was later released from the hospital in good condition.

Police said Horn's car, southbound on Central Avenue, collided broadside with the car driven by Dana Warner, 40, of 78 W. Arrow Highway, Upland. Police said Mrs. Warner was making a left turn from Central Avenue onto D Street. Mrs. Warner was not injured, police said.

STRANDED — This was the scene Wednesday at Andes Mountain frontier between Argentina and Chile. Stranded tourists newsmen and Chileans returning home gathered at border, but were refused passage in what was becoming a political issue between nations.

Table tennis delegation triggers thaw in Peking-Taiwan relations

HONG KONG (UPI) —Few delegations to China — even President Nixon's entourage— have received as much attention as a group of Chinese table tennis players from the United States and Japan.

The 22-member group has the unwieldy title of "Table Tennis Delegation of Chinese Compatriots from Taiwan Province of the People's Republic of China residing in Japan and the United States of America."

It was invited to China to participate in the 1st Asian-African-Latin American Table Tennis Friendship Invitational Tournament.

The group has not distinguished itself in ping-pong play. But it appears to have received more attention than the other groups in a soft-sell campaign to establish contacts with Taiwan as a step towards the eventual return to China of the Nationalist-held island.

The United States agreed, in a joint communique issued during Nixon's visit to China last year, that Taiwan is part of China. But the American position was that settlement of the Taiwan question should be by peaceful means.

To help achieve this, the United States promised to "progressively reduce its forces and military installtions on Taiwan as tension in the area diminishes."

The United States began making good on this pledge last week with the announcement that an entire tactical airlift wing was being withdrawn from Taiwan's Ching Chuang Kuan airbase. This unit is comprised of about 3,000 men, or one-third of all American military personnel on the island still ruled by aged Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The soft-sell campaign, which Peking has stepped up recently, is in keeping with the unwritten pledge by Chou on behalf of the Communist leadership to abandon force as a means of resolving the Taiwan problem.

The Nationalist government on Taiwan, which is doing very well politically and economically despite some diplomatic setbacks such as the Nixon trip to China, has made no response to any of the direct or indirect overtures from Peking for establishing contacts.

No response from Taipei seems likely for the time being despite the wide publicity given to the Peking moves among overseas Chinese and in radio broadcasts beamed to Taiwan.

Since the table tennis group arrived in China it has been entertained lavishly at an endless series of banquets and soirees.

The latest was a forum and banquet Sept. 4 in the Taiwan Hall of Peking's Great Hall of the People. This was held under the sponsorship of the United Front Work Department of the newly elected Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party.

Huang Wen-chin, leader of the delegation spoke at the forum and said just what his hosts wanted to hear.

"We are greatly encouraged by this expression of loving attention for us people of Taiwan Province shown by the Great Leader Chairman Mao (Tse-tung) and the party central committee," Huang said. "Returning to the Motherland this time, I feel all the more that the people on the mainland and the compatriots in Taiwan Province are brothers by blood, who can never be separated."

A New China News Agency (NCNA) report on the forum and banquet said other members of the delegation joined Huang and Taiwan "personages" living in Peking in a pledge "to respond to the solemn call for liberating Taiwan and realizing the unification of the motherland issued by Comrade (Premier) Chou En-lai in his political report to the just-completed 10th national congress of the party.

"They pledged to unite and make concerted efforts to achieve this goal," NCNA said.

In his report, Chou declared anew that "Taiwan must be liberated." But the tone of his remarks was much milder than it has been at times in the past.

"Taiwan Province is our Motherland's sacred territory, and the people in Taiwan are our kith and kin. We have infinite concern for our compatriots in Taiwan, who love and long for the Motherland," he said.

"Our compatriots in Taiwan can have a bright future only by returning to the embrace of the Motherland. Taiwan must be liberated. Our great Motherland must be unified. This is the common aspiration and sacred duty of the people of all nationalities of the country, including our compatriots in Taiwan. Let us strive together to attain this goal."

The table tennis group is only one of a steady stream of overseas Chinese delegations and individuals, particularly from the United States, visiting China.

Reagan vetoes freeway bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation that would have deleted the proposed Beverly Hills Freeway in Los Angeles from the California freeway plan was vetoed recently by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

In his veto message, Reagan said he personally was opposed to building the freeway but wanted to wait for completion of a current study of transportation alternatives for the area before acting.

Reagan said it would be "premature and ill advised" to eliminate plans for the new freeway route until the Southern California Association of Governments completes its transportation study.

UNESCO report

World spending more on military than education

GENEVA (UPI) —The United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UESCO) reported today that the world spends far more each year for military purposes than it does on education.

UNESCO said in 1970, $197 billion was allocated to military spending, against $161 billion for education.

The figures did not include China, North Korea and North Vietnam, UNESCO said in a report to the International Bureau of Education's annual conference.

Miltary spending represents 6.4 per cent of the world's gross national product and education 5.2 per cent, it said. These average percentates, UNESCO said, correspond exactly to spending on the military and education in the United States, Soviet Union and European countries.

The developing countries, it said, are spending an increasing proportion of their GNP for military hardware—3.5 per cent compared with 3.4 per cent for education.

"In the Arab states, for obvious reasons, military expenditure was considerably higher than for education, 7.3 per cent and 5.2 per cent respectively," UNESCO said.

Beef label bill signed

SACRAMENTO —Gov. Ronald Reagan Tuesday signed a bill assuring consumers that next year they will be able to quickly tell which part of a steer their beef comes from.

The measure (AB1875) by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, was aimed at curbing "confusing' beef labels that give shoppers no hint of what type of cut they are buying, such as "his and hers steaks" for what is actually an inexpensive section of meat.

Cambodia war losing its point, has less and less meaning

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The United States stopped bombing Cambodia Aug. 15, amid dire warnings that Phnom Penh would fall. Instead, the Communists pulled back.

Only the Communists can say why, and they are not talking for publication.

When the bombing stopped, they had advanced to a front averaging three miles from the capital in the teeth of nonstop American bombing. Then, in early August, they pulled back.

Everyone, of course, has a theory, colored by experience, prejudices and political coloring. Among them:

Maj Gen. Sosthene Fernandez, chairman of the Cambodian joint chiefs of staff —"The enemy have suffered a defeat at our hands."

U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank —"I have the impression that the FANK (Cambodian army) ... faced with the necessity of defending themselves, may do just that."

A non-American western diplomat —"They just ran out of steam. But they'll be back."

A neutral diplomat —"The countryside is flat around Phnom Penh. And with the rainy season, the B52 bomb craters are filled with water. But the rainy season ends in November. And the Communists have all the initiative."

A Communist diplomat — "The other side over-extended itself. They rolled up so much territory they had to stop to reorganize society."

Prince Sihanouk, in an interview with UPI correspondent Sylvana Foa in Peking — "We have had to postpone plans for attack because of our lack of heavy arms and ammunition." But North Vietnam has promised "enough ammunition to make us capable of leading a great offensive against Lon Nol in the dry season."

Meanwhile life in Phnom Penh is almost normal, with only an occasional reminder there is a war on.

So far there is not much of a pinch for food and fuel. Prices keep creeping up but not spectacularly.

Phnom Penh's central market is a cornucopia of fruit, of dried fish and cage after cage of live rabbits and squawking, quacking poultry, of vegetables, cornmeal, sugar and tea, of fresh red meat and plucked chickens.

Rows of gunnysacks of fastgrowing U.S. "miracle" rice jam the market. But the homegrown variety is hard to find. The Cambodians prefer it, insisting that the U.S. kind has no taste.

Gasoline is rationed, but plentiful. Traffic jams clog streets and air.

The 9 p.m. curfew makes dinner a hurry-up affair for restaurants and their customers. Nightclubs as such do not exist. A few girlie bars stay open after hours for westerners, headquarters officers and officials with curfew passes.

At least one opium den reputedly is still going, but well behind closed doors.

Phnom Penh's population of a half-million before the war has been swollen to at least three times that number by refugees. The lucky ones, with friends or relatives in town, or the talent or resources to start life anew, have been absorbed into the settled population.

The less fortunate are camped around the outskirts of town in one-family or two-family shelters. The government supplies two-by-four-inch timbers and heavy plastic roof coverings and provides a basic diet of soup and rice.

It is not much of a life. Prak Dim, 58, hasn't had a day's work since he was driven away from his rice fields a year ago. He says he fled because the Khmer Rouge (Cambodian reds, the insurgents) burned down his house and were preparing to kidnap him and his fellow villagers.

Now he lives in a government shelter on the grounds of the Champou Voan pagoda, just south of Pochentong airport, with his three sons, aged 10, 16 and 17. His wife and daughter are sheltered at a military camp nearby but he hopes they will be able to join him soon.

Prak Dim is tall and dignified, with close-cropped grey hair, a checkered yellow sarong and bare feet. He smokes a roll-your-own cigarette.

"I spent my last 500 riels (about $1.20) on rice this week," Prak Dim says. "I don't know what I'll do next."

The Cambodian Army has absentee officers, boy soldiers and a gaggle of families trailing along into battle.

It has 62 generals. But in the opinion of one western military expert, only three of them know what they are doing.

U.S. law forbids American combat troops or advisers in Cambodia. But there are 125 uniformed Americans here—as supervisors of military equipment deliveries, military attaches who drive or fly by helicopter to the front every day to keep track of what is happening, and Marines guarding the embassy.

By contrast, the Vietnamese Communists have about 30,000. About 6,000 are directly involved in the war, supplying and advising the Khmer Rouge.

The government of President Lon Nol has yet to capture the imagination of the Khmer people. Its chief public-relations effort these days is demythologizing the exiled Prince Sihanouk.

An accepted theory is that government members are jockeying among themselves for public recognition as the man best qualified to negotiate for peace if and when the time comes.

Sihanouk has pledged that he and his cohorts will never talk peace with the present government in Phnom Penh.

Lon Nol said Aug. 29, "In the face of flagrant bad faith of our aggressors and their accomplices, we have decided to drive out our invaders by force of arms."

Army post in Germany

Woman Lt. Col. to take command

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Exactly one week from today, Lt. Col. Nancy Hopfenspirger takes command of the U.S. Army post in Wurzburg, Germany— the first woman to hold such a major Army command overseas.

In her new job Col. Hopfenspirger, a five-foot dynamo who has no fear of tackling tough assignments, will be in charge of a battalion-size group of Army men and women who maintain the base, where the Third Infantry Division is headquartered.

That, in itself, is a step away from the old Army—where men commanded men and women commanded women. But the low-key manner in which her assignment was handled tells even more about the new role of women in the new Army.

No announcement

There was no public announcement of the assignment, although Army officials confirmed it had taken place when asked by United Press International. It was, Army officials said, handled as if it were entirely routine.

"We don't announce the assignments of male lieutenant colonels around the world," one officer said. "And we don't want to make a storefront commander—something usual —out of this gal. We want her assignment to be treated the same as if a man had gotten the job."

Col. Hopfenspirger, 47, of Delmar, N.Y. , assumes her new command Sept. 25. A veteran of 22 years in the Army, her last assignment was as congressional liason for Army headquarters.

Second woman

She will be the second woman placed in command of a predominantly male unit overseas. The first, earlier this year, was Capt. Reba C. Tyler, who commands the 48th AG Postal Detachment at Mannheim, Germany, a much smaller outfit.

Army officials are considering what role women should play in the Army of the future, although there has not yet been any serious move toward abandoning the separate Women's Army Corps.

All the services have been opening up new opportunities for women in the United States.

Five women, three from the Army, one from the Navy and one from the Air Force, hold key command positions over both men and women in the United States. And the Army a few weeks ago approved its first woman to enter flight training early next year.

Carnegie Medals go to U.S. heroes

By TOM TIEDE

PITTSBURGH — (NEA) — Not long ago in New York, a Puerto Rican businessman rushed to aid of a policeman who was being set upon by thugs. For his effort the heroic citizen got nothing but lip. People in his neighborhood called him a "cop lover," former customers stopped patronizing his store. In the end the man sold his business and moved away, harassed, confused and embittered.

And so it goes for some of America's heroes. The business of minding other people's business can be unrewarding. At best in the United States there seems a suspicion of such people. Why do they risk their lives What's in it for them? At worst they can be ostracized or avoided as fools.

But occasionally, some 100 or more times a year, the courageous in the land are given their due. They're presented with the most impressive, if not the most familiar, cilian citation in the land: The Carnegie medal for heroism.

John J. Feightner, for example. Last year in Largo, Fla., he saw an occupied automobile stranded on a railroad track at the time of an approaching train. The driver, 65, was too stunned to move. Feightner ran to the car, pulled the driver clear, and as the train hit and demolished the vehicle, pulled the fellow 12 feet away. This year Feightner was given the 6004th Carnegie medal and $500 in appreciative cash.

"Wonderful," he says.

54,000 Acts

Wonderful, indeed. In a nation so preoccupied with antisocial behavior it is wonderful to, however obscurely, recognize social involvement. It is something of a further wonder than in 69 years of investigating heroism, the Carnegie medal people have filed 54,000 acts of heroism in North America, a mere fraction of the deeds which have actually occurred.

The Carnegie Medal Fund, now operating out of quiet midtown Pittsburgh offices, was established in 1904 by steel pioneer Andrew Carnegie. A Scotsman who belied the stingy reputation of his heritage. Carnegie believed that something should be done for people who risk their lives to save other lives. He gave an original endowment of $5 million in bonds. Over the years $13 million more is currently committed.

The Hero fund, according to its manager David Oliver, awards three medals—bronze, silver or gold. Bronze is the usual. Silver is for greater heroics. The gold prize has not been given since the Nova Scotia mine disaster of 1959.

Gives Money

In addition, the fund gives money. Carnegie's original thought was that people should not have to suffer financially for heroism. Thus the fund now mails 160 checks monthly to incapacitated heroes, widows of heroes or heroes continuing their education. One widow has received nearly $50,000 over a 48-year period. And all young heroes, on reaching their 17th birthday, are contacted by the fund as to educational needs. Says Oliver: "If they need money for college, we help out."

As it happens, there are numerous young heroes in the Carnegie file. A fund survey of the years 1965 through 1969 revealed that youths between 12 and 19 were the most frequent medal winners. Forty-seven 17-year-olds won awards during the period. And one eight-year-old.

"We don't know why the young prevail," says Carnegie secretary Walter Toerge. "It may be that the older people get, the more they weigh the consequences of heroism. Or it may be that young people are just naturally in places—like lakes—where accidents happen."

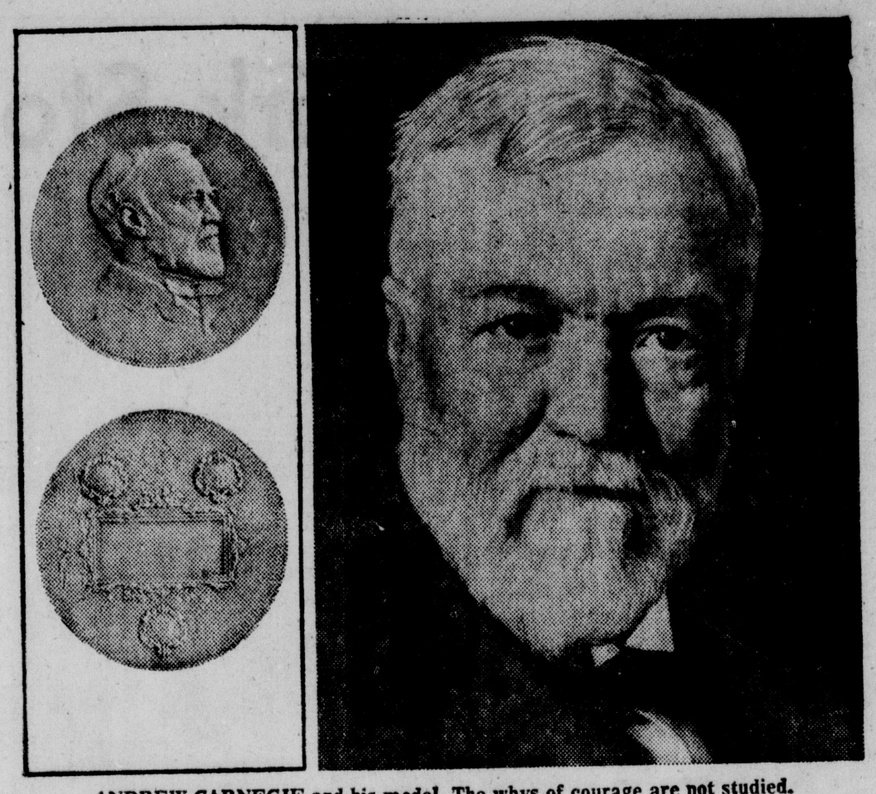
The Hero Fund organization is admittedly short on the philosophy of heroism. "We're not trying to promote heroism, just recognize it"—thus the whos and whys of courage are not studied. Yet patterns naturally arise from repetition. Often, as example, heroes are not aware of the risks they've taken until after they've explained it all to Carnege officials. Often, too, heroes, by process of elimination, are forced into their deeds.

Classic Example

A classic example of the latter hero is described by a long-time Carnegie investigator, Herbert Eyman: "I remember a case of a man drowning near a beach occupied by two people. One of the people was a big 250-pound all-American football player. The other was a 98-pound girl. The football player tried a rescue first, but gave up when he decided he couldn't make it. That left the girl. She had to go out because she was the only one left. She could not stand by and watch someone die."

But whatever the reasons for their actions, Carnegie's heroes are eminently deserving. Incredibly detailed reports on each candidate—including personal interviews with one of five fund investigators—assure accuracy. On one occasion the fund may have been fooled, by a convict whose heroism is still under suspicion, but the duds and fakers are rare.

No doubt the Carnegie winners are virtually all like Bill Whiteacre of Cupertino, Calif. He was recently cited for saving a woman from her estranged husband. Whiteacre interfered when he witnessed the husband shooting at the woman. He ran to the man with the gun and put his hand in front of the hammer. Incredible Yes. But not so surprising. If we paid better attention, perhaps, we'd find the good guys in the land still outnumbered the bad.



ANDREW CARNEGIE and his medal. The whys of courage are not studied.

Mayor rebuffed

Movie film won't back off: Detroit is murder capital

DETROIT (UPI) —The makers of the film "Detroit 9000," which depicts this metropolis as the "murder capital of the world," Tuesday refused to back off from their disputed ad by claiming they were telling it like it is.

In a telegram to Mayor Roman S. Gribbs, who wired General Films Corp. Friday asking that the "scurrilous" advertising be stopped, company executives said: "Change your city, and we'll change our copy."

"As long as Detroit continues to have over 800 homicides a year and a murder rate second only to automobiles as your city's major industry, we will continue to quote Time magazine's line calling it the murder capital of the world," the telegram said.

"Further, as long as blacks are confined to the Inner City, and whites are restricted to the suburbs, we will also continue claiming that in Detroit, honkies are in the minority. Our ads reflect today's Detroit."

The movie, made in Detroit last March with assistance from the city's police department in certain scenes, is about the robbery of a political fund-raising ball.

Man kills self by fire

SAN PEDRO (UPI) —A man sprinkled himself with a flammable liquid Monday, lit himself on fire and told several people trying to help him, "I did it myself; let me burn."

Police said Russell M. Logan, 26, burned to death in a vacant field. Authorities said he had attempted suicide two months earlier.

Railroad buffs bid for carafes

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The somewhat seedily dressed little man, needing a shave, stomped angrily around the hall, sometimes waving his hands in the air in exasperation, or shoving them into the pockets of his faded sports coat.

"It's like selling bananas," he shouted up to the auctioneer.

The object of the little man's anger was a bunch of railroad buffs who had massed into a hot, stuffy room of the Samuel T. Freeman & Co. late last week to bid on obsolete dining car silverplate that was being auctioned off by the Penn Central Railroad.

"I'm a dealer," the unhappy man said. "I'm here to buy up a lot of this stuff, when it gets down to a reasonable price. But this, ugh," he exclaimed waving his hands at the crowd.

The resounding voice of auctioneer John Freeman vibrated around the room.

"We have four Pennsylvania Railroad (predecessor of the Penn Central) water carafes," he said from his perch atop a portable auctioneer's stand.

"I have a bid for 35," he said. "Do I have a 40? A 40, I've got a 40, do I have a 45, a 45, I've got a 45, a 50. Now a 50," he droned. "I'm at 50, 50, 50 sold at 50," he said as he banged his gavel.

Next were 45 water-carafes from the New Haven Railroad, which started out selling at $45.

"Sold at $45," declared Freeman.

"How many?" Freeman asked the successful bidder. "One," he reported as the crowd laughed and the little man threw up his hands in disgust.

Under the procedure, the successful bidder had his choice of the number of carafes he wanted and the ones he wanted among the rows upon rows of them that were lined up along shelves.

The procedure started all over again for the remaining 44.

Then there were 300 Pullman water carafes up for bid and the auctioneering droned on. The first went for $65 and Freeman remarked "at that price I don't blame him."

"Hell," exclaimed a retired railroad employe who had wandered in to watch the proceedings. "If I had known that guy would pay that much for one, I would have stolen him one."

The bidding moved down and down from the original $65 and got below $10.

"I'm now at $7, $7," shouted Freeman.

"Seven dollars," shouted a man from behind one of the counters. He was George Freeman, son of the auctioneer and a member of the family that has conducted the business since 1805.

"The bookkeeper on one of the floors below wanted one for her son," George explained.

And it went on through the day, moving from carafes, to cake and toast covers, cruet stands, table knives, casserole covers, etc., until the final item:

One Pennsylvania Railroad water pitcher.

It went for $250 to "an agent acting for somebody in Detroit."

The sale finally ended at 4:10 p.m., almost six hours after it started, and grossed "in excess of $10,000," about $7,000 more than Penn Central officials had estimated.

Price of rice soars for Asians

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — If you think food costs in the United States are too high, be glad you don't live in a country where rice is the staple diet, says Walter Falcon, director of Stanford University's food research institute.

"American food price increases are dwarfed by recent movements in rice, the staple food of over a billion Asians," Falcon said on his return from a six-week trip to five Asian countries.

"During the last 24 months alone, the international price of rice has gone from less than $100 to more than $400 a ton." He blamed the price increase on continued drought.

Nice profit

Occasionally, stamp-collecting pays handsomely, and get-rich-quick stories soon make the rounds. Fine time in prime time

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Is the Democratic Party finger-lickin' good? Or just chicken?

Saturday night the loyal opposition gambled $800,000 on a seven-hour television program (I refuse to recognize the wordoid, "telethon.") It included a caucus of prominent defeated political candidates and a galaxy of stars of stagescreenanradio. It was staged by John Y. Brown Jr., board chairman of a grab-and-go fried chicken chain.

Recalled from long-forgotten battlegrounds to man telephones and grimmace into TV cameras were Sen. Eugene McCarthy (remember him?), Senator Edward ("Ted") Kennedy (remember him?) and Sen. George McGovern (remember him?).

Joining the losers at the NBC studios in Burbank was Henry Fonda master-of-ceremonies, plus such celebs as Tony Randall and Jack Klugman,an odd couple; and Jack Lemmon, Robert Warner and James Garner. Security measures were in force, of course, to be certain that nobody bugged Tom Smothers' dressing room, or taped rehearsals in the NBC hall, or broke into the shop of Natalie Woods' dressmaker. Can't be too careful these days.

The significant thing for sage observers of the political scene was the shift in the Democratic spectrum as evinced by the card of the all-star cast. In 1972 the party went with popular young entertainers of liberal leanings, and wound up with a bucketful of nothing. In those dark days, the Three Dog Night didn't pull votes like Tex Beneke and the Modernaires.

I'm not saying that the American electorate is influenced, by film and television stars, by their images and professed political leanings. I'm not SAYING it. But in the Fatal Fall of '72, the Democrats went with Goldie Hawn and Shirley MacLaine, while the Republicans hung in with John Wayne and Lawrence Welk, and the results drastically affected not only the presidential elections but the Nielsen ratings.

Awakening at last from its monolithic sleep, like the Abominable Snowman crackling his way out of an icy coffin, the Democratic Party finally realized that the majorit yof American voters lean toward conservative rock groups and middle-of-the-road comics.

I haven't heard the result of the loud-winded, long-running, many-throated television special, but the lineup made it clear that the Demos had learned their lesson, showbizwise. They threw in the Fifth Dimension for the youth vote, but Julie Christie gave way to Robert Goulet, Simon and Garfunkle yielded to Florence Henderson of The Brady Bunch, and Burt Bacharach was replaced by Steve Allen.

A political television show can make or break careers in show business as well as politics.

Official urges lifting of ban on off-shore drilling

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The director of California's Department of Conservation, said that the state should lift a ban on offshore oil drilling, construct new nuclear power plants, and develop oil supplies within urban areas to avoid an energy crisis.

"I think we can all agree that California does face a crisis of energy —that we have reached that cruical moment when difficult decisions must be made," said Ray B. Hunter in a Town Hall address.

Because the state's energy demands will double in the next 15 years, Hunter said, California should develop a policy to "stimulate development within California of our energy supplies. And we may have to furnish a financial tax incentive to do that."

Hunter said that "environmental controls must be made more flexible, at least temporarily. But at the same time, we must more rigidly enforce those flexible rules."

Retail food prices will remain high

WASHINGTON UPI) —Although farmers may raise [illegible] livestock feed grain production next year about 9 per cent above this year's record levels, consumers probably won't see any broad declines in retail food prices in 1974, according to Agriculture Department experts.

The breakthrough to new grain production records is likely, officials said, as farmers respond to this year's record prices and a government call for all-out production. The administration, seeking to put a lid on food inflation by boosting supply, has canceled all acreage controls for 1974 grain and cotton crops.

The forecasts were made Monday as the department released the first issue of a new series of reports making public, for the first time, its previously secret and highly tentative "projections" on future production and demand for major crops.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll G. Brunthaver told a news conference that if farmers respond as expected, 1974 wheat and feed grain production will exceed domestic and export needs and allow some rebuilding of reserve stocks.

But Don Paarlberg, the department's chief economist, warned that even with some expected boosts in poultry and beef, overall livestock food supplies next year may still "be short of what you could really call abundant, and that would mean price strengths for most of 1974."

Paarlberg said the expected bigger 1974 feed crops could encourage further growth in livestock production late in the year and further down the road. But on the retail price scene, he said, "I cannot predict any sharp general declines" in 1974.

Jazz club schedules meet in West Covina

WEST COVINA — The Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz will return Sunday to its former meeting place, the West Covina Elks Lodge, 841 W. Merced Ave., for its September concert-jam session. The public is invited. First notes sound at 2 p.m.

SPDJ has moved often since its formation 11 years ago at Storeyville, a Pomona tavern. As the original membership of 25 grew (it is now over 500), the club moved to RoVal's in Cucamonga, to the holiday Motor Lodge in Montclair, to the Palms (now the Volksgarten) in Glendora, to the West Covina Elks Lodge, and last year to Griswold's Pavilion in Claremont. Remodeling of the latter hall has necessitated moving back to West Covina, where future meetings will be held on the fourth Sunday of each month.

"SPDJ is not a musicians-only club," says president Charles Counter. "There are usually four times as many listeners as performers. There is no rock and roll. This is music of the '30s and '40s. The purpose of the non-profit club is music and good fellowship."

The meetings run from 2 to 8 p.m, but listeners and musicians come and go during the afternoon. Refreshments are served.

Memberships in SPDJ can be obtained from secretary Gloria Hinshaw, 38 S. Sunnyside Ave., Sierra Madre 91024. The telephone is (213) 355-0293.

It's a bird

The French call it oiseau-mouche, or fly-size bird. Spaniards and Portuguese say pica flor — peck the flower — and beija flor — kiss the flower. In the Lesser Antilles and Cuba it's named for the sound the wings make — murmures and zum-zum. Americans know them as hummingbirds.

Gang wars with execution killings rock S.F. Chinatown

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gang warfare with execution killings reminiscent of Chicago's Capone era of the '30s has rocked historic Chinatown.

But the prize is not control of illicit booze, drugs or rackets.

It is, instead, an apparent struggle among a group of jobless young Chinese, many recent emigrants of Hong Kong, for power and prestige within their own tattered ranks in the world's biggest Chinese community outside Asia.

Fifteen victims have fallen execution-style since 1970, slain in the streets in braod daylight or hogtied and strangled in remote spots. At least one was an innocent bystander.

Vengeance, intense group loyalties and a sense of "righteousness" are endemic to the loosely organized groups.

"Some have chosen the (Chinese) names for 'loyalty' or 'righteousness —they are trying to reinforce themselves in a bad situation," says one Chinatown observer.

"They believe in fearlessness, in being 'gutsy.' There's a lot of appeal in toughness. I think that has a lot to do with robbing Chinatown merchants, eating in restaurants and refusing to pay, refusing to buy tickets at (Chinese) theaters, trying to run gambling.

"The jealousies have been tremenous, and the urge for retaliation has been tremendous. If the member of one group dies, then the group has to have revenge. It's sort of snowballed.

"These people have tried to control certain areas of Chinatown, the theaters, the smaller shops and restaurants. They wanted things for free, and they offered protection."

The 17-block downtown area known as Chinatown shows an exotic face to the thousands of yearly tourists who stroll and shop on narrow Grant Avenue, Chinatown's main street, but quite another to its residents. Overcrowding is nearly intolerable. One study showed a population equivalent to 98,000 persons per square mile, compared to 16,000 for the rest of the city.

Average education of Chinatown residents is about two years' American schooling, compared to 12 for the rest of the city. With the highest youth density in the city, Chinatown has 1-20th of the recreation space it needs.

Many families live in rooming houses built a half century ago that were occupied by a single man hoping to earn his fortune and return to China. Now whole families often live in two rooms and share toilet and kitchen facilities with others. Many live in commercial areas, above shops and theaters.

Some Chinatown residents feel the gang problem is the direct result of crushing social conditions, exacerbated by the arrival of newcomers for whom little could be offered.

"Chinatown is no different than Hunter's Point," says one young Chinese, referring to one of the city's large black neighborhoods. "The social conditions are the same in Chinatown —with the added burden of a language barrier.

"Look, all I want for people to see is what's causing this. Just look at history. Why is there such a large concentration of Chinese in one place'"

Racial prejudice is the implied answer.

"I'm upset because people say it's all our fault, the Chinese kids used to be so good. But there's a reason for it. Both the white and Chinese people need to be educated. There is a lot of exploitation within our own community because Chinese have trouble moving out of the community. And there's a bad employment problem.

"Look, these newcomers are like human refugees. Some are doctors and nurses or experienced construction men, but they have to be retrained for America, like the Cuban refugees were retrained.

"But if a trained worker tries to get into construction, he's told he's 'too small.' The Holiday Inn in Chinatown was not built by Chinese construction workers. And the kids, where do they find jobs"

A state commission made a study recently that showed while Asian children are high achievers in schools here, they have scarcely better luck than blacks in the job market.

"My parents say don't rock the boat, work hard and make it, that my life will be better than theirs, and my kids' lives will too," the young Chinese says, "but when the kids finally get up there, ready to go, they can't get a job. They're told, 'no openings.'"

"These kids in the gangs, their fathers may be a waiter and their mother sewing for 50 cents an hour in a sweat shop and bringing the little kids with them because they can't afford a babysitter.

"The older kids go to school but they have no background in English. They go into an American history class and they can't understand any of it. The teacher reacts to them as if they're ignorant or stupid, and we have the self-fulfilling prophecy.

"So they go out to the streets, they gotta have bread. They want clothes and the other things important to teenagers. They've got no money. They start ripping off."

The antelope fawn at the age of one year can run up to 25 miles an hour.

SHIPS OF THE DESERT — OLD AND NEW STYLE — While camels trek across the Mauritanian desert in West Africa, a fleet of land-yachts, combination dune buggies and sailboats, sweep across the Sahara on a 1,500-mile trek to the town of Fort Ain Ben Tili. The land-yachts were recently featured on TV.

Kissinger in good mood after approval

WASHINGTON UPI) — Secretary of State-designate Henry Kissinger was in an obvious good mood after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved his nomination Tuesday.

'I am surprised that only 10 persons appeared in opposition to my appointment," he told reporters. "I would have thought that my entire staff would oppose it."

When asked whether he would continue to be a "swinger" about town, escorting glamor girls to the posh restaurants, he grinned and said "absolutely, I have to have some prerogatives." Kissinger made the remarks at a White House dinner honoring Pakistani Prime Minister Zulifikar Ali Bhutto.

Dodger fans want Hank

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The moment the fans had waited for came at 7:54 p.m. Wednesday night at Dodger Stadium.

Henry Aaron stepped up to the plate. Unfortunately it was only to present his team's lineup card to the umpires. After that chore, Henry disappeared into the Braves' dugout and was not seen again.

In the ninth inning, Atlanta manager Eddie Mathews used two pinch hitters. The eager fans who for the most part had waited patiently for Bad Henry to at least pinch hit in his assault on Babe Ruth's career home run record, again were disappointed.

Trailing 4-1 Mathews chose Chuck Goggin and Marty Perez as his pinch hitters while the object of everyone's attention and the center of interest, Aaron, languished in the dugout.

Goggin was called out on strikes and Perez grounded out pitcher to first. In between, Paul Casanova had beaten out a perfect bunt. The fourth batter of the inning, Ralph Garr, fanned.

That gave the Dodgers a 4-1 win, Andy Messersmith a 14-10 record, and Jim Brewer, who pitched the ninth, his 19th save.

Mathews said later that he would have used Aaron "if we got a couple of men on base in the late innings."

Before the game, Aaron had explained to the crowd of writers, and radio-TV men pressing around him that he likes to rest after playing a night game and then going on the road, especially when he comes into a different time zone.

"You can only do so much with the old body," he said. "I don't want to push myself. I'll play as many games as possible.'

So tonight Aaron should play . . . unless the "old body" hasn't yet caught up with the time change, or has contracted a virus sitting in the chill of the dugout Wednesday night, or Mathews feels that with Ron Schueler (8-7 and a 3.73 earned run average) facing the suddenly hot (three straight wins) Dodgers, and Al Downing (9-9) his team doesn't stand much chance and keeps Henry on the bench.

After all what does it matter that the 39-year-old Aaron now has only eight games left this season to break the record, or that a good portion of the fans are lured to the park because of the widely publicized appearance of the Hammer?

Not one word was ever mentioned anywhere that Aaron might not play.

Lost in the shuffle of all this was a record-breaking home run by Atlanta second baseman Dave Johnson. Johnson gave the Braves their only run with a smash off Messersmith in the fourth inning that wound up in the Dodger bullpen in left field.

It was the 43rd homer of the year for the former Oriole who hit only five last year with Baltimore. It broke the record of 42 (for a second baseman) set by Rogers Hornsby in 1922.

A light sprinkling of applause greeted the announcement of the record.

Except for the homer (number 24 off Andy), Messersmith rarely encountered difficulty. The former Angel struck out six and walked three while giving up the one run and five hits in his eighth-inning stint.

Up until the eighth, Phil Niekro (13-9), had the Dodgers well in hand. Through seven innings he hadn't issued a base on balls. In the eighth he walked two of the first three men he faced.

That was his undoing.

With one out and Bill Russell on second and Dave Lopes on first, Mathews dismissed Niekro and summoned Alan Closter who was acquired Sept. 5 from the Yankee organization to close the deal which sent Pat Dobson to New York.

Closter had an ERA of 4.01 at Syracuse and 18.00 (that's right, 18.00) with the Braves. He issued an intentional walk to Bill Buckner to load the bases.

Willie Davis promptly singled in the tieing run and Mathews promptly removed Closter and replaced him with Phil's little brother, Joe Niekro. Joe's ERA was much better, 4.50.

Joe Ferguson hit a sacrifice fly to score Lopes and give the Dodgers a 2-1 lead. Willie Crawford drew the fourth walk of the inning again loading the bases. Ron Cey then whacked a 2-2 pitch on a line into left field scoring Buckner and Davis and applying the coup de grace to the Braves.

The victory kept the Dodgers 5½ games behind Cincinnati which also won.

DODGER NOTES — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was among those disappointed at the Aaron no-show.

The 31,012 paid attendance (40,347 including Boy Scouts) brought the season total to 1,979,603. Needing only 20,397, the Dodgers are sure to go over the two million mark tonight.

The club announced that general admission seats are being sold in advance for the Friday and Sunday games with the Reds. Reserved seats ($2.50) remain for Saturday afternoon's 1 p.m. game.

It's official: Willie Mays says it's over

NEW YORK (UPI)—Willie Mays, the most electrifying and exciting player of his generation, officially announced his retirement from baseball Thursday, effective at the close of this season.

Mays, who's been playing major league baseball for 22 of his 42 years, had been expected to make the announcement because age and injury had robbed him of many of his skills.

There were will be a fond farewell party for Mays next Tuesday night when he's honored on Willie Mays Appreciation Night at Shea Stadium.

Mays entered the major leagues on June 24, 1951 with the old New York Giants. He went with the Giants in 1958 and then came back to New York last year when he was traded to the Mets.

When Mays came into the league, only one of today's 12 home parks—Wrigley Field in Chicago—was in operation.

His dashing exploits in the field, his explosive bat and his daring baseball captivated baseball fans for two decades.

"Everybody knows why I'm here. I'm retiring after this season. I only hope I can make some contribution towards another championship in New York in the little time left."

But Mays revealed that he suffered three broken ribs in Montreal on Sept. 9 and "I'm not going to go out there on the field if I'm not 100 per cent. The team still has a chance to win, and I don't want to interfere with that."

Mays said he wasn't sure what exact position he'll hold in the Met organization starting next year.

"I have many directions to go and many things to consider. But one thing I know, the game is my life. It's just a question of what the club will want me to do. We'll settle that when the season's over and I sit down with Mr. Donald Grant. He knows I love to be around kids, and I'm sure that's one area I'll work in."

Dressed in a checked sports coat with green pants, Mays spoke to a formal press conference before nine TV cameras.

"It's difficult to explain how much I love baseball. We have what you'd call a love affair."

Wilt will air announcement by next week

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain, now wearing the cap of a businessman instead of his basketball headband, is still weighing the options and will announce early next week whether he'll jump from the NBA Los Angeles Lakers to the ABA San Diego Conquistadors.

Chamberlain travels to New York today to put in a plug for his Autobiography but he will not announce his future plans until the first of next week, according to his Attorney, Symour Goldberg.

"Wilt may just decide to lay on the beach for the next 10 years—he is still considering a number of options," Goldberg said.

The most lucrative of those options appeared to be a $500,000 a year player-coach contract offer from Leonard Bloom, owner of the Fledgling Conquistadors.

"Wilt hasn't made up his mind yet," the attorney said. "Many people in and out of basketball are talking to Chamberlain. He's not a man who makes choices quickly. When he makes it it will be wholeheartedly and not out of anger."

Meanwhile, the Chamberlain-Laker rift seemed to be widening and brought back memories of 1968, when Chamberlain left the Philadelphia 76ers after after a fallout with management.

Laker ownership has called for the removal of Wilt's picture from the cover of the team's press book, replacing it with that of Gail Goodrich.

And already in a Laker uniform, as an heir-apparent to Wilt's center position, is Elmor Smith, acquired from the Buffalo Braves, who made his debut for Los Angeles Tuesday night in a pre-season game against the Golden State Warriors.

"It would be difficult for Wilt to go back to the Lakers," Goldberg said. "And I'm not sure that the Lakers want him back anyway."

A spokesman for the Lakers, however, denied that the club was trying to phase out Chamberlain, a 14-year NBA Veteran who led the Lakers to the world championship in 1972 and owns a good piece of pro basketball's record book.

Derby favorite posts easy win

POMONA — Using his speed to good advantage, heavily-favored High Protein cruised to a two-length victory in the $10,650 Derby Trial Stakes Wednesday at the County Fairgrounds.

Only four horses went postward in the mile and one-sixteenth event, and the order in which they ran remained constant as High Protein took the lead going to the first turn and held it throughout under the direction of jockey Jerry Lambert.

High Protein, who is owned by George Spellman and trainer John Coffee, returned $2.80 and $2.20. There was no show wagering. Fleet's Deal, the runner-up, paid $3.20 to place and combined with High Protein for a $21.50 exacta payoff.

High protein is expected to make his next start next Wednesday in the $15,000 added Pomona Derby, a mile and one-eighth contest that is also likely to lure foothill stakes winner brush cutter and the speedy Ocala Boy.

Coming off a front-running victory on the turf at Del Mar, High Protein had enough speed to quickly take the lead from the outside post position, under a typically clever ride by Lambert, High Protein set leisurely fractions of .24 4-5, .49 3-5 and 1.15 before Fleet's Deal offered a bid for the runner-up spot.

The favorite had plenty of speed in reserve and hit the wire in 1.46 2-5, fastest mile and one-sixteenth of the meeting.

Real Decision finished third, beaten three and one-half lengths, and Our Land was fourth and last.

Bill Mahorney tallied aboard favored Hasty Rhythm in the supporting feature to move into a tie for the riding lead with Don Pierce.

Progress-Bulletin PREP PREVIEW

Pomona, Pacific at MSAC, 8 p.m.

Pomona High, coming off a 5-3-1 record from last year, appears to be a little more optimistic this season, with All-San Antonio League quarterback Steve Taylor returning to aid a potentially vicious passing attack.

The Red Devils will open the 1973 prep football season tonight at Mt. San Antonio College against a team which they beat last year, 27-7.

Other top returnees for Pomona include running backs Jim Price and Garry Honest. Probably seeing action with the two returnees in the backfield will be junior Raymond Butler.

Figuring to be on the receiving end of Taylor's passes include split end Jerome Holliman, tight end Tom Jones and flanker Lamont Harris.

Pacific, which is returning 10 varsity lettermen from last year, is expected to stick to the ground tonight.

Tonight's the night for Billie, Bobby

HOUSTON (UPI) — Tonight's "Battle of the Sexes—Chapter 2," between Billie Jean King and Bobby Riggs has been played for a lot of laughs.

"Both of us are making money," says Billie Jean. "So this is a kind of marriage between us." The audience laughs. Riggs' eyes bulge.

Stuff like that.

But there should be no mistake about it. When the two of them get together tonight for their $100,000, winner-take-all, best-of-five set, nationally televised tennis extravaganza between first base and third base in the Astrodome, Billie Jean King would truly love to bash Bobby Riggs to the point of embarrassment.

"You had better believe there is something riding on this match besides the money," the 29-year-old five time Wimbledon champ said in her final public appearance before the match. "There is pride involved."

And then turning to face Riggs, Billie Jean said:

"I don't think you give women credit for having any brains at all. I think female athletes should be respected for their ability, not just because one might be sort of cute. Businessmen realize now we are marketable, that we can make money for their companies, that we are athletes.

"I've been at this for 15 years and you had better believe it means a lot more than just the money. At least to me."

What it really means to Bobby Riggs is hard to tell because he doesn't stop talking long enough to tell you.

But whatever else it means, the mach means a pile of loot to both competitors.

Over and above the money taken home by the winner, there will be $75,000 to each player as their share of the television and film rights and an unknown quantity extra for what Billie Jean refers to as "fringes."

It all starts at 8 p.m. EDT with an estimated 35,000-40,000 expected. Riggs was the choice of 20 of 27 writers who will be covering the match.

World heavyweight champion George Foreman, who doesn't play much tennis but who will present the $100,000 check to the winner, believes Billie Jean will win.

International tennis matches have come a long way since Riggs played and soundly trounced Magaret Court last May. The natural philosophical rivalry between King and the 55-year-old Riggs has turned this match into something very easy to promote.

And the two players have gladly fallen in line with the promotion on the theory that tennis as a whole cannot help but benefit from the publicity.

"This is bound to help tennis," said Billie Jean. "Tennis needs more show biz. We are going to be seen by an awful lot of people. Ninety million people are going to be watching and that can't be all bad."

Riggs, for once, agrees with his opponent.

"Mixed matches are the biggest thing that have ever happened to tennis," he said. "It is good for men's tennis, very good for women's tennis and it just so happens it has been good for Bobby Riggs. But that is incidental.

"Billie Jean King and myself have played this game all our lives and it is the game we love so much. I have been very happy to have been put in the position of being a sort of ambassador, or public relations man, or clown, or funny man or sexist or male chauvinist pig or whatever you want to call me.

"The outcome is what counts and the outcome is that tennis will be the big beneficiary all over the world."

Ryan ends controversy

By United Press International

Nolan Ryan holds the American League's season strikeout record today and a 27-year old controversy has been laid to rest.

Ryan wrote a record into the record books Wednesday night when he struck out seven batters in the California Angels' 6-2 first-game victory over the Texas Rangers and raised his season total to 355. Whose record did he surpass? That's where the controversy is involved.

For years "official" baseball record books listed an AL mark of 343 strikeouts by Rube Waddell of the Philadelphia Athletics in 1904. Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians came along in 1946 to strike out 348 batters and lay claim to a record.

Some statisticians, however, poured through the box scores of Waddell's games in 1904 and announced that the old lefthander actually had struck out 349 batters. All records of those very old days are suspect in part—Waddell's won-lost record that season is variously listed as 25-20, 25-19 and 25-18 depending upon which record book is consulted—and so some modern record books have carried Feller's 348 as the mark and others have listed Waddell's 349.

Now the only question is whether Ryan can strike out 28 more batters this season and surpass the major league mark of 382 set by Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1965.

The Angels downed Texas 9-4 in the second game of their doubleheader, Chicago scored a 4-3 12-inning triumph over Kansas City, Detroit defeated Baltimore 10-1, Oakland shut out Minnesota 3-0, Boston topped New York 3-1 and Milwaukee outscored Cleveland 7-4 in other AL games.

The Angels staked Ryan to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on run-scoring singles by Frank Robinson, Lee Stanton and Billy Parker. Ryan, who raised his record to 19-16, allowed five hits, including a homer by Jeff Burroughs. Robinson hit a two-run homer and knocked in four runs to lead the Angels' 15-hit attack in the second game.

Carlos May doubled and scored on Buddy Bradford's single in the 12th inning to give the White Sox their victory after John Mayberry tied the score at 3-3 for Kansas City with a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth. That blow prevented Cy Acosta from preserving Wilbur Wood's 25th win with the reliever eventually getting credit for the victory.

Joe Coleman pitched sevenhit shutout ball for eight innings to win his 21st game for the Tigers. John Hiller worked the ninth against the Orioles and received credit for his 37th save — equalling the major league mark set last season by Clay Carroll of the Reds. Aurelio Rodriguez' three-run triple was the big blow of a seven-run fifth inning which clinched the game for the Tigers. The Orioles' lead was reduced to a still healthy 6 ½ games in the AL East and their magic number remained at five.

Vida Blue pitched a threehitter and struck out 10 to win his 19th game for the A's. Ray Fosse drove in one run with a double in the second inning, Bert Campaneris homered in the third and Reggie Jackson drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth. Joe Decker was the loser for Minnesota.

Tommy Harper hit two doubles, scored two runs and stole two bases to lead the Red Sox over the Yankees behind Luis Tiant's four-hit, 10-strikeout pitching. Tiant raised his record to 19-12 while Mel Stottlemyre's dropped to 14-16.

George Scott drove in four runs with a single and his 21st homer bringing Jim Slaton's record to 13-13 for the Brewers. Dick Tidrow was routed in 6 1-3 innings and suffered his 15th loss for Cleveland.

Trojans too fat claims McKay

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Heavy ballplayers soon find out what heat and humidity can do to their performances—and that's what Southern California's John McKay is worried about.

"We undoubtedly have some people on our team who are way too fat," the head coach of the No. 1 rated Trojans said Wednesday. "Arkansas made us look slow and nobody last year could make us look slow. We have several people who are carrying way too much weight."

After surprisingly having to work for a 17-0 victory over a young Arkansas team last week, Southern Cal faces Georgia Tech in Atlanta Saturday in a day game.

MSAC: a new look with old faces

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Enroute to a 34-0 victory over Citrus last Saturday night, it became apparent that Mt. San Antonio College was doing different things with many of the same tools it worked with in 1972.

Many of the faces were the same, in the same positions, wearing the same numbers as a year ago.

But it was obvious that third-year head coach Mal Eaton and his staff had put together the most solid unit Mountie fans had seen in quite a while.

Against Citrus, which helped by coughing up the football nine times on six fumbles and three pass interceptions, MSAC accomplished the following:

— Tailback Teddy Farmer led a ground attack which churned for 197 yards net on 43 plays. Farmer was good for 97 yards on 15 carries by himself, a 6.5 average.

— The passing of quarterback Steve Myer was used only sparingly, 7 for 12, 39 yards; but effective—two short touchdowns of five and six yards.

— Defensively, the Mounties were opportunistic, cashing in turnovers one way or another: on touchdowns or on field goals by veteran place-kicker and defensive back Tom MacKenzie who intercepted a pass, recovered a fumble and kicked field goals of 43 and 25 yards. A veteran unit, with seven of MSAC's 16 lettermen, the defense played like it.

— A year ago, the statistics would have been reversed. Myer, as a freshman, averaged more than 200 yards a game passing, and a herky-jerky running game averaged about 50. The reversal has to be especially satisfying to Eaton, a ball-control coach, who tried in two previous seasons to install an offense with the characteristics displayed Saturday night.

Eaton credits offensive line coach Ralph Craig for the development of the running attack. Craig put it together primarily with inexperienced players. Only guard Al Clegg is an experienced returnee. The others are center John Bruno (Northview), guard Gary Serna (Ganesha) and tackles Mike O'Hara, a non-letter winner of a year ago, and Jarrell Smith (Garey). Substitute tackle Terry Green (Bonita) was also impressive.

All of this will be severely tested this week when the Mounties make their home debut against Golden West, a team which came back from a 27-0 deficit to beat highly regarded Orange Coast, 28-27.

The Rustlers hold a 5-1-1 edge in the series with MSAC, including a 33-21 victory last year.

Over the years the Mounties and the Rustlers have put on quite a point show for the fans. The average score in seven games in 30-18.

Like MSAC GW is setting its sights on a very good year.

GW has a quarterback who can run or pass off the option, in Danny Accamando, a couple of bruising runners, and an opportunistic defense which took advantage of Orange Coast mistakes to win. And the Rustlers feature a place-kicker, Brett White, who booted a 52-yarder against the Mounties in 1972.

The visitors shape up quite a bit like their hosts. It should be interesting.

SPORTS NEWS IN BRIEF

JACK NICKLAUS and Arnold Palmer salvaged some American prestige today as U.S. golfers got off to a bad start in the 20th Biennial Ryder Cup competition with Britain by trailing 2½ to 1½ after the opening foursome.

Nicklaus and Palmer pounded inexperienced Maurice Bembridge and Eddie Polland to win 6 and 5.

JOSEPH DANZANSKY, who hopes to give major league baseball a third chance to catch on in the nation's capital, displayed little concern over the National League's failure to act on his proposal to buy the San Diego Padres and move them to Washington D.C.

DON DEJARDIN, three years a general manager for the Philadelphia 76ers, was fired Wednesday by club owner Irv Kosloff, who conceded the team finally had "hit the bottom."

KERRY MELVILLE, seeded No. 2, third-ranked Rosemary Casals and sixth-seeded Nancy Gunter advanced into the quarterfinals of the $30,000 Houston Virginia Slims Tennis Tournament with victories over unranked opponents Wednesday night.

THE BALTIMORE Orioles now own one of those obscure records that only baseball can come up with. When Merv Rettenmund stole his 10th base of the year Tuesday night, he was the eighth Baltimore player to hit double figures, something no other club had done in the history of the game.

A SHARE of the World Series purse and rotation of assignments for the World Series, All-Star game and playoffs are among the demands being made by major league umpires, according to a negotiator.

Broncs look unpredictable

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — When Sacramento State invades Kellogg Field Saturday night it will be the 13th meeting since the initial contest in 1960 between the Hornets and Cal Poly.

The Broncos own a 7-5 series advantage including three straight victories. In fact, it was during head coach Roy Anderson's first season at Poly, 1969, that Sacramento last defeated a Bronco team. The score in that encounter was 28-9.

Since that 2-8 season, Anderson has led the squad to 19-14, 14-13 and 13-7 wins over the Hornets.

In last year's defensive struggle, the Broncs didn't put a point on the scoreboard until 3:58 before the conclusion of the game.

A 39-yard touchdown pass from Jack Surina to Steve Barron and Dennis Amador's 48-yard pass interception return gave the win to Poly.

But it's time to switch from the past to the present.

The 1973 version of Cal Poly has already lived up to its preseason expectations.

It was pointed out that the Broncos would be young, inexperienced, ex

Hoople's crystal ball looks hot

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

Egad, friends the time has come! The weekend is here!

Pomona Valley high school football teams open the 1973 slate tonight, Friday and Saturday night.

And not to dilly-dally with superlatives, your peerless prognosticator will commence with the forecast.

Claremont and Bonita renew the oldest valley rivalry, locking fang and claw on the gridiron at Citrus College Friday night. Brushing off the old crystal ball, your Wizard of Odds sees the Wolfpack taking the measure of the Bearcat lads, 21-19, in a thriller that valley football fans won't soon forget. Egad . . . kaff-kaff . . . Hoople is hot today!

In a lone Thursday night encounter, San Antonio League favorite, the Pomona Red Devils, will singe Pacific, 20-7, while on Friday, Upland will be on the wrong end of a 21-6 count to Glendora, Damien will demolish San Dimas, 26-14, South Hills will shut out Chino, 14-0, Ganesha will gallop past Azusa, 18-6, Brea will batter Garey 28-6, and Walnut will edge Nogales, 20-19.

Ontario will overpower Rancho Alamitos, 30-19, Charter Oak will chastise Royal Oak 21,6, Anaheim will outlast Chaffey, 24-20 and Ontario Christian will take the measure of CSDR, 19-6.

On Saturday, Montclair will be on the short end of a 20-14 score to Alta Loma, and Rowland will romp, 18-6, over Yucaipa.

Three valley colleges open the season in Saturday battles. But it will be a sad day for the West's answer to the Ivy League.

Visiting Whitman of Walla Walla, Wash. will wince, but the Pomona-Pitzer Sagehens will fall, 18-14, while U. San Diego will saddle Claremont-Mudd with a 28-7 loss, and Whittier will whip La Verne, 26-13, in a Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference battle.

The Cal Poly Broncos make their home debut against rugged Sacramento State, but the outcome . . . kaff-kaff . . . well, have you ever kissed your sister. A 20-20 tie! Harumph.

The Azusa Pacific Cougars won't have the same feeling, they'll hand Occidental the kiss . . . of death, 21-20.

Valley community colleges will be in their second week of action and some thrillers are in store. Oh yes, indeed!

The MSAC Mounties, seeking their second victory in a row, will have the show steolen by the Golden West Rustlers, 34-24. In Mission Conference biggies, Chaffey will slip and slide in a 26-7 loss to Saddleback, while the Citrus Owls, humiliated a week ago by MSAC, 34-0, will hoot their way past Palomar, 24-18, in a shocker! Egad, indeed.

Intersectional clashes highlight action across the nation Saturday afternoon. There's sad news in store for the Georgia Tech faithful as all of the Hoople Indicators point to a Trojan victory by 29-12. The Michigan-Stanford contest appears to a closer match with the Wolverines finishing on the long end of a 26-20 tally! And closer than that will be the 17-16 victory margin for Missouri over Don Lawrence's resurgent Virginia club — kaff-kaff!

The Cornhuskers — Wolfpack meeting in Lincoln, Nebraska, will be a real barnburner — heh-heh — with the Nebraska lads outscoring the North Carolinians, 37-27. The Florida State — Kansas game will be closely contested all the way. Both clubs are rebuilding this season with untried material. Our nod goes to the Seminoles, 28-22.

Other engagements worthy of special note have Alabama kicking off its drive for the Southeastern title against Kentucky, Kent State, seeking its second consecutive Mid-America crown, takes on Ohio U., and Ara Parseghian unveils his 1973 Notre Dame club against the Northwestern Wildcats. We confidently predict victories for Alabama, 17-10, Kent State, 16-14, and the Irish, 35-14 — har-rumph!

Now go on with the forecast.

Mountie runners in debut

Coming off two undefeated dual meet seasons in the South Coast Conference, Mt. San Antonio opens the 1973 cross country season Friday afternoon at Orange Coast College.

Returning from the 1972 team are Dave Andrews, Steve Cases, Terry Dunn, Dave Frickle and Dave Lazarin. Early season workouts indicate none are assured starters.

Freshmen runners Arthur Eddy (Edgewood), Mark Lotich (Bassett), Marc Sortillon (Ganesha) and Bob Watanabe (San Dimas) may unseat last year's top runners.

Additional hope for another fine season lays with Steve Koenig of Pomona. Steve will be returning from the undefeated 1971 team after serving a year in the U.S. Army.

Following Friday's opener, the Mounties travel north for the Moorpark Invitational in Thousand Oaks Saturday.

Citrus, coming off a 15-50 sweep of Golden West last week, will vie for the small schools title in the Moorpark meet.

Lugo impressive in first scrum

CHINO — Don Antonio Lugo of Chino outscored the Alta Loma frosh five touchdowns to one Saturday.

The Conquistadors indicated a strong offense for the upcoming season as tight end Pat Kryziak caught TD passes of 65 and 25 yards from quarterback Chris Pruitt. Halfback Ralph Vasquez joined in on the scoring with a 35-yard scoring gallop while backfield mate Bob Smythe added a four-yard score. Pruitt also tallied on a one-yard sneak.

Defensive standouts were end Bill Kramer and back Mike Daubensteck while offensive guard Ray Perez was impressive.

Don Lugo opens its campaign at home against Brea Linda today at 3:15 p.m. The Conquistadores were 9-1 in 1972.

First down Rams

LOS ANGELES UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams picked up the record total of 38 first downs in their 55-14 win over the N.Y. Giants, Nov. 13, 1966.

Berra looks more brilliant each night

By United Pres sInternational

Yogi Berra is looking more brilliant every night.

A combination of Merlin and Mr. Magoo, Berra sometimes makes very strange managerial decisions but he seems to have a whammy on the Pittsburgh Pirates and he's got the New York Mets on a merry chase for a ridiculous National League East pennant which will probably be won by a team playing .500 ball.

Berra, who has held a weak grip on his job most of this season, was the object of criticism again Tuesday night when he brought in a rookie with no major league experience to pitch to Pittsburgh in a crucial spot in the ninth inning of a do-or-die game. The rookie, Bob Apodaca, walked two but the Mets held on to squeeze out a 6-5 victory and Berra's neck was saved.

But Berra, who was fired after leading the New York Yankees to their last pennant in 1964, found only admirers surrounding him last night as the Mets played beautiful baseball, flashing power, pitching and defense to crush the Pirates 7-3 for the 11th time in 16 meetings this year and make a mad scramble of the division race.

"I finally have my whole team back," Yogi said. "I've been saying since the beginning of the season we could win the division if we stay healthy. I lost my shortstop (Bud Harrelson) for two months, my catcher (Jerry Grote) for two months and (Cleon) Jones for six weeks. People can criticize all they want. They can blame me for our losing if they want but when we got back together, we started winning."

Jones, Berra's top gun last night with five runs batted in on two long homers, echoed his coach's assessment of the Mets' sudden surge into the pennant picture they are tied with St. Louis for third, only a halfgame back of Montreal and 1 ½ behind Pittsburgh—after spending most of the season in the cellar.

In other NL games, Chicago beat Montreal 8-6, Philadelphia tripped St. Louis 3-2, San Diego whipped Houston 6-3 after the Astros beat the Padres 8-5 in the opener of the twinbill, Los Angeles downed Atlanta 4-1 and Cincinnati defeated an Francisco 5-1.

Two-run homers by Rick Monday, Ron Santo and Billy Williams carried the Cubs over Montreal after the Expos had jumped out to a 5-1 lead in the first inning.

Denny Doyle doubled to highlight a two-run fifth inning and help Philadelphia's Steve Carlto win his 12th game against 19 losses at the expense of St. Louis.

Fred Norman, a mid-season acquisition, won his 11th game for Cincinnati on a two-hitter as the Reds reduced their NL West title clinching magic number to five with their victory over San Francisco.

Joe Morgan opened the fourth with his 24th homer and singles by Dan Driessen and Tony Perez plus a double by Cesar Geronimo and a single by Norman added three runs.

MSAC tankmen beat Cypress

CYPRESS — The MSAC water polo squad, led by Henry Rodriguez' four goal performance, routed Cypress College Wednesday afternoon, 8-3, in a warmup for Friday's Gaucho Invitational at Santa Barbara.

Ron Strain contributed two other goals to the Mounties' cause.

Deer in good condition but scattered for Saturday

LONG BEACH — Abundant water and a plentiful supply of food have improved the quality of Southern California and Inyo-Mono deer herds during the past year, but they pose a special problem for the hunter.

Because of good forage conditions in most areas, deer will be dispersed for the opening of the inland and late deer seasons, both of which begin Saturday, Sept. 22.

Areas in the inland deer season, which concludes Oct. 22, of special interest to Southern Californians are Mono, Inyo and San Bernardino counties.

The late season, which extends through Nov. 11, includes the Southern California counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, Imperial and San Diego. The limit is one buck, two points or better in each season.

All deer season areas and regulations are shown in the 1973 Hunting Regulations booklet, available from Department of Fish and Game offices or wherever hunting licenses are sold, including most sporting goods stores.

Most public deer hunting will be on national forest lands. All hunters are urged to check with the U.S. Forest Service to obtain maps and specific information on forest access and areas that may be closed because of high fire hazard.

Despite dispersal of the deer, the buck hunting picture is slightly better than last year. Weather, as always, will play an important role in hunter success.

Here is an area by area outlook compiled from the reports of wildlife managers and game wardens:

LOS ANGELES COUNTY — Feed and water conditions are excellent, and as a result deer are scattered throughout all ranges and elevations. Areas with heavy acorn crops and readily available water should draw concentrations of deer during the latter part of the season.

Little change has occurred in the structure of the deer herd during the past year. There was a good buck carryover and there should be adequate numbers of deer in young age classes. Most of the bucks will have hard antlers.

Hunting pressure has shown a steady decline during the past seven years, and, except for certain popular areas, this decline is expected to continue. The buck kill as a result should be approximately the same as last year or slightly less.

Some of the better hunting opportunities are to be found in the Mt. Gleason area, Pacifico Mountain, along the west fork of the San Gabriel River and in the Sawmill-Liebre Mountain Region. The potential is fair on the north slope of the San Gabriel Mountains near Pinyon Ridge and Pine Mountain Ridge.

Heavy concentrations of hunters in the San Gabriel Canyon for several years has resulted in very low hunter success. The solution may be to move to the higher elevations such as Mt. Williamson, Twin Peaks, Pleasant View Ridge, Mt. Hawkins east of Crystal Lake and the area south of Upper Prairie Fork and Fish Fork. Incidentally, the Crystal Lake area itself is closed to firearms.

Prospects in the Santa Monica Mountains are poor. Most of deer population is at higher elevations, and few have been observed. A caution on hunting here. Most of the deer ranges are on private lands, and permission must be obtained from the owner to hunt. Also, much of the area is closed to firearms.

The northern slopes of the San Gabriel Mountains adjacent to the Antelope Valley are extremely dry and dusty and a high fire danger exists. Grass and twigs are brittle and hunting conditions poor.

Hunters can obtain maps and information on firearms closures at ranger stations within the Angeles National Forest.

There are few access problems to deer ranges and road conditions are good. The opeing over the past several years of large areas within the forest once closed to firearms should increase the potential somewhat.

ORANGE COUNTY — Browse and water conditions are much better than last year; consequently deer are in good condition but well scattered.

As usual there will be a shift from chaparral ranges to agricultural lands during the latter part of the season, and that will spell slow hunting for the unattached hunter. Permission must be obtained to hunt on private lands.

For the unattached hunter the best bet is within the open parts of the Trabuco District in the Cleveland National Forest. The Sierra Peak region will be open, but because of locked gates on private lands, a serious hunter concentration problem may arise.

This is the third year Orange County is included in the late season, and hunting pressure is expected to be about the same as last year. The late season schedule has practically eliminated the hunter concentration problem except Sierra Peak, but this situation should be remedied next year by construction of an access road to circumvent locked gates.

Within the southern portion of the district public access from Highway 74 is provided by the Long Canyon Road to Blue Jay Campground into the Chiquito Springs and Los Pinos Peak areas.

Hunters should check with ranger stations for fire closures. During the fire season much of the Santa Ana Mountain area is closed to public entry.

There has been little change in structure of the deer herd. The winter saw a good buck carry-over, and there are adequate numbers of deer in younger age classes. Most bucks will have hard antlers.

If fire closures are held to a minimum and there is sufficient hunter pressure, hunter success should be higher than last year. On private lands the deer take is expected to be about the same as in 1971. Last year the Irvine Ranch was closed to hunting which helped reduce the buck kill.

Hunters familiar with the Eastern San Bernardino area will find little change in the access situation this year. Fourth of July Canyon is blocked by a locked gate on private property.

Hunters are reminded that permission from the landowner or his authorized agent must be obtained before hunting on or crossing over privately owned lands.

WESTERN PORTIONS OF RIVERSIDE AND SAN BERNARDINO COUNTIES — Last year was the first year that San Bernardino County was in the shorter inland season, and the total deer kill was approximately 60 per cent below previous years.

Hunter success again will be substantially below the years when this area was in the longer season but will be about the same as last year.

As elsewhere in the state, deer forage and range conditions are generally good and the deer are in good condition; however, they will be well dispersed and hunters should not expect to be successful unless they are prepared to do some hiking.

In San Bernardino National Forest the best areas include Burro Flat, Cleghorn Mountain, Lone Pine Canyon and North Fork of Lytle Creek.

If fire closures in the area are lifted, lands along the Santa Ana River below Keller Meadow should be good hunting areas.

Hunters are urged to check with the Forest Service to obtain the latest information on fire closures. They also should check with the county to obtain the latest information on firearms closure areas.

UPPER COLORADO RIVER — The deer population in this area is very low, and most of the deer range lies within the Colorado River Indian Reservation. Hunting permits are required on the reservation, and firearms are limited to shotguns.

Access is good to nearly all parts of the deer range which is concentrated in the riparian and agricultural lands along the river. Hunters should be especially careful of shooting near houses.

The dense vegetation, hot weather and low buck density will make hunting difficult, and this year's take is expected to be lower than last year when four bucks were killed, a high for the last five seasons.

EASTERN SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY — If hunters are willing to work hard for their deer, a higher kill probably will occur in portions of Eastern San Bernardino County.

Food conditions for the deer are generally good to excellent, indicating that deer will be scattered throughout the range. Unlike some past years, hunters should not expect to find numbers of deer concentrated near water supplies or near a few areas with good forage.

Fire danger is high throughout the district, the result of good winter rainfalls and a long dry summer. All hunters are urged to use the utmost caution in their use of campfires and while smoking.

Campgrounds at Hole in the Wall and at Mid Hills are recommended to hunters who will be camping out. Prepared campfire sites at these locations will help reduce the chances of accidental fires.

In western Riverside County most of the deer will be taken in the Cleveland and San Bernardino National Forests. In past years the most productive areas have been west of Tenaja and Elsinore Peak in the Santa Ana Mountains, the old Banning Idyllwild Road, Thomas Mountain and Palm View Peak in the San Jacinto Mountains, and the north side of the Santa Rosa Mountains.

Hunter success will be about the same as last year. However, opening day hunters probably will not fare as well as those who wait for the two weeks of the season in the San Jacinto, Santa Rosa and Santa Ana mountains areas.

Deer are most likely to be found in the oak woodland areas, and in the early part of the season canyon bottoms probably will be good areas.

A fire closure is in effect in parts of the Forests for the opening of the season, and hunters should check with the Forest Service to find out exactly where the closed areas are.

Owls, Panthers eye conference starts

The drawing boards were busy in Alta Loma and Azusa after last weekend's football opener. Chaffey suffered a 31-7 defeat to Cerritos, while cross valley rival Citrus was on the short end of a 34-0 count to Mr. San Antonio.

Citrus and Chaffey open Mission Conference play this week and both coaches John Strycula and Willie Richardson wish they had more time.

"I'm not really that happy about opening conference play so soon," said Richardson, the Panther coach. "We made a lot of mistakes last week that we'd like to work out."

Chaffey visits defending conference champion Saddleback Saturday, while Citrus plays rugged Palomar at Escondido High. Both games are scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Owls were guilty of nine turnovers—three pass interceptions and six fumbles—in the los sto MSAC, but Strycula hasn't given up on his squad yet.

"I still think we have as good a personnel as we've ever had at Citrus. But we can't beat anybody with nine turnovers."

Especially encouraging was the performance of tailback Doug Hopper, whose effort was seemingly lost in the confusion of six fumbles. Hopper, a newcomer carried the ball 26 times for 94 yards net.

Defensively, the Owls didn't play that badly, considering MSAC had field position many times, thanks to the turnovers. Tackles Leon Hooker and John Allen came in for special praise.

Smith nets second round Open victory

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Even 10 years ago, Stan Smith stood out.

"You're too big and clumsy and might get in the way of the players," Smith was told as a youth when he was rejected as a ball boy for a series of Davis Cup matches at the Los Angeles Tennis Club.

The quiet Smith, raised in nearby Pasadena, is now trying to repeat as champion of the $75,000 Pacific Southwest Open Tennis tournament.

Top-seeded, Smith was extended to three sets but managed to come from behind to turn back Dick Bohrnstedt of Redlands, Calif., 5-7, 6-2, 6-3 and advanced past the second round Wednesday.

Roscoe Tanner, the 1972 runnerup, was not so fortunate, however, as he was ted a 5-1 lead and was overcame by Mexican Davis Cupper Raul Ramirez, 6-3 7-6. Tanner was 14th seeded.

Other top seeded players remaining in competition all won their matches Wednesday as third-ranked Arthur Ashe downed Sweden's Tenny Svennson, 7-5. 6-3; fourthrated Ken Rosewall disposed of Stanford's Alex Mayer, 7-5, 6-1; and sixthseeded Jimmy Connors defeated veteran Pancho Gonzales, 7-6, 6-3.

Smith was leading 9-4 in the first set when Bohrnstedt, who had surprisingly ousted fifthseeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia in the opening round, won the final three games to win the set. But Smith reasserted himself and took the remaining two sets.

"I had trouble returning his serves in the first set," Smith explained.

Suns waive Mo Layton

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) —The Phoenix Suns of the National Basketball Association put two-year-man Mo Layton on waivers Wednesday.

Layton, a 6-foot-1 guard, was a third-round Suns draft choice out of Southern California in 1971. He averaged nine points a game with the Suns his rookie year and seven last season, when his playing time was reduced.

Free football

CLAREMONT — Bill Arce, Athletic Director for Claremont-Mudd, announced today that Saturday's opening football game with the University of San Diego at 1:30 p.m. will be an open gate affair with no admission charged.

Pomona-Pitzer, which hosts Whitman College Saturday night at 7:30 p.m., had previously announced the game would be free to the public.

Thus Valley football fans can see two opening games Saturday without having to pay any admission.

Pop Warner Bruins win 13th in row

Three Pomona Pop Warner football teams started their seasons with impressive victories.

The Pomona Bruins (Pee Wee) got revenge for their only defeat of last year by beating the Ontario Packers, 27-12, for their 13th consecutive win.

Quarterback Kennedy Royston led the Bruins to 316 rushing yards. Edwin Morris scored two touchdowns, running for 137 yards on 17 carries, while Jimmy Spotville ran for 90 yards and one TD on nine tries.

Both Morris and James Murdock intercepted passes for touchdowns to lead the defense.

Meanwhile, the Pomona Chargers (Junior Pee Wee) blanked Banning, 32-0, on Marc Pruitt's three touchdown runs of 50, 50 and 20 yards. The Trojans (Pee Wee) blanked the Upland Redskins, 13-0.

The Pomona teams will play at home this Sunday at Garey High beginning at 11 a.m.

Claremont teams compiled a 2-0-1 record in the first week.

The Raiders (Junior Pee Wee) enjoyed a 12-0 shutout win over the Pomona Razorbacks behind Vince Matthews, who scored two touchdowns while rushing for 150 yards on 10 carries. The Claremont defense, led by linebacker Tracy Sims and tackle Dan Sanders, held Pomona to minus 25 yards.

In Pee Wee play, the Claremont Bucs downed the Diamond Bar Chiefs, 18-0, on touchdowns by Steve Darrett, Mark Smith and Scott Andry. The Claremont Warriors (Midget) played the Diamond Bar Dons to a 6-6 deadlock with Takashi Brown's TD tying the score for the Warriors in the fourth quarter. Gary Schaller was outstanding on defense.

Chino's Pop Warner teams earned three shoutout victories.

The Midget Division Colts blanked the Santa Ana Dons, 6-0, with David Pickens scoring after Ronnie Lopez caught a 60-yard pass. The Pee Wee Dusters scored in the second and fourth quarters on runs by Ernest Lujan to beat the Banning Bandidos, 13-0. The Junior Pee Mavericks put together a rushing and passing attack to take a 26-0 shutout over the San Dimas-La Verne Lancers.

Diamond Bar opened with a 2-2-2 record.

The newly formed Little Guys (Tiny Tots) blanked the SD-LV Spartans, 13-0, at Lorbeer Junior High on quarterback Roger Pammation's two runs. Pammation passed to Craig Padalford for the extra point.

In another shutout, the Lobos beat the Montclair Renegades, 14-0, on TD runs of 23 and 57 yards by Todd Woods. Tim Allyn and Scott Fontes intercepted passes to hold Montclair to minus 16 yards.

The Bandidos played the Fontana Falcons to a scoreless tie while the Dons had to settle for a 6-6 deadlock with the Claremont Warriors after Rick Maldonada scored in the first quarter.

In the losses, the Chiefs fell to the Claremont Bucs, 18-0, and the Gauchos took a 20-0 defeat from the Fontana Wolves.

Four Upland teams recorded victories.

The Raiders (Pee Wee) beat the SD-LV Vikings, 13-6, on TDs by Terry Stewart and Robby Perry. The T-Birds (Jr. Pee Wee) topped the Ontario Bears, 8-0, on a 34-yard pass from Ted Butler to Scott Spalding plus a safety on a tackle by Steve Maynard and Danny Kuresa. The T-Birds blocked two punts and intercepted two passes. The Chargers (Pee Wee) blanked the SD-LV Gladiators, 19-0, on a pair of touchdowns by Keith Hardin and one by Dick Chapman. Hardin, Scott Smith and Steve Tsuchiyama intercepted passes.

In the other Upland games, the Redksins fell to the Pomona Trojans, 13-0; the Rams lost to the SD-LV Tartans, 12-0; and the Bandits played the Fontana Eagles to a 7-7 tie.

The Mustangs (Midget) whipped the SD-LV Trojans, 24-0, on a pair of touchdowns by John Noss plus one by Alan Ravitch. Jim Moore kicked two conversions for four points and Ravitch accounted for a safety.

Upland woman, L.A. boy, 9, killed in city accidents

POMONA — A young Upland woman and a Los Angeles child were killed in separate traffic accidents here Wednesday night.

The Upland woman, Candice Scott Campbell, 23, 2424 Sierra Drive, was killed when the pickup truck she was in slammed into a street light standard at Towne Avenue and Phillips Boulevard shortly after 11 p.m.

Nine-year-old Felipe Valtierra was killed in a two-car collision on the Pomona Freeway at Dudley Street which also injured four other persons. That accident was shortly after 7.

Miss Campbell was a passenger in a pickup driven by Dennis Michael Sheehy, 25, Monrovia. Sheehy told police they were southbound on Towne Avenue when a station wagon ran a stop sign westbound in Phillips and he swerved to avoid it. His pickup went out of control and slammed broadside into the standard, Sheehy said.

A witness told officers that the other car, described as a Chevrolet Vega, either metallic blue or gray, sped away westbound after the driver turned off his lights. The witness said the station wagon appeared to contain two persons.

Sheehy said that after the truck crashed into the pole, he first checked Miss Campbell and found her bleeding heavily from a head injury. He said that when he looked for the station wagon, it had gone.

Miss Campbell was pronounced dead on arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The body was taken to Pollock Mortuary while authorities attempted to contact her parents in Northbrook, Ill. Sheehy was unhurt.

Police are seeking the driver of the station wagon.

In the Pomona Freeway accident, vehicles driven by Raul Robert Vela, 35, and Frank Valtierra, 41, both of Los Angeles, were eastbound.

Highway patrolmen are unsure if the Vela car swerved to the right, colliding with the right rear of the Valtierra camper, or if the Valtierra vehicle swerved to the left, colliding with the right-front of the Vela auto.

The collision resulted in Valtierra losing control, and all four of his passengers being ejected. Nine-year-old Felipe, son of the driver, was dead on arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The driver and his wife, Josephina, 37, were both admitted to the hospital. He suffered facial cuts and bruises and she a back injury, officials said. Their other child, Rafael, 3, was treated at the hospital and released.

Vela and his son, Richard, 9, were also treated at the hospital for minor injuries and later released.

The accident is still under investigation, officers said.

Three ailing sextuplets improving

DENVER (UPI) —Three of the five surviving Stanek sextuplets today showed signs of overcoming the lung disease that killed their infant sister. Doctors however, said, the children were still endangered.

"We can't put any percentage on it because their condition can change from hour to hour," said a spokesman for the University of Colorado Medical Center. "We're all hoping at the moment there's no reason for any grave concern. The prognosis has to be guarded. But the longer they survive, the better off they are."

The father of the sextuplets, a junior accountant, talked with pediatricians keeping watch over the 4-day-old infants and said two of the children in poor condition had rallied.

"They improved somewhat over the night," he said. "They're aren't any specifics on their conditions available as of yet, however."

The hospital said two of the infants born by Caesarian section Sunday night within a four-minute interval to the 34-year-old mother were fair. The fifth child, John, the first one born, was in good condition.

Guards were stationed outside the obstetrics ward nursery to keep out the curious. They turned away one impersonator who claimed to be the childrens' father.

House promises top priority to Senate's pension measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate has passed a bill to assure 38 million working people that the pensions they anticipate will be available when they retire.

The measure would also give tax advantages to induce millions more—the self-employed and workers whose companies do not offer pensions —to provide for their retirement years.

The bill was approved by a 93-0 vote Wednesday night despite some criticism that it promised too much and didn't do enough. It was sent to the House, where Speaker Carl Albert has promised to give the matter top priority this year.

The bill's chief provision would require that anyone who works more than five years under a pension plan will receive, upon reaching retirement age, at least a fraction of a full pension.

Senate studies showed that only a minority of the 38 million workers enrolled under 20,000 differing pension plans would actually receive payments. Many of the plans pay nothing unless the worker stays on until age 60 or 65.

But nothing in the bill compels an employer to establish a pension plan or fixes the amount of pensions. Those matters are left to labor-management bargaining. The average pension paid today amounts to $141 a month.

Other provisions insure pension funds so workers would collect even if their companies fail and require employers to set aside, over 31 years, enough money to meet their pension obligations.

The $2,500 which existing law permits the self-employed to deduct from taxes and invest toward retirement would be tripled, to $7,500, as President Nixon proposed. The retiree would have to pay taxes on the money when he starts collecting.

Another tax provision would permit workers not covered by pension plans to set aside for retirement and deduct from current taxes up to $1,500 a year. This will reduce the government's revenues by an estimated $350 million a year. Nixon had proposed a $2,500 deduction.

Led by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., liberals succeeded in voting to impose for the first time a limit on the size of corporate tax deductions for executive pensions.

The Senate formula would limit firms, including the "professional corporations" set up by doctors and lawyers who incorporate themselves for tax savings, to tax deductions large enough to provide pensions of up to $75,000 a year. That is considerably less than the $200,000-range pensions many corporations now award top people out of tax-deductible funds.

Under the bill, workers are assured partial vesting—a guaranteed payment in retirement —after five years at a job in a firm which offers a pension plan.

Specifically, the bill requires 25 per cent vesting after five years employment, 50 per cent after 10 years and 100 per cent after 15 years.

LUCKY OR UNLUCKY DAY?

This three-story garage in downtown New York collapsed with a roar Wednesday, toppling autos like toys atop one another and spilling some into the street. Three persons, known to be working in the garage, escaped after a warning rumble. Depressed car owners, however, counted blessings in being alive.

Aides say Nixon feels Watergate days behind him

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon feels that the "difficult days" of the Watergate scandal are behind him, White House aides said today.

Outwardly, the chief executive appears more relaxed and smiling than he did during the months following the first Watergate disclosure. His doctors say that he has made a "excellent recovery" from his bout with viral pneumonia last July.

"He feels the difficult days of last May and June are passed, and the country is putting Watergate in perspective," one aide said.

He said that Nixon's attitude comes from his belief that in the country as a whole "people want to get on with other matters" such as dealing with inflation and the fuel shortage.

Nixon has been concentrating almost exclusively on his domestic program, aides said, and will continue to do so as long as Congress is in session.

The concentration on the domestic affairs left up in the air whether Nixon will make his projected journey to Europe this fall. Aides said that he will not decide this finally until he has a better idea what the "substantive results" of the trip might be. They do not expect a decision until after more soundings are taken with European leaders.

Exchange students to be feted at fair

POMONA — American Field Service chapters throughout the Southland will be honoring their exchange students during a special day at the 46th Los Angeles County Fair Friday.

Besides being taken on a tour of the huge fair, the students will be hosted at a reception on Picnic Hill at 5 p.m.

Thousands of exhibits are on display throughout the fair, including the entrancing "Polynesian Village," a hillside of landscape and patio ideas, a huge fern and shade garden and hundreds of individual floral displays at the Flower and Garden Show.

Elegant, yet casual, entertaining where guests and hosts share the fun is illustrated in "Designs for Dining and Entertaining," displayed in the Interior Design Showcase.

Also on display are the blue ribbon-winning community and county exhibits from throughout the state.

Attendance Wednesday, the sixth day of the 1973 exposition, totaled 40,768, a little less than the 42,282 on a comparable Wednesday in 1972, the fair's record-setting year when 1,268,466 went through the turnstiles during the 14-day run of the exposition.

Among visitors to the fair Wednesday were State Controller Houston I. Flournoy, and members of the Board of Supervisors, including board chairman Peter Schabarum.

The fair has attracted 368,429 visitors during its first six days, compared to 369,613 last year.

Among the many free attractions at the fair is the nightly Polack Bros. Circus in the grandstand at 8 p.m.

100 rooms damaged

Hundreds evacuated in Las Vegas hotel blaze

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Several hundred persons were evacuated from the multimillion dollar Caesars Palace Hotel early today when fire broke out on the seventh floor of a high-rise tower.

Some 100 rooms were damaged by smoke as guests were evacuated from three floors. Smoke damage to the rooms and the hallway on the seventh floor was extensive.

Some of those evacuated were given oxygen at the scene after being led down smokefilled stairways. There were no serious injuries.

The Osmond Brothers were staying in the north wing of the hotel where the fire broke out and were among those evacuated.

The 905-room gambling spa was filled with numerous convention delegates, some of whom were attending the National Insurance Agents Association Conference.

A dozen Clark County fire units responded to the blaze and backup units from the city of Las Vegas stood by as crews administered oxygen to smoke inhalation victims.

When the fire first broke out shortly after 3 a.m., flames were visible on the north side of the hotel. The fire was controlled within 20 minutes.

A spokesman for the fire department said the evacuation was orderly and there was no panic. Many were led from the hotel in their nightclothes.

Firemen said a grill decoration on the outside of the rooms kept some people from jumping. The cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

A hotel spokesman said 66 rooms were evacuated and 100 rooms would be out of use because of the smoke damage.

Jet returns to L.A. as bomb threat reported

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A United Airlines 747 bound for Honolulu with 85 persons aboard returned to Los Angeles Wednesday night after a telephoned bomb threat was received, authorities reported.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said Flight 111 with 71 passengers and a crew of 14 returned to Los Angeles International Airport 27 minutes after takeoff so police bomb squad members could search for the reported bomb.

A United spokesman said the telephoned threat came shortly after the plane departed. He said a United operations officer received a call from somebody who sounded like a child saying the next flight would have a bomb aboard.

The United official asked which flight, and the caller said the one bound for Hawaii.

The pilot was radioed the information and he elected to return to Los Angeles, the spokesman said.

Nixon 'supremacy' attitude rapped

EAST VINELAND, N.J. (UPI) —Former White House aide Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr. said Wednesday night President Nixon has plunged the nation into a constitutional crisis with attitudes of "supremacy."

Schlesinger, who spoke at a $50-per-plate Democratic fundraiser, said Nixon has violated the constitution by permitting bombing in Cambodia, impounding congressional funds and refusing to release Watergate-related tapes.

"The President has habits and attitudes of presidential supremacy that have created that disease," he said.

Deadline at hand

Still no compromise on tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Working right up to a court-imposed deadline, the White House and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox tried today to find a compromise to their dispute over President Nixon's Watergate tapes.

A few hours before lawyers for the two sides were to go before a federal appeals court to report on their efforts a source close to the situation said "we're still working on it" and it was learned a third meeting to try to resolve the dilemma was held Wednesday.

Cox insists that a federal grand jury considering further Watergate indictments must hear the tape recordings of nine presidential conversations about the scandal before taking action.

Nixon contends that surrendering the tapes would violate essential confidentiality in the Oval Office and destroy the presidency.

Indications were the two sides were still far apart, although administration sources indicated that the President was willing to compromise by offering Cox edited transcripts of the tapes, deleted of material that he feels must remain secret in the public interest.

The tapes are of conversations between the President and his aides, concerning the Watergate affair, and were made at a time when Nixon's office conversations were routinely recorded. Both Cox and the Senate Watergate committee want them. Cox petitioned to have them turned over to a grand jury. District Court Judge John J. Sirica ruled that he should hear them first.

Both the White House and Cox then went to the appeals court—the White House seeking to have Sirica's ruling vacated; Cox seeking to have it strengthened.

It was learned that one proposal advanced by the White House was to provide Cox with "excerpted transcripts" of the recordings after the White House reviewed them.

Poll puts Cranston on top in 1974 race

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California Poll reported recently that Democratic Sen. Alan Cranston currently holds large leads over Gov. Ronald Reagan and two others who have been mentioned as possible GOP opponents against him in the 1974 election.

Pollster Mervin D. Field found that Cranston led Reagan by a 53 per cent to 39 per cent margin with 8 per cent undecided.

Agnew controversy spreads to Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The controversy surrounding Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's future has spread to Capitol Hill.

A group of House Democrats, led by Rep. John Conyers of Michigan, met Wednesday to discuss the Agnew situation but refused to reveal the substance of the closed door talks. Earlier this year, the same group explored the possibility of impeachment proceedings against President Nixon.

Following the meeting in Conyers' office, Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said "Something will come out of this (meeting). We're going to do something and you'll know about it when the times comes."

Earlier Wednesday, a spokesman for the House Judiciary Committee said some panel members had discussed the Agnew case among themselves, but denied a report that Justice Department officials were present during the discussions. The committee has jurisdiction over impeachment investigations.

In other developments:

—Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a strong supporter and close Agnew friend, said in New York he believed the vice president "would seriously consider resignation if he were indicted." Later, Agnew aides said Goldwater's remark was "one man's opinion."

—A federal grand jury in Baltimore was scheduled to meet today under tight security to begin investigating alleged corruption in Maryland politics. Agnew was told by U.S. Attorney George Beall Aug. 1 that he was under investigation as part of this inquiry into alleged kickbacks from contractors.

There has been no official confirmation of reports that Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has given a go-ahead for any presentation to the grand jury of information from the Agnew investigation.

Rep. Edward Mezvinsky of Iowa, one of about 20 Democrats who met in Conyers' office, said "all the issues coming out of Watergate as well as the controversy over Agnew were explored in a general way. There was no consensus of what action, if any, should be taken. And none was sought, it was just a general discussion of all the issues."

Gordon Liddy plea

'I'm not guilty'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —G. Gordon Liddy, already convicted in the Watergate break-in, pleaded "not guilty" in a loud, clear voice today to the burglary of the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Liddy was brought to Superior Court before Judge James G. Kolts after being flown here from Washington, D. C., for arraignment in the case which also involves John Ehrlichman, Egil "Bud" Krogh and David Young.

Looking natty in a light blue suit and standing erect before the judge, Liddy said that he was attempting to arrange free attorney services through the American Civil Liberties Union but asked the court to appoint an attorney for him in the meantime "since I am indigent."

Judge Kolts asked Liddy whether he had no funds at all to pay an attorney.

"Not unless he would be willing to accept the $34 I have with me at the county jail," Liddy said.

Kolts ordered a public defender to act at least temporarily on Liddy's behalf.

His not guilty plea followed similar pleas of innocent by Ehrlichman, former top aide to President Nixon, and two other former White House aides.

Ehrlichman, Young and Krogh were not in court today but were represented by their lawyers for setting of a trial date in the case which involves the break-in at the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding on Labor Day weekend 1971.

Kolts called the attorneys into his chambers for a discussion of "housekeeping" matters in setting a trial date and possibly hearing motions for severance by the defendants so that they would not be tried as a block.

Aborigine girl, 7, plucked from home to marry

SYDNEY (UPI) —The Australian government said today a seven-year-old aboriginal girl, who has lived most of her life in a comfortable foster home, has been sent back to her ancestral tribe against her will to marry a middle-aged man.

A cabinet minister told Parliament authorities took Nola Brown from her middle class home in a Darwin suburb because of a marriage contract made at her birth by her natural father and her husband-to-be.

"We told them we considered this to be too short a time to allow Nola to get used to the idea," Athold Brown, her white foster father, said. "She screamed and cried and said she wanted to stay with us."

Aboriginal Affairs Minister Gordon Bryant told Parliament Nola would have to spend the rest of her life living in a rustic shack on the banks of a river in Australia's hinterlands.

Nola had lived with Brown and his wife in a suburb of Darwin since a few months after being born prematurely in a welfare settlement and placed in a hospital.

"I understand in this particular tribal situation the promising has taken place in the past and that at some time in the future, say at 10 or 12, the actual promise will or is likely to be consumated," he said.

Bryant said the government has no legal power to intervene. "We can only hope that the child is happily placed with her natural parents," Bryant said.

Colson now silent,

WASHINGTON (UPI) —After losing his bid for immunity, former White House aide Charles W. Colson turned silent before the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., told reporters after the 2-½ hour closed session that because of Colson's refusal to talk about the bugging scandal he had been eliminated as a witness when the committee resumes public hearings next Monday.

Networks to resume Watergate coverage

NEW YORK (UPI) —The three commercial television networks will continue their rotating live coverage of the Senate Watergate hearings for next week's sessions, spokesmen announced Wednesday.

The agreement, however, covers only the Watergate sessions next week, expected to conclude "phase 1" of the Senate committee's investigation into the circumstances surrounding the burglary last year at the Democratic National Committee.

Spokesmen for the networks said they will be meeting in the future to discuss possible coverage of the committee's "phase 2" investigation of national campaign financing and activities.

3 killed, 5 hurt in mysterious pool hall blast

PASO ROBLES, Calif. (UPI) —Three persons were killed and five others were injured Wednesday when a mysterious explosion ripped apart a pool hall in the downtown area.

Authorities said Harold Zernes, 53, Florencio Chaides, 63, both of Paso Robles, and Mullis Baxter, 77, of Atascadero were killed when the blast ripped the small structure, causing the roof to collapse on the victims.

Fire department officials were investigating the cause of the blast, and investigators believed gas leaking under the floor of the one-story structure could have ignited.

"It didn't look as though anybody in there had a chance," said George Tharlden, whose drugstore is located 60 feet from the pool hall. "We thought our place had exploded."

At least one victim was blown out of the building and on to the sidewalk by the force of the blast, authorities said.

Police said five persons were injured, of whom four have been identified. Listed in critical condition at Paso Robles War Memorial Hospital was Martha Martinez, 25, the pool hall bartender, while Edgar Hanson, 72, of Shandon, was listed as serious.

Thomas J. Nalley, 24, and Jim Beecham, 58, both of Paso Robles, were also injured in the blast but their condition was unknown.

"All that's left are three walls and the floor," said officer Gary Dibble of the Paso Robles police department. In addition to the destruction of the pool hall, a number of windows in the business district and in nearby parked cars were shattered by the force of the explosion.

Nixon jet getting $285,000 overhaul

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The White House says the interior of President Nixon's Air Force jet is undergoing a $285,000 remodeling, mostly along lines suggested by Mrs. Nixon.

Nixon housing program hit as 'too little'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Housing experts and congressional leaders say President Nixon's new housing program will do little to ease problems of the poor or prospective home owners in many credit starved states.

"On first reaction it would seem that the proposals, many of which are not yet worked out, do not fully respond to either the current emergency or the long-range housing problems," said George C. Martin, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said he was dissappointed that Nixon did not release more impounded funds for housing programs frozen since Jan. 5. Sparkman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs, also said the President's cash allowance proposal might be no more effective in curing housing ills for the poor than the frozen programs.

Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, ranking Republican on the committee, said the plan "has merit."

Nixon gave an outline of his program, based on a six month $1.2 million study, in a message to Congress Wednesday. Administration officials said details will be sent to Capitol Hill next week in the form of proposed legislation.

"After nine months of extensive study and a nine month freeze on housing programs for low-income families, the nation's cities deserve a more comprehensive, unified housing proposals than was presented today," the League and the Conference said in a joint statement.

Officials of the savings and loan industry, which finances about 55 per cent of all home mortgages yearly, said Nixon's actions to provide $5.5 billion in new construction funds fails to meet the problem. "The issue is not a scarcity of money, but the high price of credit," one said.

Acupuncture cited as arthritis aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) —More than two-thirds of 36 patients treated with acupuncture for rheumatoid arthritis experienced pain relief, reduced swelling of joints and less tenderness, a study presented this week to a National Institutes of Health workshop showed.

The study was conducted by Drs. Arnold Benson, medical director, and Ralph Coan, staff physician, at the Acupuncture Center of Washington, which has been in operation since December of 1972.

The figures were presented at a meeting at which NIH participation in scientific studies of acupuncture, the ancient Chinese practice of healing with needles, was discussed.

Gas station operators to end protest

By United Press International

Gas station operators in Massachusetts said today they would end their protest shutdown, but they vowed they would do it again if the Nixon administration refuses to change its mind on price controls.

"We've proven our point and we don't want the public to suffer any more," said John Bell, a Mobil station operator in the Boston suburb of Lexington.

Hundreds of stations across the state remained closed Wednesday for a second day despite a court order to stay open. The gasoline dealers were protesting a Cost of Living Council ruling that bars stations from passing on to their customers a penny-a-gallon increase charged by the oil companies.

In Washington, Charles Binsted, president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, said he believed some relief was in sight legislatively or through the Cost of Living Council.

"It's gotta come, or there will be shutdowns all over, for whatever reason," he said.

"It is impossible to tell the effect, in exact numbers, of Phase IV price controls," Binsted said. "We have a goodly number go out of business each year. Some do not necessarily go broke, but the business does not give them the income they need to get by.... And, I tell you, we do not need government euthanasia to help us along."

Child drowning in swim pool saved

MONTCLAIR — The quick action of a 4-year-old boy's stepfather saved the life of the boy after he accidentally fell into the deep end of a swimming pool at the Royal Palms Motel, 4780 Mission Blvd., Wednesday afternoon, according to Montclair Fire Department officials.

The boy, Ronald Floyd Jr., according to Capt. Joseph Shonert, was discovered at the bottom of swimming pool of the motel about 3:10 p.m. Wednesday. A resident at the motel, fearing the boy had drowned, phoned the fire department for assistance.

Shonert reported that on their arrival the boy had been pulled from the deep end of the swimming pool by his stepfather, Dennis Tennant. Tennant administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and partially revived the boy, who had stopped breathing. Firemen on the scene administered oxygen to the youth and an ambulance transported him to the Doctors Hospital in Montclair. The boy was later released to his stepfather in good condition.

Capt. Shonert said that the youth had been warned not to go near the pool shortly before 3 p.m. He said it appeared the boy fell in and was discovered missing 10 minutes later.

Capt. Shonert credited Tennant, whose quick action probably saved the young boy's life.

Unites from Claremont Fire Department assisted Pomona firemen in containing the fire.

For the second consecutive day Wednesday, firemen put out a fire that burned brush and debris adjacent to a residence at 525 E. Arrow Hwy. The structure is owned by Dr. Dana Pankey of Big Bear.

Ontario bicyclist hurt in collision with car

ONTARIO — A 10-year-old Ontario girl was injured Wednesday afternoon when her bicycle was struck by a car on Mission Boulevard near Vine Street, police reported.

Mary Lou Gonzales of 623 W. Maitland St. was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital after the 3:50 p.m. accident for bruises and abrasions and later was released.

Police said that the girl was riding her bicycle south on Vine Street, crossing Mission Boulevard. The girl's bicycle was struck by a car driven west on Mission Boulevard by Paul Conriquez Ramirez, 19, of 150 E. Alvarado St., Pomona.

The impact knocked the bicycle from under the girl and she fell to the pavement in front of a second car driven by Robert Vera Garcia, 32, of 1155 E. State St., Ontario. Police said Garcia swerved his car to the left to avoid hitting the girl and struck the side of Ramirez vehicle.

A witness to the accident said it appeared the girl did not stop for the red light on Mission Boulevard.

Young king takes office in Sweden

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Sweden's young new king, Carl XVI Gustaf, officially assumed his high office Wednesday with a call for "mutual understanding" and cooperation with the international community.

Sitting on the gilded throne for the first time, the 27-year-old bachelor king, who succeeded to the monarchy on the death of 90-year-old King Gustav VI Adolf last Saturday, told his eight million subjects:

"It is my wish that my royal motto "For Sweden—With the Times' shall be understood as an appeal for mutual understanding and development for the good of Sweden. At the same time it is a personal commitment."

The king also declared, "A favorable development in our country also increases our ability to work for the international community."

At the end of installation ceremonies, the king came out on the palace balcony and joined at least 20,000 of his subjects in singing the national anthem. The Swedes shouted "long live the king."

At a special cabinet meeting in the royal palace, the new king, dressed in admiral's uniform, announced that his royal name would be Carl XVI Gustaf, King of Sweden.

Carl Gustaf dropped the reference to also being king of "the Goths and the Vandals"— a reference to once powerful barbarian tribes.

The king had been promoted from lieutenant to admiral prior to the cabinet session, which began with Premier Olof Palme reading the death certificate for Gustaf VI Adolf, who died of pneumonia four months after undergoing stomach surgery.

The king, preceeded by a platoon of guards in 18th century uniforms, then walked to the hall of state where he took his place on the gilded throne.

Sitting on the purple and ermine mantle covering the throne King Carl XVI Gustaf eulogized the late monarch.

"My esteemed and beloved grandfather became a symbol for the modern monarchy," he said. "I am firmly resolved to follow his good example."

Members of the government, the Riksdag (parliament) and high officials from the armed forces and government agencies sang the "King's Song."

Miss America choice draws complaints

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J (UPI) —Miss America Pageant headquarters has received at least 200 letters complaining about this year's beauty queen choice and at least one suggested the Senate Watergate Committee take a look at the judging system.

"I would like to suggest that Sen. Sam Ervin forget about Watergate and investigate the Miss America Pageant," said Donna Garrett of Easley, S.C., who wrote a one-sentence letter.

A New York girl, who considered entering next year's pageant, said, "After this year's results it seems that the system of judging is quite unfair."

She quoted the New York Daily News as saying of Miss Colorado, Rebecca Ann King, "Her legs are a bit too skinny and she has a suggestion of a double chin," and ended the letter with a request to change the system by which 10 celebrities pick the winner on the basis of talent, evening gown and swim suit competitions.

Pageant director Albert A. Marks Jr. said after reading the letters, "I'll bet these will be the first people to tune in to the pageant this year," adding that records had been set for television viewers this year.

The mail was sprinkled with a few favorable letters. One said Miss King was "beautiful, talented and sensational, and the pageant was like no other production."

U.N.--a weak sister with strong rivalry

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Like a man old before his time, the 28th general assembly of the United Nations is being asked to answer questions usually reserved for middle age or beyond...who am I?...what am I doing here?

No longer young, nor yet living up to earlier expectations in maturity, the body intended to turn the one-world concept into dynamic reality has in the eyes of many turned flabby, its actions confined to fruitless debate and its interests devoted to nationalism and rival blocks.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim is a diplomat and as such inclined to go around an obstacle rather than through it.

But toward this 28th general assembly he took the hard line.

He said the U.N. suffered from public disillusionment and he posed two tough questions:

"Do the majority of the member states really want an organization which is more than a conference machinery and a forum for the pursuit of national policies?

"Do they want an organization which can play a useful and active role?"

When the United Nations was founded in 1945 it had a membership of 51. At the opening of the 28th general assembly its membership had grown to 132 and quickly increased to 135 with the addition of the two Germanys and Bermuda.

In the early days, the major nations, especially the United States, paid the bills and dictated the policies.

Today, the major nations still pay most of the bills but nations paying less than five percent of the budget dictate the policies, including spending.

Not until 1970 did the United States exercise its first veto in the Security Council. Altogether, as its influence and its interest in the U.N. has waned, the United States has used its veto five times.

In the current session the item of chief interest to the United States will be the question of Korea, and it illustrates the point.

Should North and South Korea be admitted to the U.N. separately or should action be delayed until after unification? Should U.N. forces made up mostly of U.S. troops be permitted to remain on guard along the cease-fire line or should they be expelled?

Debate will continue to the point of total exhaustion and finally will be decided in the Security Council by use or lack of it of the U.S. veto.

The obvious weakness of the U.N. is that the big powers will act as they please, and the smaller nations will pass resolutions they cannot enforce.

But Waldheim also has a point.

It is in the use of preventive diplomacy.

The U.N., he says, cannot cure all the ailments of the international society, but it can and has prevented them from getting worse. As an example he cites the conflict between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus.

And to U.N. critics he says:

"If there were a will to use the United Nations as an instrument of peace, it would work very well.

As to the future of the U.N., it also is obvious that if the world didn't have it, it would have to invent it.

Son, daughter shot by mother accidentally

SAN MATEO (UPI) —A mother accidentally shot her son and daughter Tuesday night with a single bullet, police said.

Officers said the youngsters, aged 14 and 13, thought they heard a prowler while doing the dishes, and went to their mother's bedroom to alert her.

According to police, the mother removed a .25 caliber pistol from under her bed, and as she pulled it from the holster, it accidentally discharged.

New minimum wage effort promised

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee said today he is ready to start work "as soon as possible" on a new bill to increase the present $1.60 minimum wage.

Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., said he will talk with fellow Democrats on his panel and with Speaker Carl Albert on the prospects of a new bill. Perkins announcement came after House Wednesday failed to override President Nixon's veto of a Democratic measure to raise the minimum to $2.20 by July 1, 1974.

The House voted 259-164 to override, but this fell 23 votes short of the needed two thirds majority of those voting to beat the veto. It was the sixth consecutive veto victory for Nixon this year.

Nixon opposed the 60-cent increase in less than a year as inflationary. He had proposed earlier raising the minimum to $1.90 immediately and go to $2.30 over a three year period.

Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., senior GOP member on Perkins' panel, said his party colleagues were ready to sit down immediately and start drafting a new bill that Nixon would accept.

"I personally feel that we got to get a bill one of these days. I'd like to vote on one tomorrow," Perkins told UPI. "I think we should get together as soon as possible and start out all over again."

Perkins' chief lieutenant on the committee as far as minimum wage legislation is concerned, is Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., who managed the vetoed bill. He said earlier no new bill would clear the committee if he had anything to do with it.

After the vote to sustain the veto Dent said: "Sure I'm willing to get out a new bill but only if its more generous than the one that was vetoed."

'Forefathers saw him coming'

Nixon power-hungry—Anderson

LAS VEGAS (UPI) —Columnist Jack Anderson suggests that President Nixon deserves to be impeached for reasons other than Watergate.

"He deserves to be impeached not for the Watergate breakin, but for advocating that the laws should and could be violated. He deserved impeachment when he said he called upon (the late J. Edgar) Hoover to violate the laws ... to tap telephones, to open mail," Anderson told a news conference Wednesday.

"Impeachment is a drastic step. It would divide the country. I am not too sure I would advocate impeachment, but I would say the President deserves to be impeached."

Anderson was in this gambling resort to open the lecture series at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

The Pulitzer Prize winning reporter said he did not expect Vice President Spiro Agnew to resign but said "it ought not to be necessary to convict a man before you remove him, before he has the decency to leave."

"He (Agnew) is under criminal investigation by a Republican U.S. attorney."

Anderson said Nixon was "power oriented and ambitious for power."

"I have never known him to be motivated by conviction. He keeps changing them. He has spent his political career in a revolving door. You never know where he is going to pop out next. One thing he has been consistent about is a craving for power.

"When he moved into the White House he immediately began forming foreign policy without the Senate, (and) fiscal policy without the House ... He ran his campaign in 1972 without the Republican Party. He tried to weaken the courts by choosing the worst possible mediocre candidates he could find. He tried to stack the Supreme Court to do his bidding and trampled on the rights of Congress."

Anderson said the Founding Fathers "created a ship of state like a battle ship with water tight compartments. So one compartment can be damaged without sinking the ship."

"Our Founding Fathers didn't know his name, but they saw Richard Nixon coming, and because they saw him coming they appointed the press as a watchdog."

Anderson said he did not believe Nixon knew in advance about the Watergate breakin. But he said Nixon issued the orders to cover up the breakin, reminding that the breakin occurred in the heat of a political campaign.

Anderson was asked for an opinion on Martha Mitchell. He said:

"For four years when she was lambasting the Democrats she was perfectly sane. I recall on one occasion President Nixon himself said 'go get 'em Martha'. And then suddenly she began lambasting Republicans and now (they say) she is crazy."

Housing boom murdered by interest rates

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The three-year housing boom has died, the victim of record interest rates, according to government figures.

At the same time President Nixon was announcing a revamped program Wednesday designed to breathe new life into the nation's housing picture, the Census Bureau was reporting that the volume of homebuilding in August had slumped to its lowest level since October 1971.

Starts of privately owned home and apartment units dropped to a 2.05 million seasonally adjusted annual rate last month compared to 2.18 million in July and 2.42 million in August 1972, the figures showed.

Even more ominous was the continuing decline in building permits, an indicator of how much construction activity lies ahead. Permits dropped to 1.71 million rate last month compared to 1.78 million in July and are now 29 per cent below their January peak.

For the past three years, builders have turned out homes and apartments at a record pace. Last year housing starts hit 2.4 million, an alltime high. In large part, this was due to a big demand from young people born during the post-World War II baby boom who now have reached home-buying age.

Economists knew that the current surge couldn't last. But the record increase in interest rates has hastened the turnaround. Mortage interest rates on new homes have soared from 7.75 to 9.5 per cent in the past two months alone.

In another economic development Wednesday, the Commerce Department said a key measure of the U.S. balance of payments position with foreign nations narrowed between April and June to the smallest deficit since late 1970.

The basic balance on current account and long-term capital was in deficit by $782 million in the second quarter, a $165 million improvement over the year's first quarter, Commerce officials said.

Defense Dept. official:

'Women should be drafted with men'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Constance J. Downey, head of a new women's program at the Department of Defense, says that if the United States ever resumes the draft women should be called,too.

"From the time I was in high school," she said in a news conference Wednesday, "I have been convinced that any kind of conscription program ought to be universal." The draft was abandoned in January.

Ms. Downey, 39, of Middleway, W.Va., said she prefers the title "Ms." to "Miss," but that she isn't a militant women's liberation activist. She said the only job discrimination she has personally encountered because of sex has been her pay, "which doesn't matter to me."

H. Minton Francis, deputy assistant secretary of defense for equal opportunity, backed up her position on the draft, but he said her main job will deal with equal opportunity for women who work for the Defense Deprtment or its contractors and wives of military personnel.

"Twenty million American women have official relationships to the Department of Defense either as civilian employes, as members of the military establishment, as members of military families or as workers in any of the industries which make possible this country's vast and successful defense effort," he said.

Ms. Downey said she has found out that women hold 80 per cent of the support jobs in the Defense Department but less than 1 per cent of the top administrative positions.

Montclair mayor bristles

Mikesell mum on blast by Hayes

San Bernardino County Supervisor Daniel Mikesell has refused comment on Montclair Mayor Harold Hayes' criticism of the supervisor on Monday.

Mikesell said that he had "no comment at this time" concerning Hayes' critical remarks made in a public letter to the supervisor.

Hayes' action, as explained in the tersely worded two-page letter, was prompted by Mikesell's recent criticism of West End mayors and West End fire departments.

The mayors from the West End met recently to discuss the transportation problems faced in the area. Mikesell later criticized the holding of the meeting.

Hayes wrote Monday, "I was not aware that we needed approval from the members of the Board of Supervisors to hold a meeting of the West End Mayors. Had you been at the last SANBAG (San Bernardino Association of Governments) General Assembly meeting, you would have been aware of our concern regarding transportation."

Hayes criticized Mikesell's absenteeism from such meetings and characterized Mikesell's attack on "honest efforts of local public officials" as "unwarranted."

Hayes also charged that the supervisor had unfairly criticized the fire departments of Upland, Ontario and Montclair.

Involved was a June 27 residential fire in the College Heights area east of Upland. Mikesell claimed that the fire departments in Upland, Ontario and Montclair failed to respond promptly to the location, causing additional damage to be done.

The Upland Fire Department has contended, however, that it responded to the location within minutes of notification and had the fire extinguished by the time units from the California Division of Forestry arrived.

Trip to Ram game planned

CLAREMONT — The parks and recreation department is sponsoring a bus trip to the Los Angeles-Dallas football game at the Coliseum Oct. 14.

Tickets can be purchased for $8.50 at Memorial Park. The bus will leave Memorial Park at 11 a.m. Game time will be 1 p.m.

The ticket fee will cover the bus transportation and a reserved seat.

Hitchhiker pulls gun, shot dead by officer

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A California Highway Patrol officer shot and killed a Utah hitchhiker Wednesday night when the man pulled a gun while being cited for illegally thumbing on the freeway, authorities said.

The dead man was identified as Glen I. Johnson, 29, believed to be from Salt Lake City.

Another man, at first thought to be Johnson's companion, was taken into custody and later released after the sheriff's department determined he was an "innocent bystander." He was identified as Arnold G. Jett, 22, of Auburn, N.Y.

Authorities said Officer Earl Doyle was citing the pair for illegal hitchhiking and had offered them a ride of the freeway when he noticed a bulge in Johnson's pocket. A highway patrol spokesman said Doyle began to search the suspect, found ammunition and then the man pulled a gun.

Doyle was said to have whirled around and fired twice from behind his squad car as Johnson cocked the automatic pistol and took aim. Under Johnson's body was found the pistol with a live bullet in the chamber and the hammer pulled back.

Jett fled into the bushes during the shooting but surrendered without a struggle. "He just happened to be hitchhiking in the same place," the sheriff's spokesman said.

The spokesman said homicide detectives were continuing an investigation. The shooting occurred at 7 p.m. on California highway 99 near the Florin Road offramp in the southern section of the city.

The Sea of Galilee is a freshwater lake, 14 miles long and eight miles at its widest.

Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee were the only brothers to sign the Declaration of Independence.

No room for youth at top of China leadership

By CHARLES R. SMITH

HONG KONG (UPI) Four old men, whose average age is 82, occupy the top positions in the Chinese Communist Party and government structure.

Despite some youthful window dressing in the new leadership group installed at the recent party congress, the old guard still dominats.

This is not lost on some ambitious youthful elements. And some complaints already are being heard in the party newspaper, the People's Daily.

These plaintive voices, which probably represent the more radical wing of the party, call for more accent on collective leadership. They also could be interpreted as a warning to the old guard.

"The new party constitution adopted at the party's 10th National Congress (Aug. 24-28) stipulates that leading organs at all levels should carry out the three-in-one principle created by the masses during the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution of having the old, middle-aged and young in leadership."

"One of the important current questions is to pay attention to training, promoting and using outstanding young cadres," the article added.

"Using" is the operative word here.

The article paid tribute to the "old revolutionary cadres" and "veteran cadres" and said they were "the treasure of four party and state and the backbone of the leading bodies at all levels," but it also said:

"It is necessary to give young cadres more opportunities to be tempered and allow them (to) shoulder heavy responsibilities so that they can gain experience and ability."

The most startling development of the party Congress was the elevation of a young Shanghai ex-textile worker, who came to the fore during the Red Guard era, to what appears to be the number three position in the party. The newest, and youngest, of the few new faces elevated to the top of the party heirarchy is that of Wang Hung-wen, who is in his mid 30's.

Peking's propaganda machinery appears to be engaged in an image-building program to make Wang better known among the masses and show that youth is being served.

His report on the revision of the party constitution, delivered at the Congress, still is being broadcast to the nation by Peking radio several times a day. According to monitors here, it has been repeated far more than Premier Chou En-lai's political report, which is a more important document.

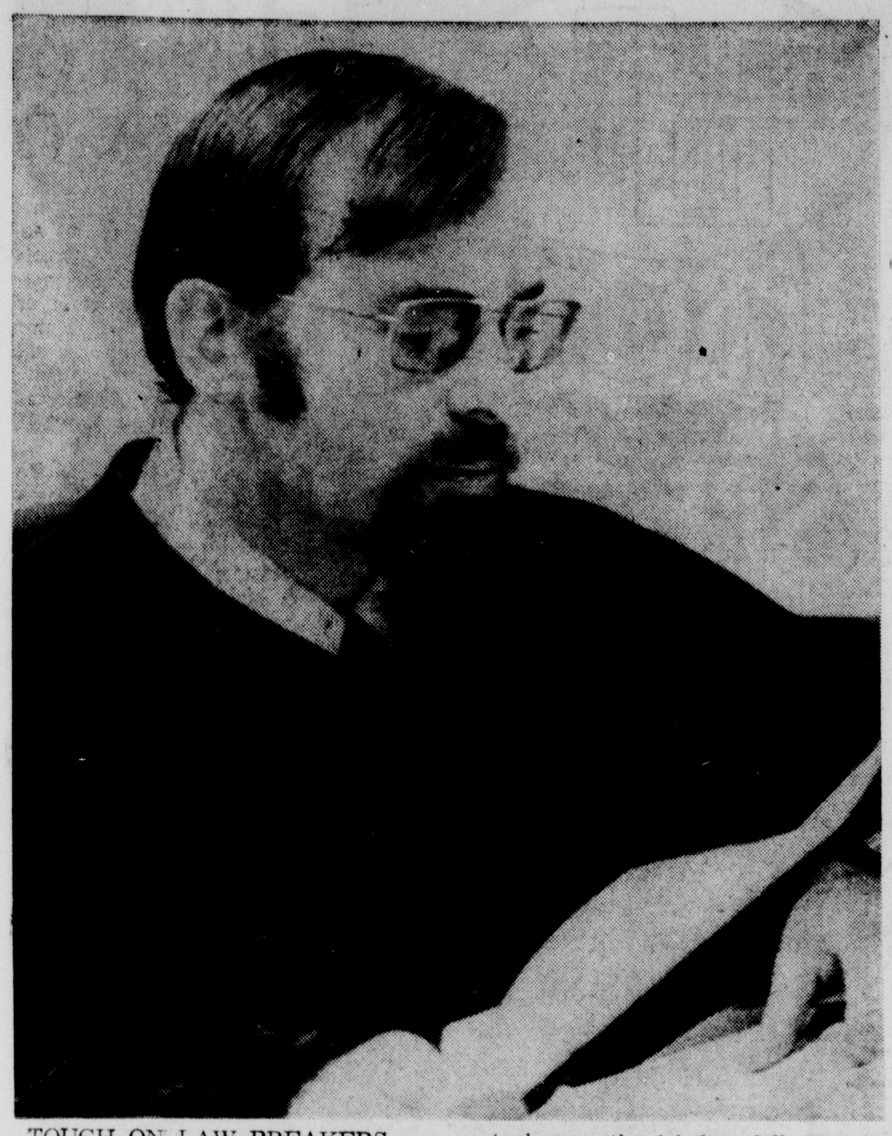
While he may prove to be a powerful and important new addition to the top, Wang still is a relatively unknown quantity. And there is plenty of lingering suspicion that his great leap up the leadership ladder was more of a sop to youth than an honest attempt to establish a more representative collective leadership.

This suspicion comes through in a between-the-lines reading of the People's Daily article.

"Democratic centralism is our party's organizational principle and a fundamental party and state institution. A leading body must be highly centralized and highly democratic, and must combine collective leadership and a division of responsibilities. It must unite people from all corners of the country and must not practice mountain-stronghold sectarianism. It must 'let all people have their say' and not 'let one person alone have all the say'. This will facilitate the training of cadres and help a 'three-in-one' leading body play its role."

Doubts about whether this principle is being followed must have entered the minds of many when they noted the four leaders who signed a message of greetings sent to North Korea last weekend.

Mao Tse-tung, who signed as party chairman, will be 80 in December. Tung pi-wu, the Acting Chairman (President) of the Republic, is 87. Chu Teh, Chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress, also is 87. Premier Chou En-lai, the youngest of the four, is 74.



TOUGH ON LAW BREAKERS — Orlando, Fla., Municipal Court Judge Robert L. Hamilton has been criticized as a "hanging judge" since he took over the job last fall. "I don't care what they call me, I'm just doing my job" he said.

Pistol-packin' judge earns reputation for stiff sentences

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) —The young pistol-packing judge, wearing a Van Dyke goatee and cowboy boots, was glaring through amber-tinted glasses at the youth slouched before the bench with a toothpick stuck in a corner of his mouth.

"The next time I see you you're going to be the recipient of my toothbrush policy," Municipal Court Judge Robert L. Hamilton told the youth, who was up for his ninth traffic offense in two years. "That means bring your toothbrush because you're going straight to jail. And if that doesn't impress you, come back again and I'll put you under the jail."

It was a typical day in traffic court for Hamilton, a 31-year-old Vietnam veteran who put on the black robes of a judge last fall and quickly built a reputation for stiff sentences delivered with caustic wit.

Last month Hamilton sent a furniture salesman to jail for 20 days because he wasn't in the courtroom when his name was called on a traffic violation. The salesman had gone down the hall to the restroom.

"But that was his second bench warrant," Hamilton said. "How many times is a judge supposed to put up with that?"

A motorcyclist fined $150 for riding his bike without a license went before the Orlando City Council recently to protest that Hamilton was "giving crazy fines for minor offenses," and to ask the council to "slow down his pistol-toting tactics."

The judge, who won a Bronze Star as an Army sergeant stationed in Long Binh, Vietnam in 1970, said his life had been threatened several times and once he had to take his two children out of school under a police guard because of a bomb threat.

Before going into the courtroom each morning, he straps a stainless steel .25 caliber pistol underneath his robes.

"I'm not easily frightened but one thing I learned in Vietnam was to be prepared," he said. "Last week a defendant climbed over the bench and threatened to blow my head off."

On Wednesdays, when normally about 250 persons are packed into the courtroom to await justice for traffic offenses, Hamilton keeps an eye out for tell-tale bulges in clothing.

"I have learned to see and hear everything that goes on in that courtroom," he said. "There are all kinds of weapons out there. I've even caught a man with a machete in his boot."

One day Hamilton had his bailiffs search a man with a bulging coat. There was a gun all right. He was an FBI agent.

"What have they got to lose?" Hamilton asks. "I know some are mentally unstable or under the influence of drugs. That doesn't help me if they decide to blow my head off."

A native son of Orlando, Hamilton graduated from Stetson University, then in 1971 got a masters degree in law at the University of Miami on the GI Bill.

He was in private practice only briefly before becoming assistant city attorney in Orlando in 1971. He later became city prosecutor and was a police legal adviser last November when he was named the city's first full-time municipal judge at a salary of $23,358 a year.

Among the mementos in his office are an oversized chess set, a bullwhip coiled on a sofa cushion, a rapier across his desk and a ball and chain in a corner. "They are all gifts," he said.

A placard on a cabinet reads, "It isn't whether you win or lose, but how you place the blame."

Despite the controversy he has stirred, Hamilton said he has not been pressured by City Hall to change his style.

"I don't tell the mayor how to run City Hall and he doesn't tell me how to run the court," he said.

Watergate to play havoc with incumbents in 1974?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Common Cause Chairman John W. Gardner said Wednesday shockwaves from Watergate in the 1974 elections could trigger the biggest turnover in incumbent politicians in 40 years.

In testimony prepared for a senate hearing, Gardner said "the issue of political corruption will loom large in the elections of 1974."

Gardner said the question will not be which Watergate conspirators committed misdeeds but rather "Which of our elected representatives moved forcefully to prevent recurrence of the shocking episode?"

Gardner added that "if politicians fail to understand that, we may see in 1974 the greatest overturn of incumbents in 40 years."

Testifying in support of public financing of federal elections, Gardner said "a very substantial portion of the American people are disgusted over what they have seen of Watergate, and indeed disgusted by the whole display of corruption in politics."

Gardner urged support for a system of public financing combining public funds with a limited number of additional, small private contributions. The system would apply to primaries and general elections for President, Senate and House.

"It is vital that the amount be sufficient to allow non-incumbents to present their point of view as against better known opponents," Gardner said.

Documents submitted by Common Cause, which calls itself a citizens' lobby, showed that 25 incumbent senators last year outspent challengers by $12,386,000 to $6,103,000.

"The tremendous financial imbalance of incumbents over challengers, regardless of party, raises grave doubts as to whether we presently have a competitive system of representation," Gardner said.

Beef prices in L.A. are steady

LOSANGELES (UPI) —Beef prices in Southern California chain stores have remained relatively steady since the government-imposed ceilings were lifted at midnight Sept. 9.

Spokesmen at Lucky Stores and Von's Grocery Co. said that the beef market appeared to be weakening and lower prices could result.

Ralph's, however, said it might be necessary to raise some beef prices later this week.

Safeway announced its beef prices were up an average of eight to 10 cents a pound.

BART to be in red $100 million in 5 years

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The newest and most modern of the nation's rapid transit systems faces a $100 million deficit in five years.

That was the report given this week by William Goelz, finance director for the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) district.

Goelz said the deficit was calculated as a result of BART's recently negotiated union contract and delays in providing service from Oakland to San Francisco via a tube under the bay.

Delays have plagued completion of the 75-mile long system, along with mechanical problems such as doors flying open at 80 miles per hour and malfunctions in an automatic train warning system to prevent collisions.

Last April, the five year deficit was estimated at $48 million.

Service to San Francisco was expected to begin from the East Bay this month, but the system's difficulties have postponed that opening until next year, which will cause a loss estimated at $13 million, Goelz said.

Labor costs will go up by at least $17.1 million more than originally planned because of the one-month strike by BART employes and resulting three-year contract, the director said.

Chile secretary nervous, calls for patrolmen

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The police department sent three patrolmen to the Chilean Consulate Tuesday after receiving a call for special protection in the wake of the military coup in Santiago.

But when the pollice arrived, Consul-General Alberto, Yoacham wanted to know what the excitement was all about. "I didn't ask for protection," he said.

The officers said they learned a nervous secretary acted on her own initiative

Says it's directed at environmentalists

EPA chief accuses industry of fear campaign

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In his strongest statement on the subject since he took over as head of the Environmental Protection Agency, Russell E. Train has accused industry of waging a well-organized fear campaign to discredit environmentalists and weaken antipollution laws.

"The public should be alert to this campaign and recognize it for what it is—simply an effort to slow down or avoid getting on with the job of cleaning up pollution," Train said.

During a speech at the National Press Club, Train said certain unspecified advertisements had given him the "very strong impression that there is a well-organized campaign afoot to propagandize the public into believing that our environmental concerns have been overstated and oversold and are the cause of major economic and energy problems."

He did not give examples, but it was learned that at least two ads in particular raised Train's ire, and he ripped them from the magazines he was reading.

One was from an engineering firm. It depicted a man prepared to watch a televised football game interrupted by a power blackout. The man's wife is in the room with a candle reminding the disappointed fan that the whole thing wouldn't have happened if environmentalists hadn't blocked construction of a nearby power plant.

The second, from a steel company, states that coal is the most dependable power resource, that strip mining is the best way to get at it, and that state laws offer adequate controls while new federal regulations in the area are unnecessary.

Congress is nearing completion of work on a strip mining bill.

Train said he did not believe environmentalists were a major factor in preventing power plants from being built. He renewed the administration's request for passage of legislation to control power plant citing.

Train predicted there will be a "major assault" on the Clean Air Act of 1970—the legislation under which transportation controls and gas rationing have been proposed to improve air quality in the nation's big cities.

He said legislative action may be needed to give his agency "greater flexibility" to modify these transportation controls where they would cause "unacceptable economic and social disruptions."

Friend of ours is looking forward to Thanksgiving and a one-horse open — local golf tourney, that is.

Amendment is key should Agnew resign

WASHINGTON UPI) —The report that Spiro T. Agnew is considering resigning as vice president has stirred new interest in the 25th and last amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Ratified in 1967, the amendment would be invoked for the first time should Agnew step down.

The section that would apply says "whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who will take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both Houses of Congress."

The thinking behind the amendment had nothing to do with the possibility that at some future time a vice president would voluntarily leave his office.

Instead, it was prompted by the assassination of President John F. Kennedy Nov. 22, 1963, and designed to make certain the office would not be left vacant as it was from Kennedy's death until Jan. 20, 1965, while President Lyndon B. Johnson served the rest of Kennedy's term.

A second part of the amendment, which was partly triggered by President Dwight D. Eisenhower's heart attack and other illnesses, set up procedures for the vice president to take over as acting president should the president become unable to carry out his duties.

However, the amendment doesn't say how quickly a vice pesidential vacancy should be filled or whether congressional hearings should be held.

Should the congressional leadership decide that the writers of the amendment intended hearings, they would be held by the Judiciary Committee in the House and by either the Judiciary or Rules Committee in the Senate.

The question of jurisdiction in the Senate arises decause the Judiciary Committee deals with constitutional issues and the Rules Committee with the question of succession.

If Agnew resigns, Speaker Carl Albert would be next in line of succession should something happen to President Nixon in the period before Congress confirms a new vice president.

Milk subsidy cuts are not illegal--Butz

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz Wednesday denied his department has broken the law by cutting off special milk subsidies in schools which operate government-subsidized breakfast and lunch programs.

The program last year was available to all schools, and $97 million was spent to subsidize sales of 2.5 billion half pints of milk to children. Current plans for this school year call for spending $25 million to subsidize sales of 812 million half pints, with the program limited to schools which have no regular lunch or breakfast service.

In schools which have regular food service, Butz pointed out, a half pint of milk is served as an integral part of each meal. The "special" milk subsidy program underwrites cut-rate sales of extra milk—a second or third serving for a child who has already had one half-pint with lunch, or a low-cost recess drink or supplement to a bag lunch.

Butz, in a letter to Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who raised the charge of unlawful action, said the regulation governing the special program requires the Agriculture Department to administer it in the same way it was run in 1969 "to the maximum extent practicable."

Restricting the program to schools without regular lunch service complies with the wording of the law because "conditions have changed since 1969 and the actions we are taking are practical," Butz added.

Peron poll gives him 2/3 vote

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan Peron's own opinion poll predicts the former Agentine leader will get nearly two thirds of the vote next Sunday in special elections for the presidency.

The poll published Tuesday said voters would give Peron 64.5 per cent of the vote and 33 per cent would go to three other candidates. It said 2.5 per cent of those asked had not made up their mind.

The poll was conducted by the Justicialist Doctrine Institute, a branch of Peron's political movement, and was based on interviews with 427,789 people.

One of Peron's presidential opponents, however, said Monday he expected the election to end without a decisive majority, forcing a runoff.

"I believe there is a notable cross-over of voters which will mean the need for a second round," said Ricardo Balbin, head of the Radical party.

Peron's poll, however, reinforced predictions of most political observers, who viewed Peron's return to power as a near certainty.

Peron, 77, who served as president from 1946 until being ousted in a 1955 military coup, ended 18 years of exile in Spain last July and returned to Argentina.

From his home in exile outside Madrid, Peron engineered Hector J. Campora's victorious presidential race last March against the same opponents running in Sunday's special vote.

Campora resigned during the summer, saying he wanted Peron to run the government, and interim President Raul Lastiri called the new election.

Peron has not left his villa for the campaign trail, saying, "What are we going to campaign for if everything is going so well?"

Sparing rod no spoiler, suit charges

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — Spanking schoolchildren is unconstitutional, a federal suit charges.

The suit, filed by the Ohio American Civil Liberties Union Foundation in U.S. DIstrict Court charged that the infliction of physical punishment on students by school teachers, including spanking in the lower grades, is unconstitutional except in self-defense.

The foundation, affiliated with but separate from, the Ohio American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), filed suit on behalf of 13-year-old Linda Gail Sims of Springfield, charging the girl was "manhandled" by two junior high school officials last May.

Named as defendants were William Waln, principal, and Max Landers, assistant principal, at Schaeffer Junior High in Springfield.

The suit charges Waln and Landers with subjecting Linda "to physical and mental abuse by manhandling her in an effort to inflict corporal punishment upon her."

Onio ACLU Executive Director Benson A. Wolman said the suit alleges that the infliction of physical punishment by school officials on students is a "cruel and unusual punishment" and a denial of due process, both in violation of the Constitution.

In the Sims case, Wolman said, "there has also been a denial of equal protection of the laws ... by an intentional practice of discriminatory use of corporal punishment against black students solely on the basis of their race."

The suit alleges violations of federal civil rights statutes and seeks $20,000 in "actual damages and such punitive damages the court deems just and proper."

The ACLU foundation asked for a court order against "the use of physical force on school children by school teachers, principals or administrators, other than as a bona fide method of self-defense or defense of others or property."

Chinoan wins butter battle first time out

POMONA — The leader of demonstrations for the Chino Busy Farmers 4-H Club thumped her way to victory and a large blue ribbon Wednesday in the annual butter-churning contest at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Mrs. Judy Abarcherli, mother of six, was one of the first to churn her half-gallon of cream to the right consistency from which she could form a winning pound and a half of quality butter.

The contest was the first at the fair for Mrs. Abacherli who said, "My husband Louie told me not to enter unless I was going to win."

"He'll be pleased and my daughters will bake homemade bread and spread it with butter, and we'll celebrate," she commented.

Mrs. Abacherli was happy to tell about other blue ribbon wearers in the family. Daughter Lucy, 17, saw her goat named grand champion in the 4-H fair this week. The goat that came in second belonged to sister Linda, 14.

Linda raises dairy cattle as well as goats. Her dairy goat was named grand champion at the Victorville fair this year.

Lisa, 13, also raises dairy cattle and goats.

Leon, 11, raises chickens and goats, and Frances, 9, follows in the footsteps of her older brother.

The only member of the Abacherli not a member of the Chino Busy Farmers is Joe, 16, a 180-pound tackle at Chino High. Leon wants to play football like his big brother.

Twelve churners from as far away as Long Beach and Rosemead entered the contest, and judges Paul Virgin, Harold Jackson, John McCredy, Tim Todd, and Dick Foellmer rated the entrants on how long it took to finish churning, and the finished butter as to body, texture and appearance.

Larry Bentley, in charge of quality control for Altadena Dairy, coordinated the contest and was assisted by his wife. Bentley interviewed each contestant as they huffed and puffed to the thump-thump-thump of the poles.

Bentley pointed out different techniques used by the contestants, such as perennial entrant Joe Mangrich, 3072 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, who was the first to complete his churning, and was awarded second place.

Mangrich, wearing a farmer outfit, with a long straw in his mouth, kneels and sometimes lies down while he churns.

Third spot went to Manuel Contreras, a draftsman from Monterrey Park, who wanted to show his wife Lynn how it was done. Mrs. Contreras finished third three years ago.

Others in order of points awarded were Lena Briano, 7687 Chino Ave., Ontario; Darle Brodie, 18002 Los Oakacuis Road, Rowland Heights; Ruth Lucas, 2486 Leebee St., Pomona; Erika Von Euw, 6745 Schaffer St., Chino; Helen Anton, Huntington Park; Carolee Hiles, Glendale; Micheline Rissler, Covina; Bernadette Huffing, Rosemead; and Harry Ruffridge, 83, of Long Beach.

HOW TO MAKE BUTTER

Mrs. Judy Abacherli of Chino entered her first Los Angeles County Fair butter-churning competition Wednesday and judges awarded her a big blue ribbon, emblematic of the champion. Showing off individual techniques in churning are, from left, Mrs. Abacherli; Mrs. Lena Briano of Ontario who took fourth; and a nonchalant Joe Mangrich of Pomona, who was runner-up. The annual contest in Judging Ring No. 2 attracted more than 400 persons who enjoyed the program.

WINS STATE AWARD

Robert C. Speakman, left, industrial arts teacher at Simons Junior High School, Pomona, admires Danish modern mahogany coffee table made by student Ted Kahn, 14, which won a superior award and $50 in state competition and now is on display at the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona. Kahn, a ninth grader this year, made the table last year as a family gift. He spent a month hand-rubbing the finish. Speakman said Kahn completed in 12 weeks what most students complete in 24 in woodshop.

Kahn's award came through the Southern California Regional Industrial Arts program, conducted by the California State Department of Education and the Los Angeles County Fair. Fair closes Sept. 30.

UCLA Law School

Pomona lawyer, ecology suit winner, named No. 1 alumnus

POMONA — Pomona attorney John C. McCarthy, who has gained prominence for his fight for land conservation, has been named 1973 Alumnus of the Year by the UCLA Law School.

The award was made at the recent convention of the California State Bar meeting at the Disneyland Hotel, at which McCarthy spoke.

He lauded the increasing participation of the people in land use decisions in their communites and recreation areas.

"The citizens who are actively responding to the challenge to do something about their environment represent the only hope that something, in fact, will be done to preserve it," he declared.

"They are becoming the necessary watchdogs to see that government and its countless agenices follow the new surge of environmental laws."

McCarthy, who was graduated from the UCLA Law School 21 years ago, attained national prominence last year when he successfully represented the Friends of Mammoth against the Mono County Board of Supervisors before the California Supreme Court.

As a result of that high court decision, public environemental impact reports are now required on private as well as public land use proposals which could significantly effect the environment.

McCarthy told the convention that impact reports must be thorough and objective. He also cautioned against the use of such reports for the wrong purposes, such as discrimination against low income or minority housing in a community.

McCarthy is a partner in the law firm of Young, Henrie and McCarthy. He resides in Claremont with his wife, Lori, and their three children.

Nixon tapes, what could they prove

There is something slightly unreal about this whole Watergate tapes business.

Seven judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia have proposed that President Nixon, "in the national interest" and to avoid a constitutional showdown over the issue, voluntarily submit portions of nine tape recordings of conversations between himself and key White House aides to Archibald Cox, the Justice Department's special Watergate investigator, and Prof. Charles Alan Wright, the President's lawyer.

This compromise would leave to the discretion of the President the deletion from the tapes of any material involving national security or dealing with the exercise of his constitutional duties as Chief Executive.

But if President Nixon were to release such edited tapes, how in the world would he be able to convince skeptical Americans that he had not also edited out Watergate-related portions that were damaging to him or his closest advisers — any more than he has been able to convince any great number of people that no such damaging evidence exists in the first place?

Even if he were to submit wholly unedited tapes, how would he prove they were unedited? The suspicion that he had edited them to his own advantage would still remain, despite the fact that he was always aware that his words were being recorded and certainly would not have implicated himself — again in the first place?

Only if President Nixon produced recordings which proved the very worst about him would the skepticsbe satisfied, and that eventuality is scarcely conceivable.

It just seems as if the Watergate investigators in trying to unravel the truth about the dismal affair, have entangled themselves in a bunch of tapes which, under any circumstances, are unlikely to be of much value one way or the other.

Hating requires a scorecard

It was an amusing little news item about the Jewish talent agent in New York who posed as an Arab for a recent cover of Newsweek magazine for a story about the "Arab oil squeeze" because he couldn't find a real Arab.

It was amusing, and not a little poignant. You can't tell a Jew From an Arab just by looking. You can't tell whom to hate without a scorecard.

Both Jews and Arabs are members of the Semitic race, whatever "race" means — though it seems to mean a great deal to many people. Many Arabs are Israeli citizens, many Jews are citizens of Arab countries. Abraham is a revered figure in the Islamic religion as well as the Hebrew. Jerusalem is a holy city to both.

Then what is all the hatred about? Well, of course, it is about a great many things. The Newsweek cover merely illustrates the well-proved fact of history that some of the world's most bitter rivalries have been between peoples who have the most in common, whether it is race or religion or anything else.

Traffic safer, but not safer

The National Safety Council reports that the U.S. traffic death rate reached the lowest point in the nation's history during May, June and July.

NSC figures projected to the end of 1973 show a rate of 4.4 traffic deaths for every 100 million vehicle miles traveled. By comparison, the 1947 rate was 8.82 and the 1938 rate was 12.02 deaths per 100 million miles.

Yet here's the paradox: Because of the increase in the number of motor vehicles on the highways and the number of miles they are driven, even as the death rate goes down the absolute number of deaths continues to go up.

Traffic fatalities for the first six months of 1973 totaled 26,500 — the highest number ever recorded for the first half of any year in the history of the United States, says the council.

There's some bright news, however. During July, the last month for which figures are available, traffic deaths were 4 per cent below the July, 1972 figure.

Thoughts for today

Arms race not slowed down at all

WASHINGTON — Just before midnight on May 26, 1972, Richard Nixon and Leonid Brezhenev met in St. Vladimir Hall in the Kremlin to sign an agreement limiting offensive weapons. It was hailed around the world as the end of the cold war.

A year later, the two leaders signed another nuclear agreement in the White House. With their faces wreathed in smiles, they swore "to limit strategic offensive arms permanently" and they renounced any effort to "obtain unilateral advantage."

But behind the benign smiles, both sides have been building strategic weapons feverishly. The 1972 agreement froze the number of offensive strategic missiles to those in operation and under construction.

This would limit the Soviet Union to 1,618 intercontinental missiles and 950 submarine-launched missiles by 1977. The U.S. allotment would be 1,054 intercontinental missiles, 710 underseas missiles.

Catching up

Intelligence reports claim that the Soviet Union has already installed 1,527 intercontinental missiles and is rapidly catching up with the United States in missile-carrying submarines. But the United States even more rapidly is fitting its missiles with multiple warheads. While the President boasts about the Soviet-American arms accord, the United States is building an average of two strategic weapons a day through 1977.

The stark truth is that the celebrated SALT pact hasn't even slowed down the arms race. The full meaning of this has been lost upon the American people, perhaps because the concept of arms limitation is so complex. The President has added to the public bewilderment with his claim that the arms accord has ushered in an era of peace.

In simplest terms, more arms mean less money in the taxpayers' pockets and more danger of nuclear extinction. They are entitled to know, therefore, what the true nuclear figures are. These figures, known only to the top brass, show that in 1971 the United States had 4,600 nuclear warheads, the U.S.R. only 2,100. In 1972, the comparative figures were 5,888 and 2,200. In 1973, the year after the SALT agreement, the U.S. total leaped to 7,100 and the Soviet total stayed about 2,200.

By 1977, when the first five-year SALT accord ends, the United States will have 9,690 strategic weapons, enough destructive force to make the Soviet Union uninhabitable. The Soviets may have as many as 4,000 warheads if they are successful in developing operational multiple warheads. This would be quite enough to devastate the United States.

Just talk

These figures show clearly that both nations — the U.S.S.R., with 50 per cent more missiles but fewer warheads, and the United States, with triple the warheads but fewer missiles — have been building like crazy even as they have been talking together about peace.

The Center for Defense Information, run by retired Rear Adm. Gene LaRocque, gave us this chilling estimate: "If Congress provides the $1.7 billion for the Navy's Trident sub, $474 million for the Air Force's B-1 bomber and $765 million for the Air Force's Minuteman III MIRV missile, the United States could have 18,572 nuclear weapons by 1987."

Explained the bouncy little admiral: "There are numbers beyond which greater numbers become meaningless. After all, both sides have agreed not to build up real defenses against nuclear missiles. So since there are only a limited number of targets, deterrence requires only several hundred weapons, not several thousand."

Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, the Navy chief, who generally makes good sense, insists that to get fewer weapons, we must build more. The United States needs more nuclear arms as "bargaining chips," he explains, to force the Russians to agree to an arms reduction.

Same in Kremlin

Intelligence reports indicate that the Soviet military leaders are using similar arguments inside the Kremlin.

Our Pentagon sources say that the U.S. buildup has less to do with "bargaining chips" than with interservice rivalry. Both the Navy and Air Force want their own strategic nuclear weapons. A careful analysis of the Russian newspapers "Izvestia" and "Pravda" has convinced the Center for Defense Information that the same myopic rivalry exists in the Soviet military establishment.

Meanwhile, even a child with building blocks can see that stacking up blocks does not reduce them. The more nuclear "bargaining chips" that accumulate, the more difficult it will be to cut back.

Not long ago, President Nixon put it strongly when he said: "If there is a war between the Soviet Union and the United States, there will be no winners. There will be only losers. The Soviet Union knows that and we know that."

PAUL HARVEY

Next expose--labor leader's riches

According to Opinion Research, Inc., union members are becoming increasingly suspicious of their leaders. Of labor's rank and file, 69 per cent are dissatisfied with their own leadership, the research organization reports.

Much of that dissatisfaction has to be resentment of those union leaders known to be getting very fat. The next Watergate-type expose will reveal some union bosses have several incomes.

If you no longer hear labor's leaders accusing industry's leaders of making too much money, it's because some of labor's leaders are themselves now in the $200,000-a-year bracket — and "then some."

It's news when our nation's top labor leader, President George Meany of the AFL-CIO, gets his union salary increased to $75,000 a year — though several lesser officials of those unions are making three or four times that much!

Recently, The Wall Street Journal revealed that Bernard Rubin receives more than $1,000 a week as president of a labor union local in Miami Beach. He also receives about $22,000 a year as business manager of another local. As president of a district labor council he gets another $1,000 a week. And as a "special representative" of the parent union, he picks up another $100 a week.

His wife is executive secretary of one of his unions and secretary of his district council. His and her salaries bring the Rubin family income from labor's treasuries to about $130,000 a year.

I don't think I mentioned that from the dues of laborers he also gets a separate tax-free expense account of $1,000 a week! And Mr. Rubin says, "You'll find I'm not at all unusual in the labor movement."

My files indicate he's right. William Presser, Teamsters Union boss in Ohio, holds three union jobs. His son Jackie collects five paychecks from three different unions. Together, they take in $250,000 a year. In addition, they receive plush expense accounts and multiple retirement benefits.

The International Production Service and Sales Employees is a 20,000-member union in Brooklyn. Last year it took in $263,000 in dues. Of that, $211,000 went to officers' salaries. The president of that union, Irving Horowitz, taking income from the parent union and each of its five locals, got the baron's share.

Outsiders might wonder why union insiders, whose dues are thus diverted, don't raise a ruckus. How? To whom? Only when Opinion Research conducted its secret survey were union members willing to express their resentment. When the ratio of resentful rank and file reaches 69 per cent, the logical next reaction is bitterness and revolt.

LETTERS FROM P-B READERS

As others see it . . . letters

Prisoners in South Vietnam

The Peace Committee of Claremont Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers) opposes spending American tax dollars to support and increase the power of the South Vietnamese police forces.

The stories of torture, tiger cages, political repression are terribly true. Political prisoners are being reclassified as "common criminals" in order to keep them in jail. The Saigon government collects between 10 and 15 million dollars per year to maintain, train and strengthen their police. Recently, they have begun to install and operate a computer system designed to report on South Vietnamese citizens. We are paying for the police and that computer.

Last month the Pacific Yearly Meeting of Friends said: "The members of Pacific Yearly Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends are deeply concerned that many thousands of Vietnamese people remain imprisoned in South Vietnam because of their political beliefs.

We know that these people, imprisoned in violation of the terms of the 1973 Paris Peace Treaty are being starved, tortured and murdered, with the knowledge and support of the United States government. We believe that the United States government's concern that the terms of the peace agreement be upheld must involve it in actively seeking the release of these people. We strongly believe that the status of the prisoners must immediately be made a primary concern of the 4-Nation Supervisory Commission currently observing the ceasefire. We will ask our fellow citizens to work with us in urging our government to see that these people are set free."

We concur with this statement and ask that persons send letters to their Congressperson and to Sen. Alan Cranston in support of his stand against the spending of taxpayers money on such an inhumane and costly project. We also ask the people be aware that this week (16th to the 23rd) attention is being directed to the plight of the prisoners in South Vietnam. — James W. Weck, Clerk, Peace Committee of Claremont Meeting of the Religious Society of Friends.

Gossip for today

Robert Browning once wrote: "Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be."

"And you just better believe it! says a 98-year-old gal in Seattle, Washington. "That old poet really said a mouthful."

So now she plans to go all out in order to prove that Robert B. was right even if she has to go to court to do it. You see, she is a divorcee: "And what better way," she asked herself, "could there be for one to grow old gracefully and continue to enjoy the best things of life than to have one's alimony boosted from $166 to $750 a month?"

After hearing that bad news, her former spouse sadly shook his head and cackled: "Conniving old broads never die, they just live on and on and on in order to collect alimony and make certain that their ex-husband will go through Hell here on Earth as well as in the Hereafter. Phooey on Browning and all his crud about the beauties of old age. He never had a woman pursuing him for back alimony payments."

INSIDE REPORT

Cap's blooper with Soviets

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — An unwelcome incursion into foreign policy by Caspar W. (Cap) Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), ended up astounding White House and State Department officials and infuriating conservative Republicans in Congress.

Weinberger returned from a 16-day tour of health facilities in the Soviet Union and Poland just as Dr. Philip Handler, president of the National Academy of Sciences, was warning the Soviet Academy about harassment of physicist Andrei Sakharov. Government persecution, Handler warned, might lead American scientists to boycott joint U.S.-Soviet projects.

At a press conference the day after Handler's statement, Weinberger attacked — not the Russians but Handler, without checking either the White House or the State Department. "It is better to have dialogue than simply standing off firing brickbats through the daily press," the outspoken HEW chief said.

White House telephones started jangling angrily with complaints from Republican conservatives that the administration was condoning Soviet repression. White House and State Department officials were amazed by Weinberger. The Nixon administration line is to encourage U.S.-Soviet scientific cooperation but officially ignore criticism of Soviet repression that Handler and other private U.S. citizens are making rather than attack it as Weinberger did.

Nevertheless, both Republican and Democratic critics of President Nixon's detente believe Weinberger's blooper, while deviating from the administration line, underscored the administration's policy: tolerate anything inside Soviet borders in return for friendly U.S.-Soviet relations.

"Secretary Weinberger's statement is an example of just how low this administration will sink to produce a deal at any price with Moscow," Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, the leading Democratic critic of detente, told us.

The Percy phenomenon

Our scouting trips interviewing rank-and-file voters continue to show Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, whose chances for the Republican presidential nomination are regarded as close to zero by party regulars, running better than anybody else against Democratic Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

In two middle-class precincts of the San Fernando Valley in Los Angeles which President Nixon carried by over 60 per cent in 1972, there was not only anti-Nixon disaffection but an inclination to vote Democratic for President next time.

Out of 93 voters (who said they voted 3 to 2 for Mr. Nixon last year), Kennedy had a clear edge against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, John B. Connally and even California Gov. Ronald Reagan. The results: Agnew, 30; Kennedy, 51; undecided, 12. Reagan, 39; Kennedy, 47; undecided, 7. Connally, 36; Kennedy, 46; undecided, 11.

Only Percy, lesser known than the other three Republicans, ran better than Kennedy: Percy, 42; Kennedy, 36; undecided, 15.

This parallels results we obtained in a scouting trip six weeks ago in Jersy City, N.J. Apparently, hard-shell Republican voters are so anti-Kennedy they prefer any Republican—even liberal Chuck Percy. On the other hand, liberal Democrats with misgivings about Kennedy because of Chappaquiddick could never bring themselves to back Agnew, Connally or Reagan but find Percy entirely acceptable.

Mankiewicz out West

Frank Mankiewicz, a senior lieutenant in Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign, may end up working for the fastest anti-McGovern tongue in the West: Mayor Joseph Alioto of San Francisco.

Alioto, running 20 percentage points behind California secretary of state Edmund G. Brown, Jr., for the 1974 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, wants Mankiewicz for a top staff job in his campaign. Surprisingly, Mankiewicz is expressing interest — once he finishes a book on Watergate — even though Alioto led the assault on McGovern in the 1972 California presidential primary. If Mankiewicz says yes, he will join Alioto in November.

La Verne general plan is coming under fire

By BOB NAGEY
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE — Objections are beginning to develop to two aspects of the proposed new general plan as recommended by the planning commission for approval by the City Council.

Property owners are lining up against a proposal that would lock their undeveloped lands into current agricultural zones north of Base Line Road.

And residents south of Arrow Highway are voicing disapproval of the plan that would place their area in an industrial zone. They prefer the more flexible present commercial-manufacturing zone.

These and other problems came to light this week when the council held its first public hearing on the 1973 amended general plan which has been the project of the commission and the planning department for nine months.

The hearings are expected to continue Oct. 1.

An open space proposal recommended by the Commission on Environmental Quality, providing that the council freeze about 200 acres of citrus land in the La Verne Heights area came under fire by builder Richard Lewis who said his company, Lewis Homes, now has 40 acres of such land in escrow at Base Line and Emerald Avenue, just outside the city.

He said that "to arbitrarily pick one area and say this is going to be open space seems very unjust to the property owner. It seems a shame to force someone to farm when it is no longer profitable."

But Robert Neher, chairman of the CEQ, contended that the choice was not arbitrary. It is quite essential that we intersperse green open space throughout the city and not just around the periphery, even though in some cases it might be considered a hardship," he declared.

However, Lewis won quick support from councilmen Frank Johnson and Dan Lopez who said they generally apposed interference by governmental agencies with an individual's right to develop his property.

"I just feel that any time a government agency restricts an owner from developing his property," Johnson said, "that agency should purchase that property."

As for the property below Arrow Highway, several residents and property owners said they preferred a commercial-manufacturing designation over the proposed industrial zone, because the former was more flexible.

Mayor Mike Morales deferred any action this week, saying that he wanted only to listen.

"Now, after hearing some of this stuff," he explained, "I'm going to spend the next two weeks looking at the properties in question. Then I'll be ready to do some talking."

L.V. display wins third in L.A. fair competition

LA VERNE — The La Verne display at the Los Angeles County Fair earned a third place ribbon in its category.

Featuring a 1915 Ford touring car it is surrounded by a wide variety of vegetables and fruits, all gathered from gardens and trees of local residents. An old orange box bearing a La Verne label holds oranges and rests on the back seat of the car. It was discovered by the designers of the exhibit, Eugene Allen and Fred Miller, by chance. Such boxes are collectors items today.

The car is one of the collection of R. J. Harris, owner of Liberty Ford in La Verne and president of the La Verne Chamber of Commerce. It and others of his collection have appeared in parades in La Verne and other cities. At the Fair, according to hosts at the exhibits, the Model T has drawn considerable interest.

La Verne has the longest record for exhibiting at the fair continuously. For many years the emphasis was on the citrus industry which encompassed nearly all of the business life in La Verne up until after World War II. Pictures taken of the displays of earlier days at the fair also show the great number of prizes won by packing houses for their individual racks of fruit.

In contrast now, those preparing displays for the fair must search throughout the community for fruits and vegetables to give the exhibit that "County Fair" flavor which fairgoers and officials expect.

Vegetables and fruits in the display were donated by residents from their gardens.

Those grown by Jon Milhon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Milhon, are displayed together in a unit. Bill Forbes was also a youthful contributor.

Other families included Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mattox, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Rabenau, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hollinger, Mr. and Mrs. La Vere Flora, Mr. and Mrs. David Wheeler, Dr. and Mrs. Lowell Brubaker, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Russi, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. Gwen Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Florentino Planta and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Mueller.

Mrs. Beverly Rupel has volunteered to head a committee to maintain flowers in the tree wells in downtown La Verne. She and her husband, Milan, and their family moved back to La Verne from Laguna Beach, where they have been living for about two years.

She has been appointed as a new member on the committee by Mayor Mike Morales.

Retired educator fair's Mr. Nimble Fingers

By GEORGE MACLAREN
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE — "Here is our answer to Women's Lib," quipped master of ceremonies Phil Arden Tuesday as he introduced Don G. Laughlin of La Verne, the first man ever to enter Nimble Fingers crocheting or knitting contest in the history of the Los Angtles County Fair at Pomona.

The 100 or so person seated in front of the entrants, laughed and applauded vigorously when Laughlin, needles in hand, rose and modestly accepted the plaudits.

Laughlin stood out conspiciously as he sat in the midst of the 11 women, most of them perennial contestants in the fair's fun affairs.

The former teacher and principal worked industriously in both contests, but he was no match for the most experienced needle wielders.

The same pattern is used each year in the crocheting and knitting events, and the women can hit a certain rhythm each year as they compete.

Laughlin finished ninth in the crocheting contest and was credited with six scallops. He took eighth in the knitting contest and came up with 4½ puffs.

Laughlin, 72, who lives at the Fountains Mobile Home Park with his wife, Matilda, explained that he learned tatting as a child, and that when he retired seven years ago he resumed the hobby.

Tatting still is popular with Laughlin, who took second both this year and last year at the fair with tatted lace doilies.

"I hate to sit around with nothing to do," he explained, and so he took up knitting and crocheting. "We don't watch television very much, but I can knit while I watch," he said.

Last year he knitted a two-piece woman's dress for his wife, entered in the home arts competition, and was rewarded with a blue ribbon.

He's also received a fifth place for his hairpin lace baby outfit, and fourth for a hairpin lace Afghan.

Laughlin taught school in Colorado, Idaho and the Hudson School District at La Puente. In Idaho, he taught arts and crafts for 10 years.

He said that Matilda was on hand at the fair when he competed and offered suggestions he might use when he gives it another try in the 1974 fair.

"I knew I wouldn't go far in the contest," he said, "but I considered it part of life's many adventures."

He said he didn't consider a contest of 15 minutes very long. "I learned a lot from watching the winners, and will try them next year when I enter. It's a lot of fun," he concluded.

Merely shifts burden

Demos call Reagan tax initiative cruel hoax

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California's leading Democrats attacked the Nov. 6 special tax initiative election today as a $20 million down payment" by taxpayers on Gov. Ronald Reagan's campaign for the presidency.

In a teelphone hookup among San Francisco, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C., the Democrats said the tax initiative was "a cruel hoax" which would shift the burden of state government to local taxpayers, Republican and Democrat alike."

"The measure won't limit taxes," party chairman John L. Burton said. "It will shift them to the shoulders of the homeowner, the renter, the small businessman, the aged and the poor who can least afford them.'

He promised that the Democrats would "rally every county central committee, every volunteer organization and every precinct worker in the state' to defeat the tax measure.

Burton was joined in the telephone conference in Los Angeles by Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti and State Sen. George R. Moscone.

Speaking in San Francisco were that city's Mayor Joseph L. Alioto and University of California regent William Matson Roth.

Rep. Jerome L. Waldie joined the telephone conference from Washington, D. C.

All but Burton are contenders for California's Democratic gubernatorial nomination next year.

In a prepared statement issued in behalf of the Democratic Party, Burton said "The cost of the Nov. 6 special election is a $20 million down payment by all California taxpayers on Gov. Ronald Reagan's campaign for the U.S. presidency.

"If the state controller would take his partisan hat off," he said, "he'd bill the cost of that election to the treasurer of the Reagan for President Committee."

Rats eat you out of house and home

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Rudolph is constantly eating his way out of house and home. He has consumed, in the following order, his cardboard house, his aluminum house, his plastic cage. He is now in a steel cage which, so far at least, he seems reluctant to eat. I've been told his gnawing was because rats have to have something to chew on. This couldn't be the answer because he not only had things like carrots and hard biscuits but he also had pieces of wood and other hard things constantly available, too. Of course he has always been well fed. Can you think of any other reason why a rat would be so perverse? —I.G.

DEAR I.G: First, consider that a rat is an experimental eater. In other words, he will gnaw experimentally at anything available regardless of its food value. If there are no drastic consequences, say a stomach ache, the same material is likely to be gnawed again. This behavior is not as ridiculous as it at first appears. A rat, for example, might often starve if he were selective in his food habits, but by trying anything at hand (or tooth), he might just find something with enough food values to keep him goinng. This is one of the keys to the survival of this extremely rugged species. Second, Rudolph may be primarily interested in trying to chew his way out of his cage to freedom.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I've had dogs since I was a girl but they were always females. Jimbo, here, is my first male dog. He does something which worries me. Every time I take him out for a walk he urinates all the time. I know when a human does this it is a sign of diabetes. Do you think I should have Jimbo's urine tested? —C G.

DEAR C.G.: Why not? If the doctor should find anything suspicious in the urine I'm sure he would want to run a blood test, too. I'm not suggesting Jimbo does have diabetes, however. The more male dogs you observe, the less unusual Jimbo's habit will seem. Male dogs utilize urine as a "marker" and the more markers they leave behind, the more successful they consider the trip. (The total amount of urine expended on such a tour may be surprisingly small.)

Major crimes down in August in S.F.

Chaffey grad wins Santa Monica chess

By EUGENE CABALO

Bill Richards, an 18-year-old graduate of Chaffey High in Ontario, won the "C" section of the recent Santa Monica tournament. For his performance of four wins and one draw, he received the first prize trophy and $125. The event was attended by over 2000 players from Southern California. One of his games is published below for the serious students of the game.

The Ontario Chess Club recently organized formally and adopted the official name, California Chess Foundation. Don Cotton of Ontario is the newly elected president, Gene Cabalo of Chino, vice-president, and Dane Hinrichsen of Cucamonga, secretary-treasurer. The club meets every Friday night at 7 p.m. at the Ontario Parks and Recreation Building at 217 S. Lemon St. For those who find it impossible to attend the Friday night meetings, The Pomona Valley Chess Club meets on Thursday nights at 7 at the Central Park on the corner of Third and Parcells in Pomona. Both clubs conduct continous tournaments with trophies and cash prizes.

Senate moves toward pension reform

By Samuel Hastings-Black

WASHINGTON (NEA) — After several years of indecision and petty squabbling, Congress is finally on the verge of passing a major pension reform bill. This time the winner should be the American worker.

Despite enthusiasm for pension improvement last year, congressional action was scuttled by a judicial dispute between the Senate's Finance and Labor committees. Now that dispute has been settled, and from the full Senate debate which began Sept. 18, the outlines of the bill seem very promising.

Since half the workers in the United States are covered by congressionally regulated pension plans, the new bill — which is expected to get final approval from President Nixon — is likely to affect you or someone in your family.

WHO WILL BE ELIGIBLE?

At present, if your company has a tax-free pension plan, you may have to work many years before you can join. Under the proposed bill, you would be eligible at age 30, or after one year's work — whichever is later. (If your union has opted out of the company's plan, you will probably be joining your union's plan instead.)

HOW SECURE IS YOUR PENSION?

A major flaw in the pension system has been that some people have worked for years under a plan, only to learn that they have lost their benefits along the way. The new bill will change all that. In the future, if you're covered by a plan for five years, your employer's contributions will be "vested" in you. The new ruling is expected to ensure that 25 per cent of your employer's contributions will be nonforfeitable after five years, and 100 per cent after 10 years of work.

In other words, when you retire, you will not suddenly learn that your employer has spent your promised pension money on something else. If he has, he will be liable to criminal prosecution.

WHAT IF THE COMPANY GOES BANKRUPT?

If this happens, you might lose your job, which is bad enough. But it is worse to lose your savings, which is what pension contributions really are. This happens a lot nowadays. The new law will require employers to "fund" pension plans which means that your pension plans which means that your pension money will be deposited in an account which cannot be raided by management. This "funding" process will take many years. Meanwhile, the pension plans will be guaranteed by the federal government.

SUPPOSE YOU CHANGE JOBS?

Presently, if you work for a company and move to another, you could lose the pension you accumulated with your previous employer and start again from scratch at your new job. Many unions have solved this problem for their members by having only one plan, no matter where they work.

But for the non-union workers, or people who change unions, the new law provides the protection of "portability." When you leave a company, your rights in that company's plan are transported to a new government corporation. When you begin work for the new company, your accumulated pension rights go to the new company's plan and you pick up where you left off. This "portability" provision is one of the most radical improvements under the proposed bill.

THE LAWYERS' LOBBY

Law firms now often become "professional corporations" so that lawyers can get bigger pension benefits. In many cases, tax-free pension contributions can be $45,000 for one lawyer for one year. The Senate wanted to cut this figure to $7,500. Attorneys all over the country raised a war chest to lobby to keep the "lawyers' loophole," which raises everybody else's taxes by $125 million every year. Just before the debate began, the lawyers succeeded in forcing an exception to the loophole-closing proposal. But the House may try to put it back in.

Most of these proworker pension changes are not extremely radical. But they do build on aspects of the current law to substantially increase the security of a promised pension. And they make many more people eligible for this security.

Historic Culver City lot to be sold by MGM studio

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced plans Monday to sell its historic lot in Culver City, once the center of the largest empire in filmmaking.

MGM president James B. Aubrey said sale of the property would be part of the liquidation of some $50 million of the company's assets, including buildings and offices across the nation and overseas and company-owned theaters.

"Our new plan of operation is based on the realistic recognition that the motion picture industry has changed radically from the days when it was economically practical for every major movie company to maintain a large studio complex and a costly distribution ad marketing network throughout the world," Aubrey said.

Aubrey said MGM will now concentrate on making fewer but better and potentially more profitable feature films, on television series production and syndication, and on its diversification into other leisure and entertainment fields.

MGM's Grand Hotel is scheduled to open in Las Vegas this fall.

A company spokesman said MGM plans to intermittently release some films from its library of 1,400 feature-length movies, including "Gone With The Wind, for theater distribution and will sell exhibition rights of others for television.

MGM will also continue to operate its record subsidiary.

Aubrey said MGM will place increased emphasis on television production. The company currently has four television series on the air and 28 pilot programs in the developmental stage.

Closing of the Culver City lot by MGM will leave only four major studios in operation in metropolitan Los Angeles: Universal, Paramount, 20th Century Fox and the Burbank studios, operated jointly by Warner Brothers and Columbia.

Measure to support arts in state makes progress

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation increasing state support of the arts by $778,000 has advanced in the Assembly after receiving strong endorsement from Hollywood personalities Charlton Heston and Edie Adams.

The measure (SB121) by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, was approved by the Governmental Organization Committee Wednesday on an 8-0 vote and was sent to the Ways and Means Committee. There was no opposition.

The bill would provide the funds to the California Arts Commission for use in grants to local artists and art groups. The grants would made on a 2 for $1 match with funds put up by local arts organizations.

Gregorio said his measure would increase the state allocation to the commission from $250,000 a year to more than 1 million.

Heston, the actor who is a board member of the Screen Actors Guild, told the committee the bill would provide "solid state support behind the arts which has heretofore been lacking." He said California is "low ranking among the 50 states" in public financial support of the arts.

The Lighter Side

Grid ducats now losing their luster

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) —It turns out the pessimists who were lamenting that most of the steam had gone out of the drive for social reform in this country couldn't have been more wrong.

Last Sunday, in this and certain other cities, we saw dramatic proof that the American system can still respond with corrective action when injustices appear.

We saw the kindly hand of Uncle Sam reaching out and lifting the yoke of television blackouts from the necks of oppressed fans unable to get tickets to National Football League home games.

Cause for rejoicing

Enactment of the antiblackout legislation was more than a signal victory for the downtrodden masses of ticketless rooters. It was a cause for rejoicing for citizens everywhere who cherish civil rights.

To appreciate its significance one must understand that season tickets in cities where NFL games were sellouts had become symbolic of the class struggle in America.

You could see the poor devils on any given Sunday when the Washington Redskins were playing at home —miserable wretches huddled outside the gates of RFK Stadium, begging to buy extra tickets.

They were a pitiable sigh for they had noting to offer for the tickets except huge sums of devalued American currency. It was pathetic.

Pathetic and also disturbing to anyone willing to consider the broader implications. As Lincoln warned in another context, no nation can long endure half with tickets and half without.

Ignores threat

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle refused to recognize that revolt was fermenting. Told that some of the people were unable to buy tickets, Rozelle replied: "Well, let them watch volleyball."

Congress, fortunately, was more compassionate and lifted the blackout before the mobs began forming.

Rozelle claimed that telecasting home games would cause stadium attendance to drop, his explanation being that many fans prefer to watch football on the tube.

It is more likely, however, that attendance will drop for another reason, namely the loss of the aura of exclusiveness that comes with belonging to the ticketed elite.

By enabling the ticketless rabble to see home games on television, Congress has stripped pro football of much of its status symbolism and snob appeal.

"The biggest thrill in going to the games was the realization that you were part of a privileged few who could get seats," one ticket-holder told me.

"Now that just anyone can see a Redskin home game by merely turning on the TV, football isn't fun any longer."

I guess you can't blame season ticket-holders for being ticketed off about the sudden depreciation of their possessions. But in class warfare, someone always gets hurt.

According to U.S. Government testing procedures:

NOW YOU CAN ESTIMATE HOW MANY MILES PER GALLON YOU CAN EXPECT. BEFORE YOU BUY.

You have a right to know. You know how much a car costs before you buy it.

Now you can get an idea of its fuel economy before you buy it, too. That's because we're going to post gas mileage figures for 1974 models.

The next best thing to guaranteed gas mileage. We can't guarantee how much gas mileage a car will get. No one can. Not even the government.

That's because the actual fuel economy depends on a lot of factors. Factors we have no control over. Factors like individual driving habits. Or maintenance condition of the car. Or how much optional equipment is on the car.

But we can do something almost as good.

U.S. Government figures. Figures by the Environmental Protection Agency. Figures that show the average fuel economy of cars as classified according to their weight category. Figures that show the range of difference between cars in each category. The highest mileage. And the lowest.

See the 1974 Toyotas next month. A car's fuel economy is as important as its price. We feel that you have a right to know both. Before you buy.

That's why, starting with our 1974 models, we're going to post both.

TOYOTA WILL POST GAS MILEAGE FIGURES FOR 1974.

Ex-POW gets

Golden Needle award

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) —Lt. Col. John A. Dramesi has more awards than he can count. A little flag he secretly made from a blanket and towel threads, strips of red underwear and a piece of sweater hangs in a frame outside President Nixon's office in the White House.

The officer made the flag while a prisoner at the "Hanoi Hilton" in North Vietnam. He stitched it with a needle secretly made from a piece of copper wire.

The officer who made two escape attempts and was, he said in an interview, tortured until the brink of death, received another award Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Home Sewing Council in New York. You wonder why is he standing still for this one —the Golden Needle Award for public service? From a sewing council?

In an interview, Dramesi said he accepts selected awards of this sort for a threefold reason. He enumerated:

1. "When I came back quite a few people didn't know what happened."

2. "Everyone has a right to know how the officers reacted under the very difficult conditions in prison in North Vietnam."

3. "It is an opportunity to lift the prestige of the military in general in the eyes of the public."

Dramesi, who comes from Blackwood, N.J., now is attending the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, D.C. He was divorced while a prisoner and he may be the most famous prisoner. Because of the flag. Because of his two escape attempts.

The "Golden Needle" award honors Dramesi for "rare courage and ingenuity as exemplified by the secret sewing of the flag while a prisoner at the Hanoi Hilton."

The goldplate on the frame holding the flag reads:

"This flag was made by Lt. Col. John A. Dramesi while a prisoner of war 2 April 1967—4 March 1973 in North Vietnam. It was presented to President Richard M. Nixon on 25 May 1973 as a symbol of the honor and gratitude with which the prisoners of war returned to the United States of America."

Dramesi wears American flag cufflinks given him by the President.

The flag, as such, was a kind of light at the end of a tunnel while he was a prisoner. The flag in the frame is the second one he made. The first he fashioned on brown paper while in solitary confinement for a year after his second escape attempt. He made red paint out of brick dust and water. He used a disinfectant for the blue and chalk for the white. He was found out and tortured.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Social value in ritual

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband is a brave man in many ways, but when it comes to visiting anyone in a hospital or even anyone who's sick, he's a terrible coward. Many of our friends have been hurt because he ignores them when they are in real need. His favorite uncle died a short time ago and he refused to go to the funeral, because he says he doesn't believe in any of this kind of formal thing. I'm sure if I died tomorrow, he wouldn't go to my funeral.—R.F.

Dear R.F.: Only a most unusual person would actually enjoy going to a funeral. Most people go to show their sympathy for those who are in mourning. Fear of funerals is rally a fear of one's own death, for funerals remind us of the temporary quality of life.

Your husband's refusal to visit friends who are ill is, no doubt, the result of the same inability to separate himself from the person who is ill. He sees others ill when he visits a hospital and it frightens him and makes him feel insecure about his own state of health.

Although we all feel this to a certain degree, your husband's attitude shows that he has been unable to maturely come to terms with life and death. Many people never gain maturity in this area because they cannot lose their childhood feelings of omnipotence. They need to feel that they are in total control of their destiny and when they are reminded by death or illness that they are not, they become severely shaken and actually suffer a kind of ego damage.

Actually, though funerals may seem barbaric to some, they have a very deep psychological function. They help people to work through their feelings of grief in the company of others who reassure the grieving individuals and give them support. Funerals serve as a relief from tension and stress. Like other rituals that are celebrated, they help bring people into contact with a group who are sharing the same experince. Most rituals are uniting forces that reassure the individual and give sense of belonging by joining

Some of the feeling of alienation that is so current today results from a lack of ritual in the lives of many Americans. Some young people are trying to gain a ner fear. If he does not atreligious movements or communes.

It might be well to suggest to your husband that some of his failure to cope with the ill, and to cope with death itself, comes from his own inner fear. If he does not attempt to solve these problems and overcome some of his fears, he may find that they cause him needless pain and anxiety in later years. He is definitely overreacting and it is important for him to get at the real source of his feelings.

The course is designed to invigorate worn out or tired interpersonal techniques and communication skills via a variety of teaching methods. They include language analysis, taped interview sessions, role playing, interaction techniques and lectures.

Nurses instructing the course are Corie L. Hatton and Beryl Lovaas. Three units of credit may be earned.

Information is available by writing P.O. Box 24902, Department of Continuing Education in Health Sciences, University Extension, Los Angeles, CA 90024, or calling (213) 825-4958.

LET'S ASK THE COOK by Nan Wiley

Unless you had a better and earlier growing season than we did in the midwest you haven't had zucchinis in the garden until about now so I know I am in time with Susann Johnston's zucchini relish.

It is very different from any relish I have tasted. She gave me some from last year's batch and we found it truly delightful, not too tart, not too sweet, not hot at all. It is wonderful with any kind of meat and for sandwiches.

She and her next door neighbor, Emma Johnston (no relation) made a double batch together, they had to mix it in a wash tub so, even for a single batch, you'd better use a sizable kettle. Often I use my largest roaster for something like that or possibly my biggest pressure canner without the lid.

You will need 12 cups sliced zucchini, ground; 4 cups sliced onion, ground; 5 tablespoons salt; 2½ cups vinegar; 6 cups sugar; 1 tablespoon dry mustard; ¾ teaspoon nutmeg; ¾ tablespoon cornstarch; ¾ teaspoon tumeric; 1½ teaspoon celery seed; ½ teaspoon black pepper; 1 red bell pepper, and 1 green bell pepper, chopped or ground.

Put zucchini and onion slices through food grinder. Mix well with 5 tablespoons salt. Let stand overnight. Rinse with cold water, drain well in colander or sieve. In a large kettle mix vinegar, sugar, dry mustard, nutmeg, cornstarch, turmeric, celery seed and black pepper.

Cook until it starts to thicken. Then add ground vegetables, mix well. Cook slowly for 30 minutes. Can in hot sterilized jars at once.

If you had the foresight to plant lots of tomatoes this year pat yourself on the back, lose no time canning as much tomatoes, ketchup, etc. as you will need this winter. The word I get from all sources is that tomatoes will be in short supply unless commercial growers come through with a much larger crop than anticipated. This has not been the best of growing seasons anywhere. For that matter, can any produce you have grown or can buy reasonably at roadside stands or the pick-it-yourself places.

Earlier I enjoyed baby beets, purple beans and the first tomatoes from a patio bush just 18 inches high which knocked itself out with production. It scooped the neighborhood.

A garden is all toil and sweat, especially when it's 90 before noon, but a great satisfaction. Oops, I have to take back my first statement. My postman just brought me a sack full of beautiful zucchini squash. He's an early bird with his. Medium size turnips may also be used in place of the zucchini if they are not strong flavored.

Bread and butter zucchini pickles is just one of the recipes in Nan's booklet "Can Your Own Gourmet Winners." For your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Nan Wiley in care of Progress-Bulletin, Register and Tribune Syndicate, 715 Locust St., Des Moines, Iowa 50304.

Paulin and Stromberg vows said

William Lee Paulin, son of Mrs. Eleanor Lee Paulin of Ontario and W. E. Paulin of Alta Loma, exchanged marriage vows with Sandra Lee Stromberg of Seattle at a ceremony in Seattle Magnolia Congregational Church recently.

The bride graduated from Sumner, Wash., High School and the University of Washington. She is employed in the executive offices of a Seattle department store.

Mrs. Paulin graduated from Chaffey High School in 1960 and from Chaffey College in 1962. He received a degree in engineering from the University of California, Berkeley. He is a professor in business education at the University of Washington while working on his doctorate in that field.

The bridegroom's mother attended the wedding as did his sister, Miss Carolyn Paulin of Springfield, Ohio, who was a bridesmaid.

An open house reception was held last week for the couple in the home of the bridegroom's mother in Ontario.

The couple honeymooned in Hawaii and are now living at 2032 Eastlake Ave., E., Seattle.

Parents unit changes date for meeting

The Parents of Preschool Handicapped Children group has canceled its meeting this Sunday and will hold the next meeting Sept. 30.

The group is concerned with the newer parents of handicapped children.

If readers know of a parent who would benefit from association with the group, they are asked to refer them to Barbara Miller, 623-7079, or Joyce Wofford, 626-6120.

Some special gift

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: I need some suggestions for suitable gifts for the following: a black boy of 8; a young man who will enter law school in the fall; a couple, both of whom are retiring at the age of 65 from busy professional lives.—Mrs. T. R., Fort Lauderdale, Fla."

For all three I suggest publications. For the little boy, the newly published Ebony, Jr!, an extension of the enormously successful Johnson Publishing Co.'s Ebony. This new magazine for children is black-oriented and valuable in training in comprehension, vocabulary building and preceptual exercises. It is an attractive fun-and-learning package. Subscription price for one year (10 issues) is $6. It is monthly through May and bi-monthly June through September. The address is 820 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605.

For the lawyer-to-be I suggest Juris Doctor, a magazine for the new lawyer. It is published monthly from October through May and bi-monthly June through September by MBA Communications, Inc., 555 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. Subscriptions are $8 per year ($5 per year for law students).

For the couple I suggest a membership in the American Assn. of Retired Persons, which includes a subscription of their magazine, Modern Maturity. The annual membership fee is $2 from AARP, Dept. A, 1225 Connecticut Ave. NW, Washington, D.C. 20036. People 55 or older are eligible, whether or not they are retired. Only one in the family needs to be a dues-paying member of the association. The benefits are very wide—insurance, travel and so on.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: You say patients should be 'restrained' in the matter of giving gifts to their doctors, that most doctors would prefer prompt payment of the bill and no gift.

"As the wife of a doctor, may I point out that nobody actually pays his doctor any more. The insurance companies do, especially in the case of a 'serious' operation. Therefore, your writer who wanted to give her doctor a gift is expressing a need to do something just a little bit more, even though she has no doubt paid handsomely to her insurance company over the years.

"If kept very, very simple, the doctor does appreciate a small gift (at least my husband does)—delectable Christmas cookies or home-cured pork chops are two we have received. One very dear lady tatted the edging around a handkerchief for me.

"Probably, since these gifts are oriented to our family or, in some case, to me, I am very appreciative. In our case, gifts are not too often given, but when they are we are delighted.—Mrs. N.A., Portland, Ore."

I know many doctors and their families, and this fact dictated the reply I gave. Many patients feel they must give gifts to their doctors. They have very little idea sometimes as to what is appropriate, and doctors are deluged with ties they can't wear, all kinds of decorative objects which don't fit in with their office or home decor and all manner of office furnishings, not always appropriate. I stand by my statement that the best thing is to pay the bill promptly. By no means are all doctors' bills paid by insurance of various kinds.

It is a great temptation for a patient, particularly a woman, to wish to give a gift to a doctor who cares for her and who has perhaps become a figure of parental authority. Of course, a good patient-doctor relationship should be more than a mere business transaction, but then a good doctor does usually give more where needed than is actually required of him, thus satisfying his own professional pride and human instincts. Patients respond to this emotionally, but they should not feel obligated to give gifts.

Certainly, the kind of small token gift you describe can cheer a busy doctor's life and often the life of the doctor's frequently lonely wife when the gift is sharable.

I would like to hear from other doctors' wives—and doctors of both sexes—on this subject.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: My little boy is pestering me to let a friend give him a baby skunk. Will our friends be chary of calling on us if we have such a pet?—Mrs. W.M., Farmington, Conn."

First and foremost, there are laws against the domestication of such wild animals. If you decide to have a pet skunk, the procedure is to get it from a skunk farm, usually via a pet shop.

Skunks evidently make charming pets, and for this purpose they are usually descented. The danger is that they might escape to the wild without this protection, which would be sad indeed.

I recently read a delightful and amusing book you should get for your son called "A Skunk in the House" by Constance Taber Colby (Lippincott, $4.95). After reading it, perhaps you and he will both decide that a pet skunk, charming or not is more trouble than he is worth.

I have come to know a baby raccoon, and he is a fastidious little fellow, very friendly and funny.

Tait and Bosserman vows are repeated

In an afternoon ceremony at Church of the Brethren, Miss Jan Bosserman became the bride of David Tait.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Bosserman of Rowland Heights and the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Tait of La Palma exchanged their vows before the Rev. Fred B. Gantz.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin and lace. Clusters of lace flowers, adorned with seed pearls, decorated the bottom of the skirt.

The bride carried her mother's white Bible decorated with a white orchid, baby's breath and fern.

Mrs. Bonnie Weisz was matron of honor for her sister. Another sister, Jeanne Bosserman, was junior bridesmaid. The bridesmaids were Miss Cheryl Clinkenbeard and Mrs. Debbie Berner.

Julie Clinkenbeard was flower girl. The candlelighter was Mark Bridges.

Serving as best man was Tom Trieschmann. Ushers were Greg Flannery, Rick Berner and Phil Tait.

A reception for 150 guests and relatives was held at the Elks Club.

After a honeymoon in San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Tait will reside in Anaheim.

Public visits to Alcatraz

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. — (NEA) — The Rock is beautiful.

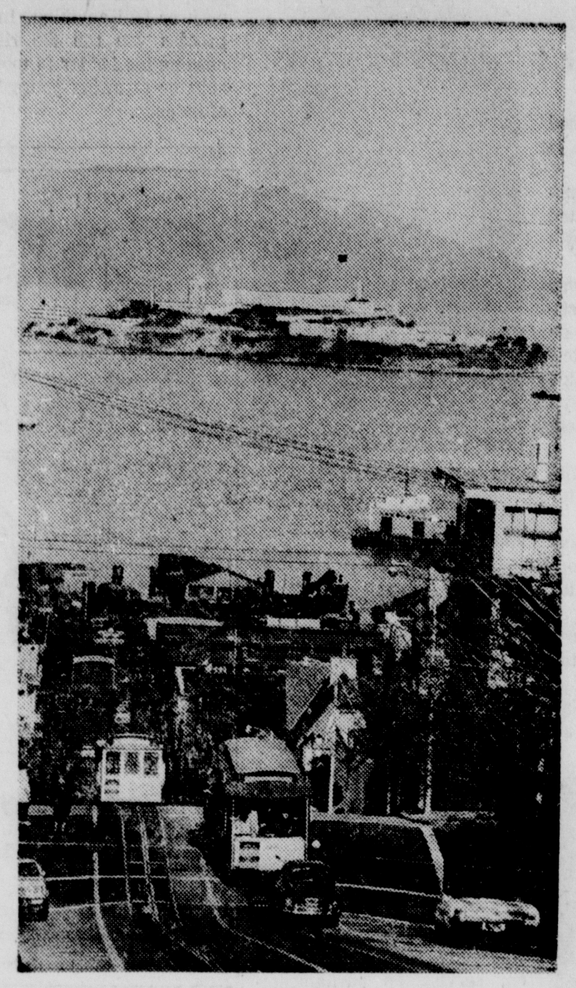
Maybe to Al (Scarface) Capone in his cramped stell cubicle, it wasn't. Or to Robert Stroud, the Birdman of Alcatraz, who alternated his life between tender ornithology and maniacal violence and had to be isolated from the rest of mankind. Or to Machine Gun Kelly, a murderous hoodlum.

To them, The Rock was despairing limbo.

But sitting in the middle of pristine San Francisco Bay, with its 360-degree sweep of the city, the Golden Gate straits, the rolling headlands of Marin and mountain backdrop of the East Bay, the island of Alcatraz offers superb and serene vista.

Yet it also enotes an eerie history of man's efforts to exact retribution from those who traduced the laws of society. Alcatraz has come to mean a barren, forsaken, impregnable spit of rock—the maximum security prison — though it served for only 29 years as the most isolated outpost of desperate criminals. (It had been a military prison for almost three-quarters of a century before that.)

The main cell block, which looms pastel-like on the escarpment like an Italian loggia, was built on the founation of an old Army fortress, and the old foundation is holding up better than the reinforced concrete walls whose iron rods are rusting from within.



Only One

On a summer day, when the fog has lifted off the bay and the shimmering white of the city stands in bold relief to the south, the 22-acre island is the target for a boat across the tide-ripped waters which made escape virtually impossible for the prisoners in their vast iron and concrete straitjacket. Only one man ever definitely made it, so exhausted he stumbled right back into the arms of the law.

The boat is an advance sortie for park and press people, since Alcatraz is still off limits for the curious.

This November, the general public will be able to visit the island for the first time since it was ceded by Mexico to the United States in 1848. It is now part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, and a quarter of a million visitors are expected annually from the San Francisco waterfront one-and-a-quarter miles away. The trip will cost about two dollars.

What they'll see is an anomalous mixture of decaying rubble and pastoral scenery, of desecration and destruction mingling with wild floral displays of lavender lippa, red fuchsia and orange nasturtium.

"At first," says Jerry Swofford, one of the National Park people leading the trek, "you couldn't walk through the place."

Morbid Place

There is a permeating morbidity to Alcatraz. And most of its focuses on the main cellbock where, down one long corridor, some of the most vicious lawbreakers in criminal history did time in their metal-jacketed 9' by 5' stalls with a cot, a lavatory and a toilet. Pink paint is flecking off the walls. Nicks can still be seen from the bullets which ricocheted in the Battle of '46, when three prisoners and two guards were slain in an attempted breakout. Somberness pervades the corridors, one of which leads to The Hole, where men in solitary were shuttered in complete darkness. And down below, in a big open shower room that looks like the gas chambers of Buchenwald, a guide says, "Two guys were murdered here."

Alcatraz was small. It never had more than 302 inmates at any one time. On March 21, 1963, the last of them, bound in waist chains, walked out forever—and maybe an era of unenlightened penology went with them.

Then six years later, in trapped the American Indians to claim the island for themselves, just as the Spanish had done two centuries ago when Juan Manuel de Ayala sailed into the Golden Gate in 1775 and called it Isla de los Alcatraces (Isle of the Pelicans). The Indians hung on grimly for 18 months and left their imprint. Gutted warden's quarters. Debris. Scattered shoes. Rags. Rooms full of old clothes. It was a hard place to live without heat or water (all fresh water must be transported from the mainland). On a corroding water tank they painted graffiti.

"Home of the Free . . . Welcome, Indian Land . . .'

Part of History

The graffiti will stay. "It's a part of history," says Swofford. The debris and decay will stay as is. It would cost $5 million to restore Alcatraz to a semblance of what it was. And they then would have just an outmoded prison.

Through the tangle of barbed wire, broken glass and crumbled concrete there is compensating beauty in magnificent views. From the shell where the warden once sat in his living room, a wide-angle bayscape. Through the slits of a peephole where Scarface once faced Mama Capone and communicated in Italian on a two-way telephone, the jagged teeth of the lilting San Francisco downtown skyline. Through the wavy glass block of the Birdman's cell, the Golden Gate bridge.

It's a measure of history that after more than a century of service as a place of entombment, the site can be enjoyed. The men who did time had an entirely different perspective.

Texas, Massachusetts races most costly in '72

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The $2.9 million Texas Senate race and a $514,112 House contest in Massachusetts were the most expensive congressional campaigns of 1972, according to official figures compiled by Common Cause.

Campaign finance reports brought together by the reformist citizens' lobby Thursday showed:

—Sen. John Tower spent $2.3 million and his Democratic opponent, Barefoot Sanders, spent $629,008 in the Texas campaign. Tower's winning effort was the largest outlay for any Senate candidate.

—Democrat John Kerry, former head of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, spent $279,746; winning Republican Paul Cronin spent $171,414, and Independent Rogers Durkin paid out $62,952, for a total of $514,112 in the 5th District of Massachusetts.

But Kerry's individual outlay was exceeded by Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., who spent $321,558 in a three-way race that was second highest in the country, with total spending of $506,946.

The Common Cause figures on primary and general election campaign spending by 106 Senate and 1,010 House candidates showed an average cost of slightly less than $1 million for Senate races where there was no incumbent and about $750,000 for those where a Senator was seeking re-election.

In the House, the 52 races in which no incumbent congressman was running cost about $175,000 on the average, while those in which a member of the House was opposed for reelection cost about $83,000.

Common Cause also cited figures showing that incombents raised nearly twice as much money as challengers. It said this advantage of incumbency showed the need for legislation, for which it is lobbying, to provide public funds for campaigns.

In the House the average Democratic incumbent raised $56,364, compared to $32,709 for his Republican challenger. The average GOP congressman seeking a new term took in $60,842 compared to $29,656 collected by his Democratic challenger In House districts without incumbents, Republicans and Democrats each were able to raise about $90,000.

In the Senate, the average incumbent of either party raised $525,809, while challengers took in $243,070. But in Senate races where there was no incumbent, the average Democrat collected $496,297 and the average Republican raised $465,264.

Museum to be built at La Brea tar pits

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The dreams of one of the original owners of the land surrounding the La Brea tar pits came true recently when the county Board of Supervisors approved a plan to build an archaeological museum on the site.

The board voted to accept the proposal by businessman George C. Page, who agreed to provide the nearly $2 million necessary to finance the museum through a foundation.

The 23-acre La Brea pits, known as the "world's most notorious death traps," have yielded the skeletal remains of a number of prehistoric animals such as saber-tooth cats and giant ground sloths.

The land was originally part of a 4,439-acre estate owned by Capt. G. Allan Hancock, which was sold to his father, Maj. Henry Hancock, for about $2.80 an acre in 1860. The acerage now comprises the center of the Wilshire District and remaining parcels go for $2,500 a front foot.

The younger Hancock built his home on what is now Wilshire Blvd. and shipped asphalt from the tar pits to San Francisco for use in street paving.

He amassed a fortune when he began selling parcels of the estate to developers. But he and his mother held on to the tar pits area, especially after a tooth from a saber-tooth cat was pulled from the pits in 1902.

Scientists began flocking to the area and Hancock and his mother dreamed of a museum to house the prehistoric remains. They donated the park to the county in 1916 with the stipulation that the major repostory of remains from the tar pits be located in California.

Ed N. Harrison, chairman of the board of governors of the county's Natural History Museum, said an estimated "5,000 children per day will go through the new museum."

The principle of the rotary engine, now being used in some automobiles, was patented in 1769 by James Watt, the inventor of the steam engine.

HENRY KISSINGER

Kissinger's views on foreign policy

By ELIZABETH WHARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry Kissinger is aware that what he calls "triangle diplomacy" involving the United States, the Soviet Union and mainland China is complex and certain to have its ups and downs in a hazardous world.

But he made it clear during three days of public testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that he plans to continue, as secretary of state, essentially the same approach to Moscow and Peking which he has carried out as President Nixon's foreign policy adviser during the past four years.

The hearings were largely dominated by controversy over wiretaps, access to information, and the right of Congress to be consulted in advance of major foreign policy decisions.

A re-reading of his testimony, nevertheless, offers a broad if not detailed outline of his thinking on most foreign policy issues facing the United States today.

Asked whether he believed continued U.S. relations with the Republic of China on Taiwan was responsible for postponement of a trip he has scheduled to make to Peking, Kissinger replied:

"It is to be expected in a very complex situation with governments such as the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China, that are enormously suspicious of each other — where every time we make an agreement with one it raises doubts in the mind of the other, and where there is what has been described as triangle diplomacy which is a very complex matter —that there will be some ups and downs, all the more so since the internal dynamics of their systems are substantially out of our control.

"I do not believe that differences which may have existed with the People's Republic have much to do —or anything to do —with our policy toward Taiwan ... I do not believe that this (Taiwan) is a fundamental obstacle at this time to normalization of our relations."

While noting that "the United States stands always for human liberty, for individual rights, for freedom of movement and for freedom of the person," Kissinger argued against legal strictures which would make normalized U.S. trade a quid pro quo for a change in the Soviet Union's policy on civil rights and emigration of Jews and dissidents.

"The U.S. has to conduct foreign policy with many nations,' he said. " ... I do believe it is dangerous for us to make the domestic policy of countries around the world a direct objective of American foreign policy because then we would be stuck with protecting the consequences of what we have brought about ... We would tend to follow the consensus of humanity on these issues."

In answer to related question, he said: "Despite the inevitable sympathies produced by my origin for the plight of minority groups that are denied the right of full emigration, I cannot in good conscience recommend as a principle of American foreign policy that our entire foreign policy should be made dependent on that particular aspect of the domestic structure of the Soviet Union.

Arms limitation

Kissinger pledged himself to pursue a new arms limitation agreement "extremely actively."

"If the arms race is not checked ... the greater throw weight of the Soviet missiles can be translated either into more warheads or into warheads of greater yield, and then by the end of the 1970s or into the 1980s the Soviet Union could wind up with both more warheads and more destructive warheads ... If we don't stop the arms race now we are going to get into a whole new realm of technology in which it will be very difficult to put the genie back into the bottle."

Questioned on other matters, he had these observations:

United Nations —Kissinger said he believes it has an important role in providing the basis for a human society, in helping to solve or prevent disputes between small nations and in providing the international framework for needed worldwide environmental and food production programs. But he said the U.N. should not be expected to play much of a role in disputes between the great powers.

Indochina —"Our interest in Indochina is to see that the countries have a right to determine their own future." Asked if the United States intends to retain a residual force in Southeast Asia, he replied: "To the degree that the danger is reduced either through foreign policy or through the growth of indigenous strength, the presence of American forces becomes unnecessary. We do not have forces there for any abstract purposes of constituting a bridge into Asia."

Highest priority

Europe —"The so-called Year of Europe has remained the concentration and the very high priority —indeed the highest priority —of the administration." He also said, "There is change in economic relationships as between Europe and the United States from a position of American dominance to one where the Europeans are becoming more cohesive and more assertive." On American troops in Europe, he said: "We hope that substantial progress can be made during the course of the next year which will then produce some reduction of U. S. forces. We would be opposed to the unilateral reduction of U. S. forces in the absence of such an agreement."

Middle East —"The position of the United States with respect to the Middle East conflict has been that we cannot substitute for some form of negotiations between the parties; that we, on the other hand, would be prepared to be helpful in the two parties began some movement toward toward accommodation.

Latin America —"One of our first moves will be to try to strengthen our relationships with Latin America, and we would like to have this exchange of views with Latin America progress to a certain point before we can judge the views of other countries with respect to Cuba and also the attitude of Cuba toward its relationships in the hemisphere."

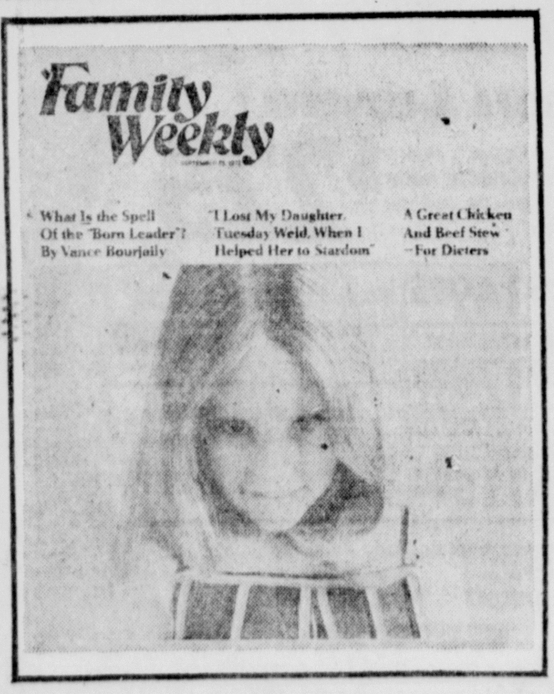
Another FAMILY WEEKLY Exclusive—September 23



Child Crises:

Which Ones Are Normal— Which Are Not?

"The child who puts on a cowboy suit for Halloween and can't stop being a cowboy for three weeks after Halloween is over may need help."

Thumb-sucking, bed-wetting, temper-tantrums . . . Is the child just going through a stage, or is there real cause for concern? In an essay written especially for Family Weekly, Grace W. Weinstein quotes valuable advice and suggests tested guidelines for parents who are anxious about some common childhood problems. In reporting the results of her in-depth investigations and interviews with child-development specialists, she offers some barometers of children's emotional needs and suggests means for recognizing abnormal patterns of behavior.

Art thievery increases as value of articles goes up

NEW YORK — NEA) — When Interpol's Robert Sojet sits down in his suburban Paris office and looks over his "most wanted" list, he is not studying a bunch of suspicious faces.

Instead he is going over the current listing of the 12 most wanted stolen works of art. It is part of his job as head of Interpol's Group C, which specializes in combatting art thievery.

"I think that there is no burglar specially trained for thefts of works of art," Sojet says. "It is only the fact that the value of those items has increased that pushes people to act in that way."

Whether they are motivated by appreciation of art or of its value, the world's art criminals are operating a multi-billion dollar underworld business.

Some recent examples:

In Italy, six painted panels by Venetian artist Lorenzo Lotto are stolen from a small country church by thieves who apparently hid in the church before it closed for the night, then worked undisturbed.

In India, a respected Indian newspaper charges that 80 tons of antique sculptures have been illegally exported to the United States under shipping labels that read "agricultural equipment." The Indian minister for education and culture says customs officials have been unable to trace the shipment.

In Egypt, the government wants to rebuild a small village on the Nile but finds the inhabitants refuse to move. They are puzzled until they discover that the village was built on top of ancient Egyptian tombs, which the villagers were profitably looting through shafts sunk from their own houses. (Grave robbing in Egypt is as old as the pyramids themselves. In many cases when a paricularly fine piece is found, the robbers keep it and use ancient materials to make skillful copies, which they sell to eager foreign collectors or museums.)

In Thailand, a collector finds it easy to get around a law prohibiting the export of prehistoric pottery from the North; he simply uses a few dollars to bribe a local government cultural representative and walks off with a fabulous assortment of prehistoric urns and vases.

Some art works and antiquities are too well known to be sold but that doesn't seem to inhibit the thieves.

"A thief, of course, can't expect to sell a Velasquez like he would sell a piece of cheese," Sojet says, "But the value of things which have not the renown of a Velasquez has been increasing too."

The focal point for all this artistic light fingering appears to be Italy, where more than 5,000 major art works disappeared in 1972 and where a Roman Catholic priest, a retired general and two high school teachers were among those arrested recently for trafficking in contraband art works.

A small proportion of the stolen objects are recovered by Italian police but most of them are believed to be shipped across the Atlantic to the United States via Switzerland, which has no inconvenient export laws governing antiques and works of art.

The Boston Museum last year returned to Italy a Raphael painting after learning it had been smuggled out but that kind of thing is the exception, as the controversy over the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art's Greek vase shows. Rodolpho Siviero, head of the Italian government commission that seeks to recover art works that have left the country illegally, describes the situation as "catastrophic."

Things are bad enough that the Vatican has given orders for tightened security — including electronic burglar alarms — around its most valuable works. But stopping the thefts and smuggling is complicated by Italy's multi-level police system and the fact that honest citizens who turn in archaeological finds usually are paid less than five per cent of what they could get on the open market.

Other countries have had mixed success trying to stop illicit art exporting.

Israel, for instance, allows foreigners to obtain licenses to export ancient artifacts but if someone shows up at the government antiquities department with an object that makes the curator's eyes light up, he simply offers to buy it for a competitive price. (Israel still has a law prohibiting Israelis from giving archaeological finds to foreigners as gifts, however.)

India has passed a new Antiquities and Art Treasures Act aimed primarily at foreign and Indian diplomats who have been carting artifacts off to profitable parts unknown.

Egypt, with more historic treasures than it knows what to do with, has been trying to sell some of its duplicates, though political considerations have kept this from working as well as it might.

Two countries that have nearly solved the art smuggling problem are China and Greece.

The Chinese government assembled everything it wanted from private collectors and dealers, who had no choice but to sell to Peking, which started rounding up its national collection soon after it took power in 1949. Tight controls remain.

The military dictatorship in Greece has instituted strict enforcement of laws against smuggling of antiquities and while some archaeologists are not convinced that the smuggling has been completely stopped, Athens art dealer Constantine Harikiakis, whose clients include Aristotle Onassis, says it is now almost impossible for art criminals to slip anything past the border.

It is just as well, he adds: "Otherwise by this time the Parthenon would have been transported elsewhere, piece by piece."

(This report was compiled from dispatches filed by the foreign correspondents of the Group W Westinghouse Broadcasting Company radio stations.)

Correctional officers back tax initiative

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Correctional Officers Association has formally endorsed Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax initiative which limits state spending.

"We believe those in the legislature who talk of wanting to increase wages and benefits for workers, but who at the same time create need for increased taxes, talk out of both sides of their mouths," declared Ken Brown, an association spokesman.

Reagan last year campaigned actively in the association's successful initiative campaign to reinstate the death penalty.

Opponents argue the Nov. 6 ballot initiative will hurt the incomes of state employes, including correctional officers, by placing a limit on state spending.

But Brown said, "It doesn't make much sense to, on one hand, work for increased wages to keep up with the soaring cost of living, while on the other hand have state government take the money back in the form of increased taxes."

Four bandits make one big mistake

[illegible] (UPI) — Four bandits held up two bank clerks at gunpoint recently and took the bags they were loading on an armored car, police said.

COPPER TUBES — Rows of copper tubing are being moved into position before being placed into refrigerators at the Westinghouse major appliance plant at Columbus, O. The copper tubing serves as a heat exchanger by transferring freon from the compressor to the evaporator.

U.S. balance of payments are narrowed

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A key measure of the U. S. balance of payments position with foreign nations narrowed between April and June to the smallest deficit since late 1970, the Commerce Department reported.

The basic balance on current account and long-term capital was in deficit by $782 million in the second quarter, a $165 million improvement over the year's first quarter. The basic balance was closer to a surplus than in any quarter since the third quarter of 1970 when the deficit stood at $356 million.

Short-term capital flows, which often reflect turmoil in international money markets and the activities of currency specultors, are excluded from the basic balance. Thus, this account is considered the best measure of the United States' trade and financial dealings with its commercial allies.

The department said the improvement was due chiefly to a $900 million net slowdown in investment by American companies overseas, a $320 million advance payment by Japan for enriched uranium and a favorable shift in the merchandise trade balance reported previously.

These factors more than offset a $1.2 billion reduction in foreign purchases of U. S. equity securities.

Decline of Spanish empire evident at new incosol

By DONALD W. REYNOLDS

Marbella, Spain—Seriously challenged only by Spain three centuries ago, for almost nine hundred years, until 1914, England ran the world.

British historian, George Bilainkin, five years ago wrote a book, "Why France Fell—Four Guilty Britons" holding them responsible for the 1940 fall of France and final destruction of the British Empire. He blames the Duke of Windsor while he was King Edward VIII of England); Neville Chamberlain, Britain's Prime Minister at the outbreak of World War Two; Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary at the time and Lord Butler, undersecretary at the foreign office. Supposedly the British government decided in 1971 not to release state papers dealing with the story after the normal 30 years restriction, but to keep them secret for 100 years. Only time will tell.

The decline of the Spanish world empire cannot be quite so neatly cataloged. And while it is always presumptuous to indict a whole people based on the actions of a few, it becomes apparent that if the ancestors of today's operating technicians carried on under King Phillip as their descendants are in 1973, its small wonder that the Spanish empire is memorialized only by the language spoken in Latin America and the Carribean.

A charming people, courteous, friendly, helpful and hard working, but completely incompetent to operate the fantastic creation on the sun coast known as the Instituto Medico del Sol-Incosol, for quick identification.

The Marques de Villaverde is president of the institute, Spanish banker Alfonso Furro with his private bank in Madrid and financier Ifracio Coca are among the principals in this medical vacation clinic. Unlike in the United States, no government money has been used to provide Marbella with the only hospital for miles around.

With less than 50 of the 400 beds occupied obvious financial problems are apparent. Equipment for every type of bath and water therapy has been installed, and staffed by experts brought from Helsinki. Everything was technically ready for the Easter opening—except there was no hot water.

Dental chairs and equipment occupy one wing of the clinic—but there is no dentist. Complete beauty and barber equipment facilities are also available—but no barber.

There have been three changes in administrative heads in as many months. Obviously somebody is trying desperately to make a success of the $12 million investment that at the moment can deliver only the climate and view, a very small portion of the marvels promised in a colorful twenty page brochure.

Dr. Auguste C. Gianoli has been billed as one of the esoteric drawing cards of the new complex Fiftyish, he maintains a residence in Berne, Switzerland, and calls his specialty "geriatrics." Gianoli's field is cell revitalization. The treatment is accomplished through a one-week cell injection program. The cells from unborn lambs are frozen and dried in a process called "lyophilzation" to preserve them. The cost of the one week revitalization treatment, including the necessary pre-treatment physical examinations together with room and meals runs in excess of $2,000. Hardly a popularly priced boone to the old folks.

Results are apparent only after a delayed period of time—and the doctor recommends they be repeated annually.

"When she came to me a few years ago" the doctor said, describing one of his patients." Sre apparently had no energy and spent most of her days in bed. Now she's a new person because of the cell therapy treatments."

The dining room—with the staff out numbering the quiet diners two to one—has the right spooky sort of atmosphere one associates with a witch doctor.

Thursday, September 20

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A situation you'll find yourself in today looks profitable, provided you exclude another who has nothing to contribute.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before you put too much time and energy into today's projects, be sure they're feasible and necessary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Now that you've managed to get a little money ahead, be careful. Don't fritter it away on something useless.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will spend more time today than you should on outside interests. Something to be done at home will be neglected.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) in the back of your mind you think you have a solution to a problem. When your ideas are tested, however, they won't work.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A friend has something she wants you to get involved in. You'll find it will cost money as well as time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You will deprive yourself of achieving something today because you will change you mind at the last minute. Be steadfast.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone will pretend they are in accord with your ideas today. Then they will quietly do things differently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will be disappointed because something expected from another will not come through. Give him more time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you need advice today don't go to too many people. It will only make your decision more difficult.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Instead of doing what you should be doing, you're likely to be thinking more of tomorrow's needs. Both will suffer.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be on guard today. Don't read more into a relationship than exists. If you do, frustration is likely, as well as jealousy.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
September 20

Many new interests will capture your imagination this year. Some offer splendid opportunities. Others must be analyzed very objectively.

Preference often tough

By Oswald & James Jacoby

North should probably have passed when his partner bid three no-trump. If he had, South would have made exactly three no-trump against a spade opening and either five or six no-trump against any other lead depending on whether or not East got to cash his ace of spades.

West opened his singleton diamond. East didn't have much hope of defeating five clubs but he did note one chance. If West held ace and another club and would lead a spade then West would get to ruff a diamond. Therefore, East played his 10 under dummy's jack.

Things worked out just as East had hoped. West did win the first trump trick; did lead a spade in response to the suit preference signal and did ruff the second diamond.

This hand illustrates something we have pointed out in the last couple of articles. It is easy to recognize a suit preference signal when the signal is given with a high card to call for a lead of the higher off suit. It is downright difficult to be sure that a low card calls for the play of a low side suit.

'Ring of fire'

About two-thirds of the more than 600 active volcanoes in the world encircle the Pacific Ocean. The "Ring of Fire" includes Japan's Mt. Fuji, Mauna Loa and Kilauea on Hawaii, Popocatepetl in Mexico, Mount Agung in Bali, and Mount Erebus in Antarctica.

The doctor comments

What happens when thyroid is enlarged?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you please tell me what "toxic goiter" means? I am not sure that this is what I have, but I am going in for tests soon. I don't know anything about the thyroid. Does this condition always require an operation? I have heard of so many women who are taking thyroid pills and they take them regularly. They tell me that I can't stay on my pills indefinitely. I am taking Tapazole.

Dear Reader — The term goiter means a growth of, or increased size of, the thyroid. It can be caused in many different ways. Commonly it is caused by an accumulation within the gland of the material that the thyroid produces. The goiter may not cause any disturbance in the function of the thyroid in many individuals. It may gradually increase in size in time, and eventually become so large that for various reasons the patient may wish to have it removed. These goiters can result from iodine deficiency, a problem that's less likely to occur in our modern society. society.

Some goiters are associated with overactivity of the thyroid gland, producing an excess amount of thyroid hormone. You can have an overactive thyroid without a goiter. The result is the same. Too much thyroid hormone stimulates the cells to burn food more rapidly than usual. This requires more oxygen to metabolize the food. The heart has to work harder to deliver the oxygen, which results in a fast heart rate.

Since the food is burned rapidly, such individuals commonly eat lots of food without getting fat. The hair is fine, there may be a moist, sweaty skin and excess nervousness. Often these individuals have overactive bowels, and, in general, all of their functions are speeded up. It can also be associated with excessive emotion lability, and, in it's extreme form, can be associated with severe mental problems. These problems are usually corrected as soon as the thyroid condition is normalized.

An overactive thyroid does not always require an operation. The medicine you are taking is meant to slow down your overactive thyroid This protects you against some of the problems I just mentioned. It has some side effects, and, for this reason, doctors like to determine just how much a person should take. Often, if there is an overactive thyroid with the goiter, doctors feel that surgery is indicated. This removes part of the overactive tissue and helps to relieve the condition. Each case has to be reviewed on its own merits to decide what's to be done in this regard.

The kind of thyroid that most people take is replacement of the thyroid gland's normal hormone, presumably for an underactive thyroid or hypothyroidism. I suspect that many people taking thyroid don't need it. This is a natural outcome of two human traits. People who have a variety of vague symptoms like to feel that something is being done about their problem.

Quite humanly, doctors like to feel that they are doing something for their patients and feel an urge to do something, even if nothing is required. This means that some doctors are prone to prescribe pills because of the compulsion to do something for their patients (none of these remarks apply to your case which is entirely different).

Fortunately small doses of thyroid tablet are not usually harmful in people with normal thyroid function. The thyroid gland just quits putting out as much hormone as it ordinarily does and everything pretty well equalizes itself.

Court experiments in videotaped testimony

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A civil trial went on television Monday in the form of videotaped testimony taken earlier from witnesses in an experiment aimed at speeding up the court process.

Attorneys for the plaintiff and defense reviewed each tape before the trial and decided which parts should be seen by the jury, eliminating the sometimes lengthy arguments during a trial about admissability of evidence.

The testimony of five witnesses was taped over a two-day period in July in a law college courtroom with a deputy county clerk swearing in the witnesses and neither judge [illegible]

The case involved a $50,000 damage suit filed by Lillian Liggons, 34, of Novato, against George Hanisko, 50, San Francisco, because of a 1971 auto accident in which she broke both legs.

A jury of eight women and four men was hearing the case in Superior Court before Appellate Justice Robert F. Kane, who said he was named to preside "because of the special circumstances."

Four television monitors were placed in the courtroom, [illegible] two in front of the jury and one for spectators.

The experimental trial was being conducted by the National Center for State Courts under sponsorship of the federal Law Enforcement Administration.

"The objective is to speed trials. By videotaping, witnesses do not have to wait to testify or return to court due to trial delays or appeals. The jury and judicial system similarly save time," the center said in a statement.

It was [illegible]ond time in California history that videotape was used in a trial. A witness at a Hell's Angel murder trial in March videotaped because he was dying of throat cancer. The tape was played at the trial three days after his death.

Ontario man fired upon

ONTARIO — An Ontario man complained to police Wednesday that men in a car fired several shots at his car on Grove Avenue between Mission Boulevard and Francis Avenue.

Police said the report was made at 1:21 a.m. by Ron Dziewit of 760 La Paloma St. Police checked Dziewit's car and found two bullet holes in its side. Police said they believe he bullets were fired [illegible] a .22 caliber revolver or rifle.

Dziewit was unable to tell police how many persons [illegible] the other car he described as a 1959 to 1964 [illegible] Joliet.

British liberals eyeing comeback after 50 years

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) —The tiny British Liberal party once the country's dominant political force but in eclipse as a significant factor for the past 50 years—suddenly is making big headlines again.

It will hold its annual "Assembly" or convention at Southport on Sept. 18 in a blaze of publicity it has not known for decades.

"This time it's for real. This time they must take us seriously," asserts Liberal partyleader Jeremy Thorpe.

"Liberal comeback," "Liberal landslide" proclaim British newspaper headlines.

But the Liberals also have a problem. Few Britons, including probably many who have voted for it recently, have a clear idea what they stand for.

"Undoubtedly we have benefited from a lot of protest votes against the Conservatives and the Labor party," says Thorpe.

"We are receiving almost non-stop requests for a substantial and up to date digest of party policy," says Liberal party press secretary Stephen Bonarjee.

The political events that created this sudden problem for the Liberals have been little short of sensational.

In the past 12 months the Liberals have won four parliamentary by-elections (special elections) and increased their House of Commons total from a paltry six to a group of 10.

This still is insignificant compared with the Conservatives' 325 and Labor's 286. But the Liberals rolled up big successes in local government elections last spring. Now they have their sights on a couple more upcoming parliamentary by-elections in which they hope once again to smear the two big parties.

They hope to grab off anything from 20 to 50 parliamentary seats in the next general election which is generally expected to be held in about a year.

This might even give them a balance of power if the Conservatives and Labor end up in a tightly fought finish.

In a bid to overcome the "Who are the Liberals?" problem, Thorpe assigned Desmond Banks, director of the party's Policy Promotion department, to rush out a "quickie" summary of Liberal party policies.

He has done so to the tune of 8,000 words, released shortly before the annual party convention.

"The basic principle of Liberalism is a concern for the individual," says Banks. "We do not think primarily in terms of bosses, masses and classes. We start with the individual men and women who make up these vast conglomerations of people."

Here are some of the main items of Liberal policy listed by him:

—Controlled economic expansion and a new "social contract," including "co-responsibility' of management and workers in industry and a statutory minimum wage.

—A "credit income tax" system under which all income would be taxed on a progressive scale but everyone would be entitled to various credits "depending on circumstances."

—Government curbs on house prices and rents.

—Support for continued membership of the Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Should she wed father of child?

By JEAN ADAMS

DIFFERENT: Q: My boy friend and I have a problem, but we are not the same as most girls and guys when the girl gets into trouble. He loves me and I love him. He says if I want to he will marry me.

So it's not a question of love—or of keeping the baby, either. And I don't believe in adoption or abortion either.

Our parents insist we marry. But I am only 15. He is 17 and has a job paying $125 a week. The question is, should we marry?—Pregnant in Pennsylvania.

A: You say no to adoption and abortion. That means your baby will be born either with or without a legal father—with or without a full family.

Because of this, and because of the attitude of your boy friend and your parents, I agree that marriage is logical.

Before you make a final decision, however, discuss seriously with your boy friend and parents, and possibly your minister, the pros and cons of letting your baby be adopted.

Such a course would free you for what possibly could be a fuller, better life in the future. That is why I normally advocate adoption in crises like yours.

THREE GIRLS: Q: I have struck out three times. The first girl I wanted to take out was my old girl friend, but she said no. The second was beautiful. She said yes and I was happy. We had one date and she dropped me.

The third girl I had two dates with and then asked her to go steady. She said yes. I was really happy. But next day she called me and said she was going back to her old boy friend.

I know another girl but I am afraid to ask her. What is the matter with me?—0 for Three in New York

A: Nothing. You did not strike out three times—you had three dates with two girls. Many boys try more than three girls before they get their FIRST date.

Be positive, not negative. Call Girl 4. If she says yes, do not hurry to ask her to go steady. Be sure you like each other a lot first. If she says no, pick out Girl 5 and ask her for a date.

Cars collide; youth injured

CHINO — A 16-year-old Chino High School student was injured Tuesday afternoon when two cars collided at Central Avenue and D Street.

Mark Horn of 15271 Pine Ave. was taken to Chino General Hospital with minor injuries. He was later released from the hospital in good condition.

Police said Horn's car, southbound on Central Avenue, collided broadside with the car driven by Dana Warner, 40, of 78 W. Arrow Highway, Upland. Police said Mrs. Warner was making a left turn from Central Avenue onto D Street. Mrs. Warner was not injured, police said.

Car strikes dirt bank; driver hurt

WALNUT A Walnut man suffered facial injuries Monday when his car hit a dirt bank along Walnut Drive east of Fairway Drive.

Antonio Lucero of 1115 S. Clorinda Drive was admitted to Pomona Valley Community Hospital. He is reported in satisfactory condition.

He was driving west on Walnut and failed to negotiate a curve, highway patrolmen said. His car hit a dirt shoulder, causing the driver to lose control. The vehicle then slid across the road and hit the dirt bank, officers added.

Table tennis delegation triggers thaw in Peking-Taiwan relations

HONG KONG (UPI) —Few delegations to China — even President Nixon's entourage— have received as much attention as a group of Chinese table tennis players from the United States and Japan.

The 22-member group has the unwieldy title of "Table Tennis Delegation of Chinese Compatriots from Taiwan Province of the People's Republic of China residing in Japan and the United States of America."

It was invited to China to participate in the 1st Asian-African-Latin American Table Tennis Friendship Invitational Tournament.

The group has not distinguished itself in ping-pong play. But it appears to have received more attention than the other groups in a soft-sell campaign to establish contacts with Taiwan as a step towards the eventual return to China of the Nationalist-held island.

The United States agreed, in a joint communique issued during Nixon's visit to China last year, that Taiwan is part of China. But the American position was that settlement of the Taiwan question should be by peaceful means.

To help achieve this, the United States promised to "progressively reduce its forces and military installtions on Taiwan as tension in the area diminishes."

The United States began making good on this pledge last week with the announcement that an entire tactical airlift wing was being withdrawn from Taiwan's Ching Chuang Kuan airbase. This unit is comprised of about 3,000 men, or one-third of all American military personnel on the island still ruled by aged Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

The soft-sell campaign, which Peking has stepped up recently, is in keeping with the unwritten pledge by Chou on behalf of the Communist leadership to abandon force as a means of resolving the Taiwan problem.

The Nationalist government on Taiwan, which is doing very well politically and economically despite some diplomatic setbacks such as the Nixon trip to China, has made no response to any of the direct or indirect overtures from Peking for establishing contacts.

No response from Taipei seems likely for the time being despite the wide publicity given to the Peking moves among overseas Chinese and in radio broadcasts beamed to Taiwan.

Since the table tennis group arrived in China it has been entertained lavishly at an endless series of banquets and soirees.

The latest was a forum and banquet Sept. 4 in the Taiwan Hall of Peking's Great Hall of the People. This was held under the sponsorship of the United Front Work Department of the newly elected Central Committee of the Chinese Communist Party.

Huang Wen-chin, leader of the delegation spoke at the forum and said just what his hosts wanted to hear.

"We are greatly encouraged by this expression of loving attention for us people of Taiwan Province shown by the Great Leader Chairman Mao (Tse-tung) and the party central committee," Huang said. "Returning to the Motherland this time, I feel all the more that the people on the mainland and the compatriots in Taiwan Province are brothers by blood, who can never be separated."

A New China News Agency (NCNA) report on the forum and banquet said other members of the delegation joined Huang and Taiwan "personages" living in Peking in a pledge "to respond to the solemn call for liberating Taiwan and realizing the unification of the motherland issued by Comrade (Premier) Chou En-lai in his political report to the just-completed 10th national congress of the party.

"They pledged to unite and make concerted efforts to achieve this goal," NCNA said.

In his report, Chou declared anew that "Taiwan must be liberated." But the tone of his remarks was much milder than it has been at times in the past.

"Taiwan Province is our Motherland's sacred territory, and the people in Taiwan are our kith and kin. We have infinite concern for our compatriots in Taiwan, who love and long for the Motherland," he said.

"Our compatriots in Taiwan can have a bright future only by returning to the embrace of the Motherland. Taiwan must be liberated. Our great Motherland must be unified. This is the common aspiration and sacred duty of the people of all nationalities of the country, including our compatriots in Taiwan. Let us strive together to attain this goal."

The table tennis group is only one of a steady stream of overseas Chinese delegations and individuals, particularly from the United States, visiting China.

Reagan vetoes freeway bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation that would have deleted the proposed Beverly Hills Freeway in Los Angeles from the California freeway plan was vetoed recently by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

In his veto message, Reagan said he personally was opposed to building the freeway but wanted to wait for completion of a current study of transportation alternatives for the area before acting.

Reagan said it would be "premature and ill advised" to eliminate plans for the new freeway route until the Southern California Association of Governments completes its transportation study.

World spending more on military than education

GENEVA (UPI) —The United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UESCO) reported today that the world spends far more each year for military purposes than it does on education.

UNESCO said in 1970, $197 billion was allocated to military spending, against $161 billion for education.

The figures did not include China, North Korea and North Vietnam, UNESCO said in a report to the International Bureau of Education's annual conference.

Miltary spending represents 6.4 per cent of the world's gross national product and education 5.2 per cent, it said. These average percentates, UNESCO said, correspond exactly to spending on the military and education in the United States, Soviet Union and European countries.

The developing countries, it said, are spending an increasing proportion of their GNP for military hardware—3.5 per cent compared with 3.4 per cent for education.

"In the Arab states, for obvious reasons, military expenditure was considerably higher than for education, 7.3 per cent and 5.2 per cent respectively," UNESCO said.

Beef label bill signed

SACRAMENTO —Gov. Ronald Reagan Tuesday signed a bill assuring consumers that next year they will be able to quickly tell which part of a steer their beef comes from.

The measure (AB1875) by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, was aimed at curbing "confusing' beef labels that give shoppers no hint of what type of cut they are buying, such as "his and hers steaks" for what is actually an inexpensive section of meat.

Cambodia war losing its point, has less and less meaning

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The United States stopped bombing Cambodia Aug. 15, amid dire warnings that Phnom Penh would fall. Instead, the Communists pulled back.

Only the Communists can say why, and they are not talking for publication.

When the bombing stopped, they had advanced to a front averaging three miles from the capital in the teeth of nonstop American bombing. Then, in early August, they pulled back.

Everyone, of course, has a theory, colored by experience, prejudices and political coloring. Among them:

Maj Gen. Sosthene Fernandez, chairman of the Cambodian joint chiefs of staff —"The enemy have suffered a defeat at our hands."

U.S. Ambassador Emory Swank —"I have the impression that the FANK (Cambodian army) ... faced with the necessity of defending themselves, may do just that."

A non-American western diplomat —"They just ran out of steam. But they'll be back."

A neutral diplomat —"The countryside is flat around Phnom Penh. And with the rainy season, the B52 bomb craters are filled with water. But the rainy season ends in November. And the Communists have all the initiative."

A Communist diplomat — "The other side over-extended itself. They rolled up so much territory they had to stop to reorganize society."

Prince Sihanouk, in an interview with UPI correspondent Sylvana Foa in Peking — "We have had to postpone plans for attack because of our lack of heavy arms and ammunition." But North Vietnam has promised "enough ammunition to make us capable of leading a great offensive against Lon Nol in the dry season."

Meanwhile life in Phnom Penh is almost normal, with only an occasional reminder there is a war on.

So far there is not much of a pinch for food and fuel. Prices keep creeping up but not spectacularly.

Phnom Penh's central market is a cornucopia of fruit, of dried fish and cage after cage of live rabbits and squawking, quacking poultry, of vegetables, cornmeal, sugar and tea, of fresh red meat and plucked chickens.

Rows of gunnysacks of fastgrowing U.S. "miracle" rice jam the market. But the homegrown variety is hard to find. The Cambodians prefer it, insisting that the U.S. kind has no taste.

Gasoline is rationed, but plentiful. Traffic jams clog streets and air.

The 9 p.m. curfew makes dinner a hurry-up affair for restaurants and their customers. Nightclubs as such do not exist. A few girlie bars stay open after hours for westerners, headquarters officers and officials with curfew passes.

At least one opium den reputedly is still going, but well behind closed doors.

Phnom Penh's population of a half-million before the war has been swollen to at least three times that number by refugees. The lucky ones, with friends or relatives in town, or the talent or resources to start life anew, have been absorbed into the settled population.

The less fortunate are camped around the outskirts of town in one-family or two-family shelters. The government supplies two-by-four-inch timbers and heavy plastic roof coverings and provides a basic diet of soup and rice.

It is not much of a life. Prak Dim, 58, hasn't had a day's work since he was driven away from his rice fields a year ago. He says he fled because the Khmer Rouge (Cambodian reds, the insurgents) burned down his house and were preparing to kidnap him and his fellow villagers.

Now he lives in a government shelter on the grounds of the Champou Voan pagoda, just south of Pochentong airport, with his three sons, aged 10, 16 and 17. His wife and daughter are sheltered at a military camp nearby but he hopes they will be able to join him soon.

Prak Dim is tall and dignified, with close-cropped grey hair, a checkered yellow sarong and bare feet. He smokes a roll-your-own cigarette.

"I spent my last 500 riels (about $1.20) on rice this week," Prak Dim says. "I don't know what I'll do next."

The Cambodian Army has absentee officers, boy soldiers and a gaggle of families trailing along into battle.

It has 62 generals. But in the opinion of one western military expert, only three of them know what they are doing.

U.S. law forbids American combat troops or advisers in Cambodia. But there are 125 uniformed Americans here—as supervisors of military equipment deliveries, military attaches who drive or fly by helicopter to the front every day to keep track of what is happening, and Marines guarding the embassy.

By contrast, the Vietnamese Communists have about 30,000. About 6,000 are directly involved in the war, supplying and advising the Khmer Rouge.

The government of President Lon Nol has yet to capture the imagination of the Khmer people. Its chief public-relations effort these days is demythologizing the exiled Prince Sihanouk.

An accepted theory is that government members are jockeying among themselves for public recognition as the man best qualified to negotiate for peace if and when the time comes.

Sihanouk has pledged that he and his cohorts will never talk peace with the present government in Phnom Penh.

Lon Nol said Aug. 29, "In the face of flagrant bad faith of our aggressors and their accomplices, we have decided to drive out our invaders by force of arms."

Army post in Germany

Woman Lt. Col. to take command

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Exactly one week from today, Lt. Col. Nancy Hopfenspirger takes command of the U.S. Army post in Wurzburg, Germany— the first woman to hold such a major Army command overseas.

In her new job Col. Hopfenspirger, a five-foot dynamo who has no fear of tackling tough assignments, will be in charge of a battalion-size group of Army men and women who maintain the base, where the Third Infantry Division is headquartered.

That, in itself, is a step away from the old Army—where men commanded men and women commanded women. But the low-key manner in which her assignment was handled tells even more about the new role of women in the new Army.

No announcement

There was no public announcement of the assignment, although Army officials confirmed it had taken place when asked by United Press International. It was, Army officials said, handled as if it were entirely routine.

"We don't announce the assignments of male lieutenant colonels around the world," one officer said. "And we don't want to make a storefront commander—something usual —out of this gal. We want her assignment to be treated the same as if a man had gotten the job."

Col. Hopfenspirger, 47, of Delmar, N.Y. , assumes her new command Sept. 25. A veteran of 22 years in the Army, her last assignment was as congressional liason for Army headquarters.

Second woman

She will be the second woman placed in command of a predominantly male unit overseas. The first, earlier this year, was Capt. Reba C. Tyler, who commands the 48th AG Postal Detachment at Mannheim, Germany, a much smaller outfit.

Army officials are considering what role women should play in the Army of the future, although there has not yet been any serious move toward abandoning the separate Women's Army Corps.

All the services have been opening up new opportunities for women in the United States.

Five women, three from the Army, one from the Navy and one from the Air Force, hold key command positions over both men and women in the United States. And the Army a few weeks ago approved its first woman to enter flight training early next year.

Carnegie Medals go to U.S. heroes

By TOM TIEDE

PITTSBURGH — (NEA) — Not long ago in New York, a Puerto Rican businessman rushed to aid of a policeman who was being set upon by thugs. For his effort the heroic citizen got nothing but lip. People in his neighborhood called him a "cop lover," former customers stopped patronizing his store. In the end the man sold his business and moved away, harassed, confused and embittered.

And so it goes for some of America's heroes. The business of minding other people's business can be unrewarding. At best in the United States there seems a suspicion of such people. Why do they risk their lives What's in it for them? At worst they can be ostracized or avoided as fools.

But occasionally, some 100 or more times a year, the courageous in the land are given their due. They're presented with the most impressive, if not the most familiar, cilian citation in the land: The Carnegie medal for heroism.

John J. Feightner, for example. Last year in Largo, Fla., he saw an occupied automobile stranded on a railroad track at the time of an approaching train. The driver, 65, was too stunned to move. Feightner ran to the car, pulled the driver clear, and as the train hit and demolished the vehicle, pulled the fellow 12 feet away. This year Feightner was given the 6004th Carnegie medal and $500 in appreciative cash.

"Wonderful," he says.

54,000 Acts

Wonderful, indeed. In a nation so preoccupied with antisocial behavior it is wonderful to, however obscurely, recognize social involvement. It is something of a further wonder than in 69 years of investigating heroism, the Carnegie medal people have filed 54,000 acts of heroism in North America, a mere fraction of the deeds which have actually occurred.

The Carnegie Medal Fund, now operating out of quiet midtown Pittsburgh offices. was established in 1904 by steel pioneer Andrew Carnegie. A Scotsman who belied the stingy reputation of his heritage. Carnegie believed that something should be done for people who risk their lives to save other lives. He gave an original endowment of $5 million in bonds. Over the years $13 million more is currently committed.

The Hero fund, according to its manager David Oliver, awards three medals—bronze, silver or gold. Bronze is the usual. Silver is for greater heroics. The gold prize has not been given since the Nova Scotia mine disaster of 1959.

Gives Money

In addition, the fund gives money. Carnegie's original thought was that people should not have to suffer financially for heroism. Thus the fund now mails 160 checks monthly to incapacitated heroes, widows of heroes or heroes continuing their education. One widow has received nearly $50,000 over a 48-year period. And all young heroes, on reaching their 17th birthday, are contacted by the fund as to educational needs. Says Oliver: "If they need money for college, we help out."

As it happens, there are numerous young heroes in the Carnegie file. A fund survey of the years 1965 through 1969 revealed that youths between 12 and 19 were the most frequent medal winners. Forty-seven 17-year-olds won awards during the period. And one eight-year-old.

"We don't know why the young prevail," says Carnegie secretary Walter Toerge. "It may be that the older people get, the more they weigh the consequences of heroism. Or it may be that young people are just naturally in places—like lakes—where accidents happen."

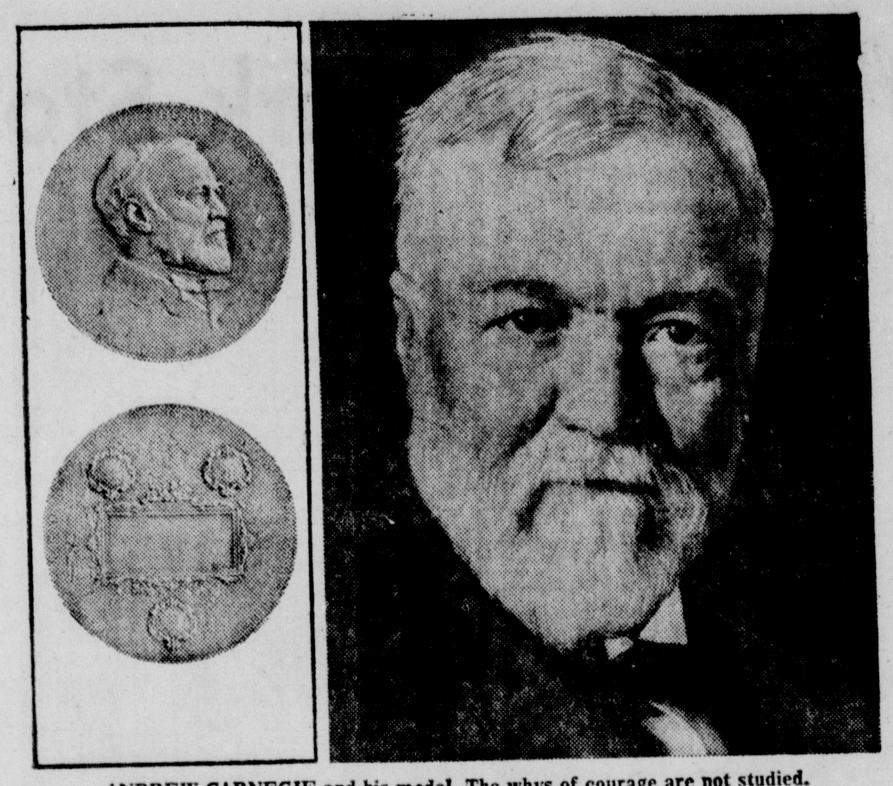
The Hero Fund organization is admittedly short on the philosophy of heroism. "We're not trying to promote heroism, just recognize it"—thus the whos and whys of courage are not studied. Yet patterns naturally arise from repetition. Often, as example, heroes are not aware of the risks they've taken until after they've explained it all to Carnege officials. Often, too, heroes, by process of elimination, are forced into their deeds.

Classic Example

A classic example of the latter hero is described by a long-time Carnegie investigator, Herbert Eyman: "I remember a case of a man drowning near a beach occupied by two people. One of the people was a big 250-pound all-American football player. The other was a 98-pound girl. The football player tried a rescue first, but gave up when he decided he couldn't make it. That left the girl. She had to go out because she was the only one left. She could not stand by and watch someone die."

But whatever the reasons for their actions, Carnegie's heroes are eminently deserving. Incredibly detailed reports on each candidate—including personal interviews with one of five fund investigators—assure accuracy. On one occasion the fund may have been fooled, by a convict whose heroism is still under suspicion, but the duds and fakers are rare.

No doubt the Carnegie winners are virtually all like Bill Whiteacre of Cupertino, Calif. He was recently cited for saving a woman from her estranged husband. Whiteacre interfered when he witnessed the husband shooting at the woman. He ran to the man with the gun and put his hand in front of the hammer. Incredible Yes. But not so surprising. If we paid better attention, perhaps, we'd find the good guys in the land still outnumbered the bad.



ANDREW CARNEGIE and his medal. The whys of courage are not studied.

Mayor rebuffed

Movie film won't back off: Detroit is murder capital

DETROIT (UPI) —The makers of the film "Detroit 9000," which depicts this metropolis as the "murder capital of the world," Tuesday refused to back off from their disputed ad by claiming they were telling it like it is.

In a telegram to Mayor Roman S. Gribbs, who wired General Films Corp. Friday asking that the "scurrilous" advertising be stopped, company executives said: "Change your city, and we'll change our copy."

"As long as Detroit continues to have over 800 homicides a year and a murder rate second only to automobiles as your city's major industry, we will continue to quote Time magazine's line calling it the murder capital of the world," the telegram said.

"Further, as long as blacks are confined to the Inner City, and whites are restricted to the suburbs, we will also continue claiming that in Detroit, honkies are in the minority. Our ads reflect today's Detroit."

The movie, made in Detroit last March with assistance from the city's police department in certain scenes, is about the robbery of a political fund-raising ball.

Man kills self by fire

SAN PEDRO (UPI) —A man sprinkled himself with a flammable liquid Monday, lit himself on fire and told several people trying to help him, "I did it myself; let me burn."

Police said Russell M. Logan, 26, burned to death in a vacant field. Authorities said he had attempted suicide two months earlier.

Railroad buffs bid for carafes

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The somewhat seedily dressed little man, needing a shave, stomped angrily around the hall, sometimes waving his hands in the air in exasperation, or shoving them into the pockets of his faded sports coat.

"It's like selling bananas," he shouted up to the auctioneer.

The object of the little man's anger was a bunch of railroad buffs who had massed into a hot, stuffy room of the Samuel T. Freeman & Co. late last week to bid on obsolete dining car silverplate that was being auctioned off by the Penn Central Railroad.

"I'm a dealer," the unhappy man said. "I'm here to buy up a lot of this stuff, when it gets down to a reasonable price. But this, ugh," he exclaimed waving his hands at the crowd.

The resounding voice of auctioneer John Freeman vibrated around the room.

"We have four Pennsylvania Railroad (predecessor of the Penn Central) water carafes," he said from his perch atop a portable auctioneer's stand.

"I have a bid for 35," he said. "Do I have a 40? A 40, I've got a 40, do I have a 45, a 45, I've got a 45, a 50. Now a 50," he droned. "I'm at 50, 50, 50 sold at 50," he said as he banged his gavel.

Next were 45 water-carafes from the New Haven Railroad, which started out selling at $45.

"Sold at $45," declared Freeman.

"How many?" Freeman asked the successful bidder. "One," he reported as the crowd laughed and the little man threw up his hands in disgust.

Under the procedure, the successful bidder had his choice of the number of carafes he wanted and the ones he wanted among the rows upon rows of them that were lined up along shelves.

The procedure started all over again for the remaining 44.

Then there were 300 Pullman water carafes up for bid and the auctioneering droned on. The first went for $65 and Freeman remarked "at that price I don't blame him."

"Hell," exclaimed a retired railroad employe who had wandered in to watch the proceedings. "If I had known that guy would pay that much for one, I would have stolen him one."

The bidding moved down and down from the original $65 and got below $10.

"I'm now at $7, $7," shouted Freeman.

"Seven dollars," shouted a man from behind one of the counters. He was George Freeman, son of the auctioneer and a member of the family that has conducted the business since 1805.

"The bookkeeper on one of the floors below wanted one for her son," George explained.

And it went on through the day, moving from carafes, to cake and toast covers, cruet stands, table knives, casserole covers, etc., until the final item:

One Pennsylvania Railroad water pitcher.

It went for $250 to "an agent acting for somebody in Detroit."

The sale finally ended at 4:10 p.m., almost six hours after it started, and grossed "in excess of $10,000," about $7,000 more than Penn Central officials had estimated.

Price of rice soars for Asians

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — If you think food costs in the United States are too high, be glad you don't live in a country where rice is the staple diet, says Walter Falcon, director of Stanford University's food research institute.

"American food price increases are dwarfed by recent movements in rice, the staple food of over a billion Asians," Falcon said on his return from a six-week trip to five Asian countries.

"During the last 24 months alone, the international price of rice has gone from less than $100 to more than $400 a ton." He blamed the price increase on continued drought.

Nice profit

Occasionally, stamp-collecting pays handsomely, and get-rich-quick stories soon make the rounds. A collector bought a sheet of 4-cent stamps from the United Nations in 1963, and later discovered the stamps lacked the proper black shading. That printing error brought the purchaser more than $10,000 for the 50 stamps.

Busy bees

Without nectar, there is no honey. A pound of honey may hold the essence of two million blossoms. Bees require every bit of their renowned energy to gather it. Even in regions where flower abound, a bee colony may fly 37,000 trips and log 50,000 miles to produce just one pound of honey.

Rattles & straws

Fine time in prime time

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Is the Democratic Party finger-lickin' good? Or just chicken?

Saturday night the loyal opposition gambled $800,000 on a seven-hour television program (I refuse to recognize the wordoid, "telethon.") It included a caucus of prominent defeated political candidates and a galaxy of stars of stagescreenanradio. It was staged by John Y. Brown Jr., board chairman of a grab-and-go fried chicken chain.

Recalled from long-forgotten battlegrounds to man telephones and grimmace into TV cameras were Sen. Eugene McCarthy (remember him?), Senator Edward ("Ted") Kennedy (remember him?) and Sen. George McGovern (remember him?).

Joining the losers at the NBC studios in Burbank was Henry Fonda master-of-ceremonies, plus such celebs as Tony Randall and Jack Klugman,an odd couple; and Jack Lemmon, Robert Warner and James Garner. Security measures were in force, of course, to be certain that nobody bugged Tom Smothers' dressing room, or taped rehearsals in the NBC hall, or broke into the shop of Natalie Woods' dressmaker. Can't be too careful these days.

The significant thing for sage observers of the political scene was the shift in the Democratic spectrum as evinced by the card of the all-star cast. In 1972 the party went with popular young entertainers of liberal leanings, and wound up with a bucketful of nothing. In those dark days, the Three Dog Night didn't pull votes like Tex Beneke and the Modernaires.

I'm not saying that the American electorate is influenced, by film and television stars, by their images and professed political leanings. I'm not SAYING it. But in the Fatal Fall of '72, the Democrats went with Goldie Hawn and Shirley MacLaine, while the Republicans hung in with John Wayne and Lawrence Welk, and the results drastically affected not only the presidential elections but the Nielsen ratings.

Awakening at last from its monolithic sleep, like the Abominable Snowman crackling his way out of an icy coffin, the Democratic Party finally realized that the majorit yof American voters lean toward conservative rock groups and middle-of-the-road comics.

I haven't heard the result of the loud-winded, long-running, many-throated television special, but the lineup made it clear that the Demos had learned their lesson, showbizwise. They threw in the Fifth Dimension for the youth vote, but Julie Christie gave way to Robert Goulet, Simon and Garfunkle yielded to Florence Henderson of The Brady Bunch, and Burt Bacharach was replaced by Steve Allen.

A political television show can make or break careers in show business as well as politics.

Official urges lifting of ban on off-shore drilling

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The director of California's Department of Conservation, said that the state should lift a ban on offshore oil drilling, construct new nuclear power plants, and develop oil supplies within urban areas to avoid an energy crisis.

"I think we can all agree that California does face a crisis of energy —that we have reached that cruical moment when difficult decisions must be made," said Ray B. Hunter in a Town Hall address.

Because the state's energy demands will double in the next 15 years, Hunter said, California should develop a policy to "stimulate development within California of our energy supplies. And we may have to furnish a financial tax incentive to do that."

Hunter said that "environmental controls must be made more flexible, at least temporarily. But at the same time, we must more rigidly enforce those flexible rules."

Retail food prices will remain high

WASHINGTON UPI) —Although farmers may raise [illegible] livestock feed grain production next year about 9 per cent above this year's record levels, consumers probably won't see any broad declines in retail food prices in 1974, according to Agriculture Department experts.

The breakthrough to new grain production records is likely, officials said, as farmers respond to this year's record prices and a government call for all-out production. The administration, seeking to put a lid on food inflation by boosting supply, has canceled all acreage controls for 1974 grain and cotton crops.

The forecasts were made Monday as the department released the first issue of a new series of reports making public, for the first time, its previously secret and highly tentative "projections" on future production and demand for major crops.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll G. Brunthaver told a news conference that if farmers respond as expected, 1974 wheat and feed grain production will exceed domestic and export needs and allow some rebuilding of reserve stocks.

But Don Paarlberg, the department's chief economist, warned that even with some expected boosts in poultry and beef, overall livestock food supplies next year may still "be short of what you could really call abundant, and that would mean price strengths for most of 1974."

Paarlberg said the expected bigger 1974 feed crops could encourage further growth in livestock production late in the year and further down the road. But on the retail price scene, he said, "I cannot predict any sharp general declines" in 1974.

Jazz club schedules meet in West Covina

WEST COVINA — The Society for the Preservation of Dixieland Jazz will return Sunday to its former meeting place, the West Covina Elks Lodge, 841 W. Merced Ave., for its September concert-jam session. The public is invited. First notes sound at 2 p.m.

SPDJ has moved often since its formation 11 years ago at Storeyville, a Pomona tavern. As the original membership of 25 grew (it is now over 500), the club moved to RoVal's in Cucamonga, to the holiday Motor Lodge in Montclair, to the Palms (now the Volksgarten) in Glendora, to the West Covina Elks Lodge, and last year to Griswold's Pavilion in Claremont. Remodeling of the latter hall has necessitated moving back to West Covina, where future meetings will be held on the fourth Sunday of each month.

"SPDJ is not a musicians-only club," says president Charles Counter. "There are usually four times as many listeners as performers. There is no rock and roll. This is music of the '30s and '40s. The purpose of the non-profit club is music and good fellowship."

The meetings run from 2 to 8 p.m, but listeners and musicians come and go during the afternoon. Refreshments are served.

Memberships in SPDJ can be obtained from secretary Gloria Hinshaw, 38 S. Sunnyside Ave., Sierra Madre 91024. The telephone is (213) 355-0293.

It's a bird

The French call it oiseau-mouche, or fly-size bird. Spaniards and Portuguese say pica flor — peck the flower — and beija flor — kiss the flower. In the Lesser Antilles and Cuba it's named for the sound the wings make — murmures and zum-zum. Americans know them as hummingbirds.

Gang wars with execution killings rock S.F. Chinatown

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Gang warfare with execution killings reminiscent of Chicago's Capone era of the '30s has rocked historic Chinatown.

But the prize is not control of illicit booze, drugs or rackets.

It is, instead, an apparent struggle among a group of jobless young Chinese, many recent emigrants of Hong Kong, for power and prestige within their own tattered ranks in the world's biggest Chinese community outside Asia.

Fifteen victims have fallen execution-style since 1970, slain in the streets in braod daylight or hogtied and strangled in remote spots. At least one was an innocent bystander.

Vengeance, intense group loyalties and a sense of "righteousness" are endemic to the loosely organized groups.

"Some have chosen the (Chinese) names for 'loyalty' or 'righteousness —they are trying to reinforce themselves in a bad situation," says one Chinatown observer.

"They believe in fearlessness, in being 'gutsy.' There's a lot of appeal in toughness. I think that has a lot to do with robbing Chinatown merchants, eating in restaurants and refusing to pay, refusing to buy tickets at (Chinese) theaters, trying to run gambling.

"The jealousies have been tremenous, and the urge for retaliation has been tremendous. If the member of one group dies, then the group has to have revenge. It's sort of snowballed.

"These people have tried to control certain areas of Chinatown, the theaters, the smaller shops and restaurants. They wanted things for free, and they offered protection."

The 17-block downtown area known as Chinatown shows an exotic face to the thousands of yearly tourists who stroll and shop on narrow Grant Avenue, Chinatown's main street, but quite another to its residents. Overcrowding is nearly intolerable. One study showed a population equivalent to 98,000 persons per square mile, compared to 16,000 for the rest of the city.

Average education of Chinatown residents is about two years' American schooling, compared to 12 for the rest of the city. With the highest youth density in the city, Chinatown has 1-20th of the recreation space it needs.

Many families live in rooming houses built a half century ago that were occupied by a single man hoping to earn his fortune and return to China. Now whole families often live in two rooms and share toilet and kitchen facilities with others. Many live in commercial areas, above shops and theaters.

Some Chinatown residents feel the gang problem is the direct result of crushing social conditions, exacerbated by the arrival of newcomers for whom little could be offered.

"Chinatown is no different than Hunter's Point," says one young Chinese, referring to one of the city's large black neighborhoods. "The social conditions are the same in Chinatown —with the added burden of a language barrier.

"Look, all I want for people to see is what's causing this. Just look at history. Why is there such a large concentration of Chinese in one place'"

Racial prejudice is the implied answer.

"I'm upset because people say it's all our fault, the Chinese kids used to be so good. But there's a reason for it. Both the white and Chinese people need to be educated. There is a lot of exploitation within our own community because Chinese have trouble moving out of the community. And there's a bad employment problem.

"Look, these newcomers are like human refugees. Some are doctors and nurses or experienced construction men, but they have to be retrained for America, like the Cuban refugees were retrained.

"But if a trained worker tries to get into construction, he's told he's 'too small.' The Holiday Inn in Chinatown was not built by Chinese construction workers. And the kids, where do they find jobs"

A state commission made a study recently that showed while Asian children are high achievers in schools here, they have scarcely better luck than blacks in the job market.

"My parents say don't rock the boat, work hard and make it, that my life will be better than theirs, and my kids' lives will too," the young Chinese says, "but when the kids finally get up there, ready to go, they can't get a job. They're told, 'no openings.'"

"These kids in the gangs, their fathers may be a waiter and their mother sewing for 50 cents an hour in a sweat shop and bringing the little kids with them because they can't afford a babysitter.

"The older kids go to school but they have no background in English. They go into an American history class and they can't understand any of it. The teacher reacts to them as if they're ignorant or stupid, and we have the self-fulfilling prophecy.

"So they go out to the streets, they gotta have bread. They want clothes and the other things important to teenagers. They've got no money. They start ripping off."

The antelope fawn at the age of one year can run up to 25 miles an hour.

SHIPS OF THE DESERT — OLD AND NEW STYLE — While camels trek across the Mauritanian desert in West Africa, a fleet of land-yachts, combination dune buggies and sailboats, sweep across the Sahara on a 1,500-mile trek to the town of Fort Ain Ben Tili. The land-yachts were recently featured on TV.

Kissinger in good mood after approval

WASHINGTON UPI) — Secretary of State-designate Henry Kissinger was in an obvious good mood after the Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved his nomination Tuesday.

'I am surprised that only 10 persons appeared in opposition to my appointment," he told reporters. "I would have thought that my entire staff would oppose it."

When asked whether he would continue to be a "swinger" about town, escorting glamor girls to the posh restaurants, he grinned and said "absolutely, I have to have some prerogatives." Kissinger made the remarks at a White House dinner honoring Pakistani Prime Minister Zulifikar Ali Bhutto.

Dodger fans want Hank

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — The moment the fans had waited for came at 7:54 p.m. Wednesday night at Dodger Stadium.

Henry Aaron stepped up to the plate. Unfortunately it was only to present his team's lineup card to the umpires. After that chore, Henry disappeared into the Braves' dugout and was not seen again.

In the ninth inning, Atlanta manager Eddie Mathews used two pinch hitters. The eager fans who for the most part had waited patiently for Bad Henry to at least pinch hit in his assault on Babe Ruth's career home run record, again were disappointed.

Trailing 4-1 Mathews chose Chuck Goggin and Marty Perez as his pinch hitters while the object of everyone's attention and the center of interest, Aaron, languished in the dugout.

Goggin was called out on strikes and Perez grounded out pitcher to first. In between, Paul Casanova had beaten out a perfect bunt. The fourth batter of the inning, Ralph Garr, fanned.

That gave the Dodgers a 4-1 win, Andy Messersmith a 14-10 record, and Jim Brewer, who pitched the ninth, his 19th save.

Mathews said later that he would have used Aaron "if we got a coupie of men on base in the late innings."

Before the game, Aaron had explained to the crowd of writers, and radio-TV men pressing around him that he likes to rest after playing a night game and then going on the road, especially when he comes into a different time zone.

"You can only do so much with the old body," he said. "I don't want to push myself. I'll play as many games as possible.'

So tonight Aaron should play . . . unless the "old body" hasn't yet caught up with the time change, or has contracted a virus sitting in the chill of the dugout Wednesday night, or Mathews feels that with Ron Schueler (8-7 and a 3.73 earned run average) facing the suddenly hot (three straight wins) Dodgers, and Al Downing (9-9) his team doesn't stand much chance and keeps Henry on the bench.

After all what does it matter that the 39-year-old Aaron now has only eight games left this season to break the record, or that a good portion of the fans are lured to the park because of the widely publicized appearance of the Hammer?

Not one word was ever mentioned anywhere that Aaron might not play.

Lost in the shuffle of all this was a record-breaking home run by Atlanta second baseman Dave Johnson. Johnson gave the Braves their only run with a smash off Messersmith in the fourth inning that wound up in the Dodger bullpen in left field.

It was the 43rd homer of the year for the former Oriole who hit only five last year with Baltimore. It broke the record of 42 (for a second baseman) set by Rogers Hornsby in 1922.

A light sprinkling of applause greeted the announcement of the record.

Except for the homer (number 24 off Andy), Messersmith rarely encountered difficulty. The former Angel struck out six and walked three while giving up the one run and five hits in his eighth-inning stint.

Up until the eighth, Phil Niekro (13-9), had the Dodgers well in hand. Through seven innings he hadn't issued a base on balls. In the eighth he walked two of the first three men he faced.

That was his undoing.

With one out and Bill Russell on second and Dave Lopes on first, Mathews dismissed Niekro and summoned Alan Closter who was acquired Sept. 5 from the Yankee organization to close the deal which sent Pat Dobson to New York.

Closter had an ERA of 4.01 at Syracuse and 18.00 (that's right, 18.00) with the Braves. He issued an intentional walk to Bill Buckner to load the bases.

Willie Davis promptly singled in the tieing run and Mathews promptly removed Closter and replaced him with Phil's little brother, Joe Niekro. Joe's ERA was much better, 4.50.

Joe Ferguson hit a sacrifice fly to score Lopes and give the Dodgers a 2-1 lead. Willie Crawford drew the fourth walk of the inning again loading the bases. Ron Cey then whacked a 2-2 pitch on a line into left field scoring Buckner and Davis and applying the coup de grace to the Braves.

The victory kept the Dodgers 5½ games behind Cincinnati which also won.

DODGER NOTES — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was among those disappointed at the Aaron no-show.

The 31,012 paid attendance (40,347 including Boy Scouts) brought the season total to 1,979,603. Needing only 20,397, the Dodgers are sure to go over the two million mark tonight.

The club announced that general admission seats are being sold in advance for the Friday and Sunday games with the Reds. Reserved seats ($2.50) remain for Saturday afternoon's 1 p.m. game.

It's official: Willie Mays says it's over

NEW YORK (UPI)—Willie Mays, the most electrifying and exciting player of his generation, officially announced his retirement from baseball Thursday, effective at the close of this season.

Mays, who's been playing major league baseball for 22 of his 42 years, had been expected to make the announcement because age and injury had robbed him of many of his skills.

There were will be a fond farewell party for Mays next Tuesday night when he's honored on Willie Mays Appreciation Night at Shea Stadium.

Mays entered the major leagues on June 24, 1951 with the old New York Giants. He went with the Giants in 1958 and then came back to New York last year when he was traded to the Mets.

When Mays came into the league, only one of today's 12 home parks—Wrigley Field in Chicago—was in operation.

His dashing exploits in the field, his explosive bat and his daring baseball captivated baseball fans for two decades.

"Everybody knows why I'm here. I'm retiring after this season. I only hope I can make some contribution towards another championship in New York in the little time left."

But Mays revealed that he suffered three broken ribs in Montreal on Sept. 9 and "I'm not going to go out there on the field if I'm not 100 per cent. The team still has a chance to win, and I don't want to interfere with that."

Mays said he wasn't sure what exact position he'll hold in the Met organization starting next year.

"I have many directions to go and many things to consider. But one thing I know, the game is my life. It's just a question of what the club will want me to do. We'll settle that when the season's over and I sit down with Mr. Donald Grant. He knows I love to be around kids, and I'm sure that's one area I'll work in."

Dressed in a checked sports coat with green pants, Mays spoke to a formal press conference before nine TV cameras.

"It's difficult to explain how much I love baseball. We have what you'd call a love affair."

Wilt will air announcement by next week

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain, now wearing the cap of a businessman instead of his basketball headband, is still weighing the options and will announce early next week whether he'll jump from the NBA Los Angeles Lakers to the ABA San Diego Conquistadors.

Chamberlain travels to New York today to put in a plug for his Autobiography but he will not announce his future plans until the first of next week, according to his Attorney, Symour Goldberg.

"Wilt may just decide to lay on the beach for the next 10 years—he is still considering a number of options," Goldberg said.

The most lucrative of those options appeared to be a $500,000 a year player-coach contract offer from Leonard Bloom, owner of the Fledgling Conquistadors.

"Wilt hasn't made up his mind yet," the attorney said. "Many people in and out of basketball are talking to Chamberlain. He's not a man who makes choices quickly. When he makes it it will be wholeheartedly and not out of anger."

Meanwhile, the Chamberlain-Laker rift seemed to be widening and brought back memories of 1968, when Chamberlain left the Philadelphia 76ers after after a fallout with management.

Laker ownership has called for the removal of Wilt's picture from the cover of the team's press book, replacing it with that of Gail Goodrich.

And already in a Laker uniform, as an heir-apparent to Wilt's center position, is Elmor Smith, acquired from the Buffalo Braves, who made his debut for Los Angeles Tuesday night in a pre-season game against the Golden State Warriors.

"It would be difficult for Wilt to go back to the Lakers," Goldberg said. "And I'm not sure that the Lakers want him back anyway."

A spokesman for the Lakers, however, denied that the club was trying to phase out Chamberlain, a 14-year NBA Veteran who led the Lakers to the world championship in 1972 and owns a good piece of pro basketball's record book.

Derby favorite posts easy win

POMONA — Using his speed to good advantage, heavily-favored High Protein cruised to a two-length victory in the $10,650 Derby Trial Stakes Wednesday at the County Fairgrounds.

Only four horses went postward in the mile and one-sixteenth event, and the order in which they ran remained constant as High Protein took the lead going to the first turn and held it throughout under the direction of jockey Jerry Lambert.

High Protein, who is owned by George Spellman and trainer John Coffee, returned $2.80 and $2.20. There was no show wagering. Fleet's Deal, the runner-up, paid $3.20 to place and combined with High Protein for a $21.50 exacta payoff.

High protein is expected to make his next start next Wednesday in the $15,000 added Pomona Derby, a mile and one-eighth contest that is also likely to lure foothill stakes winner brush cutter and the speedy Ocala Boy.

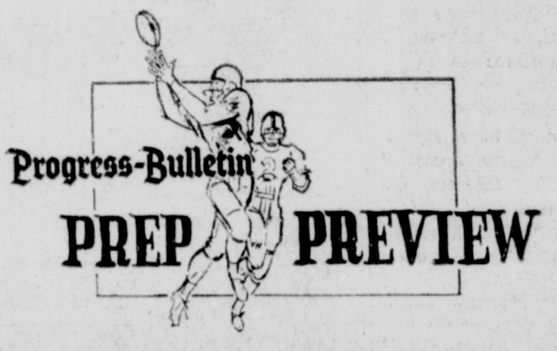
Coming off a front-running victory on the turf at Del Mar, High Protein had enough speed to quickly take the lead from the outside post position, under a typically clever ride by Lambert, High Protein set leisurely fractions of .24 4-5, .49 3-5 and 1.15 before Fleet's Deal offered a bid for the runner-up spot.

The favorite had plenty of speed in reserve and hit the wire in 1.46 2-5, fastest mile and one-sixteenth of the meeting.

Real Decision finished third, beaten three and one-half lengths, and Our Land was fourth and last.

Bill Mahorney tallied aboard favored Hasty Rhythm in the supporting feature to move into a tie for the riding lead with Don Pierce.

After taking the Derby Trial, Lambert posted his third win of the day aboard Scottina B in the last race and made it a three way tie at the top of the jockey standings.



Pomona, Pacific at MSAC, 8 p.m.

Pomona High, coming off a 5-3-1 record from last year, appears to be a little more optimistic this season, with All-San Antonio League quarterback Steve Taylor returning to aid a potentially vicious passing attack.

The Red Devils will open the 1973 prep football season tonight at Mt. San Antonio College against a team which they beat last year, 27-7.

Other top returnees for Pomona include running backs Jim Price and Garry Honest. Probably seeing action with the two returnees in the backfield will be junior Raymond Butler.

Figuring to be on the receiving end of Taylor's passes include split end Jerome Holliman, tight end Tom Jones and flanker Lamont Harris.

Pacific, which is returning 10 varsity lettermen from last year, is expected to stick to the ground tonight.

Tonight's the night for Billie, Bobby

HOUSTON (UPI) — Tonight's "Battle of the Sexes—Chapter 2," between Billie Jean King and Bobby Riggs has been played for a lot of laughs.

"Both of us are making money," says Billie Jean. "So this is a kind of marriage between us." The audience laughs. Riggs' eyes bulge.

Stuff like that.

But there should be no mistake about it. When the two of them get together tonight for their $100,000, winner-take-all, best-of-five set, nationally televised tennis extravaganza between first base and third base in the Astrodome, Billie Jean King would truly love to bash Bobby Riggs to the point of embarrassment.

"You had better believe there is something riding on this match besides the money," the 29-year-old five time Wimbledon champ said in her final public appearance before the match. "There is pride involved."

And then turning to face Riggs, Billie Jean said:

"I don't think you give women credit for having any brains at all. I think female athletes should be respected for their ability, not just because one might be sort of cute. Businessmen realize now we are marketable, that we can make money for their companies, that we are athletes.

"I've been at this for 15 years and you had better believe it means a lot more than just the money. At least to me."

What it really means to Bobby Riggs is hard to tell because he doesn't stop talking long enough to tell you.

But whatever else it means, the mach means a pile of loot to both competitors.

Over and above the money taken home by the winner, there will be $75,000 to each player as their share of the television and film rights and an unknown quantity extra for what Billie Jean refers to as "fringes."

It all starts at 8 p.m. EDT with an estimated 35,000-40,000 expected. Riggs was the choice of 20 of 27 writers who will be covering the match.

World heavyweight champion George Foreman, who doesn't play much tennis but who will present the $100,000 check to the winner, believes Billie Jean will win.

International tennis matches have come a long way since Riggs played and soundly trounced Magaret Court last May. The natural philosophical rivalry between King and the 55-year-old Riggs has turned this match into something very easy to promote.

And the two players have gladly fallen in line with the promotion on the theory that tennis as a whole cannot help but benefit from the publicity.

"This is bound to help tennis," said Billie Jean. "Tennis needs more show biz. We are going to be seen by an awful lot of people. Ninety million people are going to be watching and that can't be all bad."

Riggs, for once, agrees with his opponent.

"Mixed matches are the biggest thing that have ever happened to tennis," he said. "It is good for men's tennis, very good for women's tennis and it just so happens it has been good for Bobby Riggs. But that is incidental.

"Billie Jean King and myself have played this game all our lives and it is the game we love so much. I have been very happy to have been put in the position of being a sort of ambassador, or public relations man, or clown, or funny man or sexist or male chauvinist pig or whatever you want to call me.

"The outcome is what counts and the outcome is that tennis will be the big beneficiary all over the world."

Ryan ends controversy

By United Press International

Nolan Ryan holds the American League's season strikeout record today and a 27-year old controversy has been laid to rest.

Ryan wrote a record into the record books Wednesday night when he struck out seven batters in the California Angels' 6-2 first-game victory over the Texas Rangers and raised his season total to 355. Whose record did he surpass? That's where the controversy is involved.

For years "official" baseball record books listed an AL mark of 343 strikeouts by Rube Waddell of the Philadelphia Athletics in 1904. Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians came along in 1946 to strike out 348 batters and lay claim to a record.

Some statisticians, however, poured through the box scores of Waddell's games in 1904 and announced that the old lefthander actually had struck out 349 batters. All records of those very old days are suspect in part—Waddell's won-lost record that season is variously listed as 25-20, 25-19 and 25-18 depending upon which record book is consulted—and so some modern record books have carried Feller's 348 as the mark and others have listed Waddell's 349.

Now the only question is whether Ryan can strike out 28 more batters this season and surpass the major league mark of 382 set by Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1965.

The Angels downed Texas 9-4 in the second game of their doubleheader. Chicago scored a 4-3 12-inning triumph over Kansas City, Detroit defeated Baltimore 10-1, Oakland shut out Minnesota 3-0, Boston topped New York 3-1 and Milwaukee outscored Cleveland 7-4 in other AL games.

The Angels staked Ryan to a 3-0 lead in the first inning on run-scoring singles by Frank Robinson, Lee Stanton and Billy Parker. Ryan, who raised his record to 19-16, allowed five hits, including a homer by Jeff Burroughs. Robinson hit a two-run homer and knocked in four runs to lead the Angels' 15-hit attack in the second game.

Carlos May doubled and scored on Buddy Bradford's single in the 12th inning to give the White Sox their victory after John Mayberry tied the score at 3-3 for Kansas City with a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth. That blow prevented Cy Acosta from preserving Wilbur Wood's 25th win with the reliever eventually getting credit for the victory.

Joe Coleman pitched sevenhit shutout ball for eight innings to win his 21st game for the Tigers. John Hiller worked the ninth against the Orioles and received credit for his 37th save — equalling the major league mark set last season by Clay Carroll of the Reds. Aurelio Rodriguez' three-run triple was the big blow of a seven-run fifth inning which clinched the game for the Tigers. The Orioles' lead was reduced to a still healthy 6 ½ games in the AL East and their magic number remained at five.

Vida Blue pitched a threehitter and struck out 10 to win his 19th game for the A's. Ray Fosse drove in one run with a double in the second inning, Bert Campaneris homered in the third and Reggie Jackson drove in a run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth. Joe Decker was the loser for Minnesota.

Tommy Harper hit two doubles, scored two runs and stole two bases to lead the Red Sox over the Yankees behind Luis Tiant's four-hit, 10-strikeout pitching. Tiant raised his record to 19-12 while Mel Stottlemyre's dropped to 14-16.

George Scott drove in four runs with a single and his 21st homer bringing Jim Slaton's record to 13-13 for the Brewers. Dick Tidrow was routed in 6 1-3 innings and suffered his 15th loss for Cleveland.

Trojans too fat claims McKay

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Heavy ballplayers soon find out what heat and humidity can do to their performances—and that's what Southern California's John McKay is worried about.

"We undoubtedly have some people on our team who are way too fat," the head coach of the No. 1 rated Trojans said Wednesday. "Arkansas made us look slow and nobody last year could make us look slow. We have several people who are carrying way too much weight."

After surprisingly having to work for a 17-0 victory over a young Arkansas team last week, Southern Cal faces Georgia Tech in Atlanta Saturday in a day game.

MSAC: a new look with old faces

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Enroute to a 34-0 victory over Citrus last Saturday night, it became apparent that Mt. San Antonio College was doing different things with many of the same tools it worked with in 1972.

Many of the faces were the same, in the same positions, wearing the same numbers as a year ago.

But it was obvious that third-year head coach Mal Eaton and his staff had put together the most solid unit Mountie fans had seen in quite a while.

Against Citrus, which helped by coughing up the football nine times on six fumbles and three pass interceptions, MSAC accomplished the following:

— Tailback Teddy Farmer led a ground attack which churned for 197 yards net on 43 plays. Farmer was good for 97 yards on 15 carries by himself, a 6.5 average.

— The passing of quarterback Steve Myer was used only sparingly, 7 for 12, 39 yards; but effective—two short touchdowns of five and six yards.

— Defensively, the Mounties were opportunistic, cashing in turnovers one way or another: on touchdowns or on field goals by veteran place-kicker and defensive back Tom MacKenzie who intercepted a pass, recovered a fumble and kicked field goals of 43 and 25 yards. A veteran unit, with seven of MSAC's 16 lettermen, the defense played like it.

— A year ago, the statistics would have been reversed. Myer, as a freshman, averaged more than 200 yards a game passing, and a herky-jerky running game averaged about 50. The reversal has to be especially satisfying to Eaton, a ball-control coach, who tried in two previous seasons to install an offense with the characteristics displayed Saturday night.

Eaton credits offensive line coach Ralph Craig for the development of the running attack. Craig put it together primarily with inexperienced players. Only guard Al Clegg is an experienced returnee. The others are center John Bruno (Northview), guard Gary Serna (Ganesha) and tackles Mike O'Hara, a non-letter winner of a year ago, and Jarrell Smith (Garey). Substitute tackle Terry Green (Bonita) was also impressive.

All of this will be severely tested this week when the Mounties make their home debut against Golden West, a team which came back from a 27-0 deficit to beat highly regarded Orange Coast, 28-27.

The Rustlers hold a 5-1-1 edge in the series with MSAC, including a 33-21 victory last year.

Over the years the Mounties and the Rustlers have put on quite a point show for the fans. The average score in seven games in 30-18.

Like MSAC GW is setting its sights on a very good year.

GW has a quarterback who can run or pass off the option, in Danny Accamando, a couple of bruising runners, and an opportunistic defense which took advantage of Orange Coast mistakes to win. And the Rustlers feature a place-kicker, Brett White, who booted a 52-yarder against the Mounties in 1972.

The visitors shape up quite a bit like their hosts. It should be interesting.

SPORTS NEWS IN BRIEF

JACK NICKLAUS and Arnold Palmer salvaged some American prestige today as U.S. golfers got off to a bad start in the 20th Biennial Ryder Cup competition with Britain by trailing 2½ to 1½ after the opening foursome.

Nicklaus and Palmer pounded inexperienced Maurice Bembridge and Eddie Polland to win 6 and 5.

JOSEPH DANZANSKY, who hopes to give major league baseball a third chance to catch on in the nation's capital, displayed little concern over the National League's failure to act on his proposal to buy the San Diego Padres and move them to Washington D.C.

DON DEJARDIN, three years a general manager for the Philadelphia 76ers, was fired Wednesday by club owner Irv Kosloff, who conceded the team finally had "hit the bottom."

KERRY MELVILLE, seeded No. 2, third-ranked Rosemary Casals and sixth-seeded Nancy Gunter advanced into the quarterfinals of the $30,000 Houston Virginia Slims Tennis Tournament with victories over unranked opponents Wednesday night.

THE BALTIMORE Orioles now own one of those obscure records that only baseball can come up with. When Merv Rettenmund stole his 10th base of the year Tuesday night, he was the eighth Baltimore player to hit double figures, something no other club had done in the history of the game.

A SHARE of the World Series purse and rotation of assignments for the World Series, All-Star game and playoffs are among the demands being made by major league umpires, according to a negotiator.

Broncs look unpredictable

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — When Sacramento State invades Kellogg Field Saturday night it will be the 13th meeting since the initial contest in 1960 between the Hornets and Cal Poly.

The Broncos own a 7-5 series advantage including three straight victories. In fact, it was during head coach Roy Anderson's first season at Poly, 1969, that Sacramento last defeated a Bronco team. The score in that encounter was 28-9.

Since that 2-8 season, Anderson has led the squad to 19-14, 14-13 and 13-7 wins over the Hornets.

Hoople's crystal ball looks hot

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

Egad, friends the time has come! The weekend is here!

Pomona Valley high school football teams open the 1973 slate tonight, Friday and Saturday night.

And not to dilly-dally with superlatives, your peerless prognosticator will commence with the forecast.

Claremont and Bonita renew the oldest valley rivalry, locking fang and claw on the gridiron at Citrus College Friday night. Brushing off the old crystal ball, your Wizard of Odds sees the Wolfpack taking the measure of the Bearcat lads, 21-19, in a thriller that valley football fans won't soon forget. Egad . . . kaff-kaff . . . Hoople is hot today!

In a lone Thursday night encounter, San Antonio League favorite, the Pomona Red Devils, will singe Pacific, 20-7, while on Friday, Upland will be on the wrong end of a 21-6 count to Glendora, Damien will demolish San Dimas, 26-14, South Hills will shut out Chino, 14-0, Ganesha will gallop past Azusa, 18-6, Brea will batter Garey 28-6, and Walnut will edge Nogales, 20-19.

Ontario will overpower Rancho Alamitos, 30-19, Charter Oak will chastise Royal Oak 21,6, Anaheim will outlast Chaffey, 24-20 and Ontario Christian will take the measure of CSDR, 19-6.

On Saturday, Montclair will be on the short end of a 20-14 score to Alta Loma, and Rowland will romp, 18-6, over Yucaipa.

Three valley colleges open the season in Saturday battles. But it will be a sad day for the West's answer to the Ivy League.

Visiting Whitman of Walla Walla, Wash. will wince, but the Pomona-Pitzer Sagehens will fall, 18-14, while U. San Diego will saddle Claremont-Mudd with a 28-7 loss, and Whittier will whip La Verne, 26-13, in a Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference battle.

The Cal Poly Broncos make their home debut against rugged Sacramento State, but the outcome . . . kaff-kaff . . . well, have you ever kissed your sister. A 20-20 tie! Harrumph.

The Azusa Pacific Cougars won't have the same feeling, they'll hand Occidental the kiss . . . of death, 21-20.

Valley community colleges will be in their second week of action and some thrillers are in store. Oh yes, indeed!

The MSAC Mounties, seeking their second victory in a row, will have the show steolen by the Golden West Rustlers, 34-24. In Mission Conference biggies, Chaffey will slip and slide in a 26-7 loss to Saddleback, while the Citrus Owls, humiliated a week ago by MSAC, 34-0, will hoot their way past Palomar, 24-18, in a shocker! Egad, indeed.

Intersectional clashes highlight action across the nation Saturday afternoon. There's sad news in store for the Georgia Tech faithful as all of the Hoople Indicators point to a Trojan victory by 29-12. The Michigan-Stanford contest appears to a closer match with the Wolverines finishing on the long end of a 26-20 tally! And closer than that will be the 17-16 victory margin for Missouri over Don Lawrence's resurgent Virginia club — kaff-kaff!

The Cornhuskers — Wolfpack meeting in Lincoln, Nebraska, will be a real barnburner — heh-heh — with the Nebraska lads outscoring the North Carolinians, 37-27. The Florida State — Kansas game will be closely contested all the way. Both clubs are rebuilding this season with untried material. Our nod goes to the Seminoles, 28-22.

Other engagements worthy of special note have Alabama kicking off its drive for the Southeastern title against Kentucky, Kent State, seeking its second consecutive Mid-America crown, takes on Ohio U., and Ara Parseghian unveils his 1973 Notre Dame club against the Northwestern Wildcats. We confidently predict victories for Alabama, 17-10, Kent State, 16-14, and the Irish, 35-14 — har-rumph!

Now go on with the forecast.

Mountie runners in debut

Coming off two undefeated dual meet seasons in the South Coast Conference, Mt. San Antonio opens the 1973 cross country season Friday afternoon at Orange Coast College.

Returning from the 1972 team are Dave Andrews, Steve Cases, Terry Dunn, Dave Frickle and Dave Lazarin. Early season workouts indicate none are assured starters.

Freshmen runners Arthur Eddy (Edgewood), Mark Lotich (Bassett), Marc Sortillon (Ganesha) and Bob Watanabe (San Dimas) may unseat last year's top runners.

Additional hope for another fine season lays with Steve Koenig of Pomona. Steve will be returning from the undefeated 1971 team after serving a year in the U.S. Army.

Following Friday's opener, the Mounties travel north for the Moorpark Invitational in Thousand Oaks Saturday.

Citrus, coming off a 15-50 sweep of Golden West last week, will vie for the small schools title in the Moorpark meet.

Lugo impressive in first scrum

CHINO — Don Antonio Lugo of Chino outscored the Alta Loma frosh five touchdowns to one Saturday.

The Conquistadors indicated a strong offense for the upcoming season as tight end Pat Kryziak caught TD passes of 65 and 25 yards from quarterback Chris Pruitt. Halfback Ralph Vasquez joined in on the scoring with a 35-yard scoring gallop while backfield mate Bob Smythe added a four-yard score. Pruitt also tallied on a one-yard sneak.

Defensive standouts were end Bill Kramer and back Mike Daubensteck while offensive guard Ray Perez was impressive.

Don Lugo opens its campaign at home against Brea Linda today at 3:15 p.m. The Conquistadores were 9-1 in 1972.

First down Rams

LOS ANGELES UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams picked up the record total of 38 first downs in their 55-14 win over the N.Y. Giants, Nov. 13, 1966.

Berra looks more brilliant each night

By United Pres sInternational

Yogi Berra is looking more brilliant every night.

A combination of Merlin and Mr. Magoo, Berra sometimes makes very strange managerial decisions but he seems to have a whammy on the Pittsburgh Pirates and he's got the New York Mets on a merry chase for a ridiculous National League East pennant which will probably be won by a team playing .500 ball.

Berra, who has held a weak grip on his job most of this season, was the object of criticism again Tuesday night when he brought in a rookie with no major league experience to pitch to Pittsburgh in a crucial spot in the ninth inning of a do-or-die game. The rookie, Bob Apodaca, walked two but the Mets held on to squeeze out a 6-5 victory and Berra's neck was saved.

But Berra, who was fired after leading the New York Yankees to their last pennant in 1964, found only admirers surrounding him last night as the Mets played beautiful baseball, flashing power, pitching and defense to crush the Pirates 7-3 for the 11th time in 16 meetings this year and make a mad scramble of the division race.

"I finally have my whole team back," Yogi said. "I've been saying since the beginning of the season we could win the division if we stay healthy. I lost my shortstop (Bud Harrelson) for two months, my catcher (Jerry Grote) for two months and (Cleon) Jones for six weeks. People can criticize all they want. They can blame me for our losing if they want but when we got back together, we started winning."

Jones, Berra's top gun last night with five runs batted in on two long homers, echoed his coach's assessment of the Mets' sudden surge into the pennant picture they are tied with St. Louis for third, only a halfgame back of Montreal and 1 ½ behind Pittsburgh—after spending most of the season in the cellar.

In other NL games, Chicago beat Montreal 8-6, Philadelphia tripped St. Louis 3-2, San Diego whipped Houston 6-3 after the Astros beat the Padres 8-5 in the opener of the twinbill, Los Angeles downed Atlanta 4-1 and Cincinnati defeated an Francisco 5-1.

Two-run homers by Rick Monday, Ron Santo and Billy Williams carried the Cubs over Montreal after the Expos had jumped out to a 5-1 lead in the first inning.

Denny Doyle doubled to highlight a two-run fifth inning and help Philadelphia's Steve Carlton win his 12th game against 19 losses at the expense of St. Louis.

Fred Norman, a mid-season acquisition, won his 11th game for Cincinnati on a two-hitter as the Reds reduced their NL West title clinching magic number to five with their victory over San Francisco.

Joe Morgan opened the fourth with his 24th homer and singles by Dan Driessen and Tony Perez plus a double by Cesar Geronimo and a single by Norman added three runs.

MSAC tankmen beat Cypress

CYPRESS — The MSAC water polo squad, led by Henry Rodriguez' four goal performance, routed Cypress College Wednesday afternoon, 8-3, in a warmup for Friday's Gaucho Invitational at Santa Barbara.

Ron Strain contributed two other goals to the Mounties' cause.

Deer in good condition but scattered for Saturday

LONG BEACH — Abundant water and a plentiful supply of food have improved the quality of Southern California and Inyo-Mono deer herds during the past year, but they pose a special problem for the hunter.

Because of good forage conditions in most areas, deer will be dispersed for the opening of the inland and late deer seasons, both of which begin Saturday, Sept. 22.

Areas in the inland deer season, which concludes Oct. 22, of special interest to Southern Californians are Mono, Inyo and San Bernardino counties.

The late season, which extends through Nov. 11, includes the Southern California counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, Imperial and San Diego. The limit is one buck, two points or better in each season.

All deer season areas and regulations are shown in the 1973 Hunting Regulations booklet, available from Department of Fish and Game offices or wherever hunting licenses are sold, including most sporting goods stores.

Most public deer hunting will be on national forest lands. All hunters are urged to check with the U.S. Forest Service to obtain maps and specific information on forest access and areas that may be closed because of high fire hazard.

Despite dispersal of the deer, the buck hunting picture is slightly better than last year. Weather, as always, will play an important role in hunter success.

Here is an area by area outlook compiled from the reports of wildlife managers and game wardens:

LOS ANGELES COUNTY — Feed and water conditions are excellent, and as a result deer are scattered throughout all ranges and elevations. Areas with heavy acorn crops and readily available water should draw concentrations of deer during the latter part of the season.

Little change has occurred in the structure of the deer herd during the past year. There was a good buck carryover and there should be adequate numbers of deer in young age classes. Most of the bucks will have hard antlers.

Hunting pressure has shown a steady decline during the past seven years, and, except for certain popular areas, this decline is expected to continue. The buck kill as a result should be approximately the same as last year or slightly less.

Some of the better hunting opportunities are to be found in the Mt. Gleason area, Pacifico Mountain, along the west fork of the San Gabriel River and in the Sawmill-Liebre Mountain Region. The potential is fair on the north slope of the San Gabriel Mountains near Pinyon Ridge and Pine Mountain Ridge.

Heavy concentrations of hunters in the San Gabriel Canyon for several years has resulted in very low hunter success. The solution may be to move to the higher elevations such as Mt. Williamson, Twin Peaks, Pleasant View Ridge, Mt. Hawkins east of Crystal Lake and the area south of Upper Prairie Fork and Fish Fork. Incidentally, the Crystal Lake area itself is closed to firearms.

Prospects in the Santa Monica Mountains are poor. Most of deer population is at higher elevations, and few have been observed. A caution on hunting here. Most of the deer ranges are on private lands, and permission must be obtained from the owner to hunt. Also, much of the area is closed to firearms.

The northern slopes of the San Gabriel Mountains adjacent to the Antelope Valley are extremely dry and dusty and a high fire danger exists. Grass and twigs are brittle and hunting conditions poor.

Hunters can obtain maps and information on firearms closures at ranger stations within the Angeles National Forest.

There are few access problems to deer ranges and road conditions are good. The opeing over the past several years of large areas within the forest once closed to firearms should increase the potential somewhat.

ORANGE COUNTY — Browse and water conditions are much better than last year; consequently deer are in good condition but well scattered.

As usual there will be a shift from chaparral ranges to agricultural lands during the latter part of the season, and that will spell slow hunting for the unattached hunter. Permission must be obtained to hunt on private lands.

For the unattached hunter the best bet is within the open parts of the Trabuco District in the Cleveland National Forest. The Sierra Peak region will be open, but because of locked gates on private lands, a serious hunter concentration problem may arise.

This is the third year Orange County is included in the late season, and hunting pressure is expected to be about the same as last year. The late season schedule has practically eliminated the hunter concentration problem except Sierra Peak, but this situation should be remedied next year by construction of an access road to circumvent locked gates.

Within the southern portion of the district public access from Highway 74 is provided by the Long Canyon Road to Blue Jay Campground into the Chiquito Springs and Los Pinos Peak areas.

Hunters should check with ranger stations for fire closures. During the fire season much of the Santa Ana Mountain area is closed to public entry.

There has been little change in structure of the deer herd. The winter saw a good buck carry-over, and there are adequate numbers of deer in younger age classes. Most bucks will have hard antlers.

If fire closures are held to a minimum and there is sufficient hunter pressure, hunter success should be higher than last year. On private lands the deer take is expected to be about the same as in 1971. Last year the Irvine Ranch was closed to hunting which helped reduce the buck kill.

Hunters familiar with the Eastern San Bernardino area will find little change in the access situation this year. Fourth of July Canyon is blocked by a locked gate on private property.

Hunters are reminded that permission from the landowner or his authorized agent must be obtained before hunting on or crossing over privately owned lands.

WESTERN PORTIONS OF RIVERSIDE AND SAN BERNARDINO COUNTIES — Last year was the first year that San Bernardino County was in the shorter inland season, and the total deer kill was approximately 60 per cent below previous years.

Hunter success again will be substantially below the years when this area was in the longer season but will be about the same as last year.

As elsewhere in the state, deer forage and range conditions are generally good and the deer are in good condition; however, they will be well dispersed and hunters should not expect to be successful unless they are prepared to do some hiking.

In San Bernardino National Forest the best areas include Burro Flat, Cleghorn Mountain, Lone Pine Canyon and North Fork of Lytle Creek.

If fire closures in the area are lifted, lands along the Santa Ana River below Keller Meadow should be good hunting areas.

Hunters are urged to check with the Forest Service to obtain the latest information on fire closures. They also should check with the county to obtain the latest information on firearms closure areas.

UPPER COLORADO RIVER — The deer population in this area is very low, and most of the deer range lies within the Colorado River Indian Reservation. Hunting permits are required on the reservation, and firearms are limited to shotguns.

Access is good to nearly all parts of the deer range which is concentrated in the riparian and agricultural lands along the river. Hunters should be especially careful of shooting near houses.

The dense vegetation, hot weather and low buck density will make hunting difficult, and this year's take is expected to be lower than last year when four bucks were killed, a high for the last five seasons.

EASTERN SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY — If hunters are willing to work hard for their deer, a higher kill probably will occur in portions of Eastern San Bernardino County.

Food conditions for the deer are generally good to excellent, indicating that deer will be scattered throughout the range. Unlike some past years, hunters should not expect to find numbers of deer concentrated near water supplies or near a few areas with good forage.

Fire danger is high throughout the district, the result of good winter rainfalls and a long dry summer. All hunters are urged to use the utmost caution in their use of campfires and while smoking.

Campgrounds at Hole in the Wall and at Mid Hills are recommended to hunters who will be camping out. Prepared campfire sites at these locations will help reduce the chances of accidental fires.

In western Riverside County most of the deer will be taken in the Cleveland and San Bernardino National Forests. In past years the most productive areas have been west of Tenaja and Elsinore Peak in the Santa Ana Mountains, the old Banning Idyllwild Road, Thomas Mountain and Palm View Peak in the San Jacinto Mountains, and the north side of the Santa Rosa Mountains.

Hunter success will be about the same as last year. However, opening day hunters probably will not fare as well as those who wait for the two weeks of the season in the San Jacinto, Santa Rosa and Santa Ana mountains areas.

Deer are most likely to be found in the oak woodland areas, and in the early part of the season canyon bottoms probably will be good areas.

A fire closure is in effect in parts of the Forests for the opening of the season, and hunters should check with the Forest Service to find out exactly where the closed areas are.

Owls, Panthers eye conference starts

The drawing boards were busy in Alta Loma and Azusa after last weekend's football opener. Chaffey suffered a 31-7 defeat to Cerritos, while cross valley rival Citrus was on the short end of a 34-0 count to Mr. San Antonio.

Citrus and Chaffey open Mission Conference play this week and both coaches John Strycula and Willie Richardson wish they had more time.

"I'm not really that happy about opening conference play so soon," said Richardson, the Panther coach. "We made a lot of mistakes last week that we'd like to work out."

Chaffey visits defending conference champion Saddleback Saturday, while Citrus plays rugged Palomar at Escondido High. Both games are scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

The Owls were guilty of nine turnovers—three pass interceptions and six fumbles—in the los sto MSAC, but Strycula hasn't given up on his squad yet.

"I still think we have as good a personnel as we've ever had at Citrus. But we can't beat anybody with nine turnovers."

Especially encouraging was the performance of tailback Doug Hopper, whose effort was seemingly lost in the confusion of six fumbles. Hopper, a newcomer carried the ball 26 times for 94 yards net.

Defensively, the Owls didn't play that badly, considering MSAC had field position many times, thanks to the turnovers. Tackles Leon Hooker and John Allen came in for special praise.

Riverside City at Rio Hondo, 7:30 p.m. (non-conference)

Smith nets second round Open victory

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Even 10 years ago, Stan Smith stood out.

"You're too big and clumsy and might get in the way of the players," Smith was told as a youth when he was rejected as a ball boy for a series of Davis Cup matches at the Los Angeles Tennis Club.

The quiet Smith, raised in nearby Pasadena, is now trying to repeat as champion of the $75,000 Pacific Southwest Open Tennis tournament.

Top-seeded, Smith was extended to three sets but managed to come from behind to turn back Dick Bohrnstedt of Redlands, Calif., 5-7, 6-2, 6-3 and advanced past the second round Wednesday.

Roscoe Tanner, the 1972 runnerup, was not so fortunate, however, as he was ted a 5-1 lead and was overcame by Mexican Davis Cupper Raul Ramirez, 6-3 7-6. Tanner was 14th seeded.

Other top seeded players remaining in competition all won their matches Wednesday as third-ranked Arthur Ashe downed Sweden's Tenny Svennson, 7-5. 6-3; fourthrated Ken Rosewall disposed of Stanford's Alex Mayer, 7-5, 6-1; and sixthseeded Jimmy Connors defeated veteran Pancho Gonzales, 7-6, 6-3.

Smith was leading 9-4 in the first set when Bohrnstedt, who had surprisingly ousted fifthseeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia in the opening round, won the final three games to win the set. But Smith reasserted himself and took the remaining two sets.

"I had trouble returning his serves in the first set," Smith explained.

WALT SEVIGNY

Sevigny Joins Weber & Cooper Lincoln-Mercury

Weber & Cooper Lincoln-Mercury at 1050 West Holt Blvd., Ontario, is pleased to announce the addition to their sales staff of Walt Sevigny, formerly with Lincoln-Mercury in Pomona. Walt would be very happy to see or hear from his many friends whether he can be of service to them presently or in the future. (Adv.)

Suns waive Mo Layton

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) —The Phoenix Suns of the National Basketball Association put two-year-man Mo Layton on waivers Wednesday.

Layton, a 6-foot-1 guard, was a third-round Suns draft choice out of Southern California in 1971. He averaged nine points a game with the Suns his rookie year and seven last season, when his playing time was reduced.

Free football

CLAREMONT — Bill Arce, Athletic Director for Claremont-Mudd, announced today that Saturday's opening football game with the University of San Diego at 1:30 p.m. will be an open gate affair with no admission charged.

Pomona-Pitzer, which hosts Whitman College Saturday night at 7:30 p.m., had previously announced the game would be free to the public.

Thus Valley football fans can see two opening games Saturday without having to pay any admission.

Pop Warner Bruins win 13th in row

Three Pomona Pop Warner football teams started their seasons with impressive victories.

The Pomona Bruins (Pee Wee) got revenge for their only defeat of last year by beating the Ontario Packers, 27-12, for their 13th consecutive win.

Quarterback Kennedy Royston led the Bruins to 316 rushing yards. Edwin Morris scored two touchdowns, running for 137 yards on 17 carries, while Jimmy Spotville ran for 90 yards and one TD on nine tries.

Both Morris and James Murdock intercepted passes for touchdowns to lead the defense.

Meanwhile, the Pomona Chargers (Junior Pee Wee) blanked Banning, 32-0, on Marc Pruitt's three touchdown runs of 50, 50 and 20 yards. The Trojans (Pee Wee) blanked the Upland Redskins, 13-0.

The Pomona teams will play at home this Sunday at Garey High beginning at 11 a.m.

Claremont teams compiled a 2-0-1 record in the first week.

The Raiders (Junior Pee Wee) enjoyed a 12-0 shutout win over the Pomona Razorbacks behind Vince Matthews, who scored two touchdowns while rushing for 150 yards on 10 carries. The Claremont defense, led by linebacker Tracy Sims and tackle Dan Sanders, held Pomona to minus 25 yards.

In Pee Wee play, the Claremont Bucs downed the Diamond Bar Chiefs, 18-0, on touchdowns by Steve Darrett, Mark Smith and Scott Andry. The Claremont Warriors (Midget) played the Diamond Bar Dons to a 6-6 deadlock with Takashi Brown's TD tying the score for the Warriors in the fourth quarter. Gary Schaller was outstanding on defense.

Chino's Pop Warner teams earned three shoutout victories.

The Midget Division Colts blanked the Santa Ana Dons, 6-0, with David Pickens scoring after Ronnie Lopez caught a 60-yard pass. The Pee Wee Dusters scored in the second and fourth quarters on runs by Ernest Lujan to beat the Banning Bandidos, 13-0. The Junior Pee Mavericks put together a rushing and passing attack to take a 26-0 shutout over the San Dimas-La Verne Lancers.

Diamond Bar opened with a 2-2-2 record.

The newly formed Little Guys (Tiny Tots) blanked the SD-LV Spartans, 13-0, at Lorbeer Junior High on quarterback Roger Pammation's two runs. Pammation passed to Craig Padalford for the extra point.

In another shutout, the Lobos beat the Montclair Renegades, 14-0, on TD runs of 23 and 57 yards by Todd Woods. Tim Allyn and Scott Fontes intercepted passes to hold Montclair to minus 16 yards.

The Bandidos played the Fontana Falcons to a scoreless tie while the Dons had to settle for a 6-6 deadlock with the Claremont Warriors after Rick Maldonada scored in the first quarter.

In the losses, the Chiefs fell to the Claremont Bucs, 18-0, and the Gauchos took a 20-0 defeat from the Fontana Wolves.

Four Upland teams recorded victories.

The Raiders (Pee Wee) beat the SD-LV Vikings, 13-6, on TDs by Terry Stewart and Robby Perry. The T-Birds (Jr. Pee Wee) topped the Ontario Bears, 8-0, on a 34-yard pass from Ted Butler to Scott Spalding plus a safety on a tackle by Steve Maynard and Danny Kuresa. The T-Birds blocked two punts and intercepted two passes. The Chargers (Pee Wee) blanked the SD-LV Gladiators, 19-0, on a pair of touchdowns by Keith Hardin and one by Dick Chapman. Hardin, Scott Smith and Steve Tsuchiyama intercepted passes.

In the other Upland games, the Redksins fell to the Pomona Trojans, 13-0; the Rams lost to the SD-LV Tartans, 12-0; and the Bandits played the Fontana Eagles to a 7-7 tie.

The Mustangs (Midget) whipped the SD-LV Trojans, 24-0, on a pair of touchdowns by John Noss plus one by Alan Ravitch. Jim Moore kicked two conversions for four points and Ravitch accounted for a safety.
